HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The 1995 State Farm Show is continuing in the tradition of the last decade of subtle, yet significant improvements to the show and building.

Located at Cameron and McClay streets in Harrisburg, there has been a long list of improvements to the complex that has 580,000-square feet of show space under roof.

Some of the improvements over the past years include a new roof in the Large Arena, new lighting system, new sound system, a new two-story wing (the Northeast Building), a restructuring of booths, the development of a food court, higher premiums, supreme champions in more breeds of livestock, better layout and decorations in the Small Arena, better organization, and while not finished, new flooring for the Main Exhibit Hall and Lobby.

A couple of years ago, the days in the week that the annual event is held was changed in order to give exhibitors a Thursday evening and all day Friday to start for home, before weekend traffic. In addition, starting the Farm Show on the Saturday should give today's Farm Show enthusiast a better opportunity to visit the opening ceremonies, which previously were held on LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Some Lancaster County tobacco growers had to endure poor curing conditions this year. But some, like Keith Frey of Washington Boro, had nearly ideal curing conditions.

Keith was awarded with the grand champion of the Pa. Smoking Vo-Ag division at the annual Lancaster County Tobacco Show at the Farm and Home Center on Wednesday.

The 1995 Pennsylvania Farm Show Butter Sculpture is shown by Boyd Wolff, state secretary of agriculture before the unveiling ceremony Thursday morning. Sculptor James Victor used 800 pounds of butter to create "Giving Thanks," built around the tribute to the dairy farmers and soldiers of Pennsylvania for their contributions during World War II. Photo by Everett Newswanger, managing editor.

After months of preparation, families across the state convene at the Pennsylvania Farm Show not only to to compete for championships but also to learn from each other and renew friendships established at the annual gathering. Eleven-year-old Matt Samsel, left, will show two heifers and a steer. On page B10, read more about Matt and his parents, Melvin and Corena, who share Farm Show enthusiasm with their grandchildren, 4-year-old twins Kayla and Bradley, and 18-month-old Alexis. Photo by Lou Ann Good.

ST. JOSEPH, MO
TUESDAY JANUARY 3, 1995

GRAIN AND SOYBEAN PRICES EXTENDED LAST FRIDAY'S LOSSES MOVING INTO A NEW YEAR AS FUND SELLING CREATED PRESSURE IN THE PITS. WHEAT 2 TO 7 CENTS LOWER.

CORN 2 TO 3 CENTS LOWER. SORGHUM 1 TO 9 CENTS LOWER. SOYBEANS 2 TO 3 CENTS LOWER. PROFIT TAKING ON THE BOARD FORCED WHEAT PRICES MODERATELY LOWER. DESPITE THE GOOD EXPORT SALES ANNOUNCED THIS MORNING, TRADERS ARE CONCERNED OVER THE LOWER WHEAT SALES TO CHINA. SLIGHT DECLINES IN CORN AND SOYBEAN PRICES WERE ALSO DUE TO FUND SELLING ON THE BOARD INFLUENCED BY THE LACK OF NEW EXPORT DEMAND AND INCREASED FARMER SELLING. CONTINUED FAVORABLE WEATHER IN SOUTH AMERICA WAS ALSO NEGATIVE TO BEAN PRICES. THE FIRMER BEAN MEAL MARKET, HOWEVER, LIMITED DECLINES. GRAINS INSPECTED FOR EXPORT FOR WEEK ENDED 12/29/94: WHEAT TOTALED 17.8 MILLION BUSHELS DOWN 11.9, CORN 37.5 DOWN 14.0, SORGHUM 2.0 DOWN 5.6, AND SOYBEANS 17.6 UP 3.0 MILLION BUSHELS COMPARED TO A WEEK AGO. The OLD FARMER'S THIS WEEK WITH ALMANAC

JANUARY 9-15, 1995

ST. KNUT'S DAY, JANUARY 13.

DANCING OUT THE CHRISTMAS TREE

In Sweden, St. Knut's Day is the traditional day to discard the Christmas tree and end the season's festivities. Children's parties are the favored way to strip the tree of its decorations, after which the children are free to "plunder" the edible treats and small gifts placed on the tree especially for the occasion. Finally, everyone "dances" the tree out the door: Singing special songs, they pick up the tree and toss it out into the snow! Swedish children look forward to the dancing-out parties almost as much as Christmas itself — and what better way to combat the post-Christmas blahs?

Those who dance are thought mad by those who hear not the music.

TIP OF THE WEEK

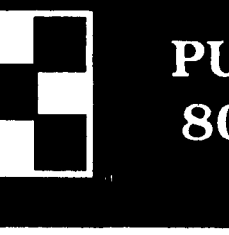
POPCORN GRANOLA MUNCH

8 cups popped corn
1 cup wheat germ
1/2 cup shredded coconut
1 cup rolled oats
1/2 cup sesame seeds
1/2 cup creamy peanut butter
1 tablespoon water
1 tablespoon oil
1/2 cup molasses
2 tablespoons honey

In a large mixing bowl combine popped corn, wheat germ, coconut, rolled oats, and sesame seeds. Heat peanut butter, water, oil, molasses, and honey in a saucepan. Pour the heated mixture over the popcorn mix and stir well. Spread on a greased baking sheet and bake at 300° F for 30 minutes, stirring often.



Makes 2 1/2 quarts.

The OLD FARMER'S WEATHER PROVERBS

– Shepherd's Almanack, 1676

Always expect a thaw in January.

He that drops a coat on a winter day, Will gladly put it on in May.

A winter fog Will freeze a dog.

Fog in January brings a wet spring.

LEBANON® EXTRA
Granulated Starter Fertilizer

"THERE'S MORE TO IT THAN JUST NPK"

For over 47 years, farmers throughout the Mid-Atlantic Area from New York to Virginia have produced millions of dollars of crops using Lebanon Extra fertilizer.

Lebanon Extra is an ammoniated, homogenous. granular NPK fertilizer. With the increased emphasis on using less and precise applications of plant food, Lebanon Extra provides the nutrient sources that you can depend on, and not just NPK but also secondary and six micro-nutrients. The nutrient integrity of Lebanon Extra is superior to bulk blend fertilizer products. When using row applications or banding accurate amounts of plant food it can be important to use a safe, quality, uniform grade product. If you are using a blend with MAP compare the value of Lebanon Extra.

OPINION

See All Your Friends At The Farm Show

You and your family will want to make the annual January pilgrimage to Harrisburg this week to attend the Pennsylvania Farm Show. The event in the Farm Show Complex runs from Jan. 7 to 15 and promises to be the best ever.

An institution in itself, the Farm Show is a showcase of Pennsylvania's leading industry and a tribute to the fine men and women who provide essential food and fiber products to our neighbors in Pennsylvania and others around the world. The show provides a unique opportunityu for exhibitors to compete with their peers in 30 departments on a statewide level, ultimately setting new standards and improving the industry overall. In addition, commercial exhibitors have one of the best chances of the year to show their products and services to many of their potential customers. And they can do it for a week in one location.

Secretary of Agriculture Boyd Wolff says you will notice a few changes this year. The opening ceremony has been moved to Saturday, and the Sunday's schedule has been revised to improve the draft horse shows. Farm Show Fashions With A Flair will enhance the clothing classes in the Family Living Department and an auction of rabbits (youth meat pens) will be held.

History buffs will enjoy several exhibits around the Farm Show Complex this year to commemorate the 50th anniversary of World War II. Pennsylvania's farmers did so much to help the war effort, and this Complex was actually used by the federal government for several years to train mechanics and repair aircraft engines.

Not only is the Farm Show a great place to see agriculture--it's also a great place to taste agriculture. You will find the Food Market to buy and sample food products from Pennsylvania companies. The statewide commodity associations will be serving tons of delicious foods in the "Farm Show Canteen." The Food Pantry features cooking demonstrations all week using more delicious Pennsylvania products. For the first time this year donations will be collected on behalf of the Pennsylvania Association of Regional Food Banks.

When you consider everything to see and do at the Pennsylvania Farm Show, you will want to go. Most likely you will see all your friends there too.

To Attend 1995 Farm Show

The 79th edition of the Pennsylvania Farm Show opens Saturday, Jan. 7 and runs through next Thursday, Jan. 12.

This year's show will feature more than 5,500 animals. Entries include 608 head of pigs, 945 sheep, 472 beef cattle, 508 dairy cattle, 210 dairy goats, 171 horses, 692 rabbits and 1,928 poultry.

The show will once again feature a life-size butter sculpture depicting the relationship between Pennsylvania's dairy farmers and the success of U.S. military personnel during World War II. There will be cooking demonstrations, educational exhibits, farm animal learning center, folk dance festival, and the famous food court.

A 90-minute horse shoeing demonstration is scheduled for 4:15 p.m. on Wednesday, Jan. 11 in the Large Arena. There are many more events and activities.

Come to the 1995 Farm Show to see what is new, what is best, and meet your friends.

To Bring Food Donation For Farm Show

A statewide food drive is being conducted for the first time at the 1995 Farm Show.

Visitors are encouraged to contribute a few non-perishable food products when they come to the Farm Show. This worthwhile effort is being conducted on behalf of the Pennsylvania Association of Regional Food Banks.

Easy-to-identify collection barrels will be placed at five strategic entrances to the Farm Show Complex. The greatest needs are for nonperishable items, especially canned fruits and vegetables, canned meats, and fish and entrees like stews and pasta meals.

The Food Bank distributes its foods through various channels, including soup kitchens, on-site feeding areas for the elderly or disabled, residential programs such as halfway houses, and supplemental feeding programs designed to help prevent emergencies by providing needy people with food on a regular basis.

So bring a few cans of food and make the first Farm Show food drive a success.

To Plan Pesticide Decontamination Site

Pesticide handler employers must make sure that a decontamination site for washing off pesticides and pesticide residues is provided to handlers while they are doing handling tasks.

Worker employers must make sure that a decontamination site for washing off pesticide residues is provided to workers who are in a pesticide treated area and doing tasks that involve contact with anything that has been treated with pesticide, including soil, water, or plant surfaces.

These sites must be provided regardless of the number of employees. Decontamination sites must be located within a quarter mile of the work area if a WPS labeled pesticide has been used within 30 days.

Sites must have water, soap, and disposal towels.

For more information on WPS and its requirements, contact your local cooperative extension office.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS
BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

MAKING THE TREE GOOD
January 8, 1995

Background Scripture:
Matthew 12
Devotional Reading:
Isaiah 42:1-9

There is an old Russian folk tale about an archbishop who, fearful that they might be doing things in an unorthodox manner, travels across the icy wasteland near the Arctic Ocean to visit some unlearned monks. Arriving, he talks with them about their religious lives and practices and is appalled at the simplistic way in which they pray He hastens to instruct them in "the right way to pray." Satisfied, he begins his journey home rowing his boat through the ice flows. But looking across the water he is amazed to see the three monks walking to him up on the water! "O Holy Father," they exclaim, "forgive us and tell us once more the right way to pray." "Depart from me!" he shouts, rowing away as fast as he can — now a wiser and more humble man.

That story has often challenged my typical clergy concern for doing things the "right way" in church. I too need to be reminded that even the best theology falls far short of capturing God within it. No human institution, including the churches, can wrap God up in a nice, neat little package — nor even a big one. It is supreme arrogance to assume that God must live within our clever systems.

CONTROLLING GOD

In the gospels, Jesus constantly ran afoul of these attempts to limit and, in effect, control the Divine. When he healed a man with a withered hand on the Sabbath in the synagogue they said it was not lawful to do so. But Jesus believed that the holy Sabbath is not higher than holy compassion. To make someone whole is never against the spirit of the Sabbath or the will of Him who created it. And when He heals a dumb and blind demoniac, the Pharisees make the ultimate protest: "It is only by Beelzebul, the prince of demons, that this man cast out demons" (12:24).

Some people still say pretty much the same thing: "It's against the rules!" (or read "our rules"). And, when this doesn't get the desired result, "You are working with the Devil" I suppose no one doing Christian discipleship should ever be overly concerned when that charge is made, for it is often a sign that we are following in the footsteps of the Master. People said it of Jesus; why not of us?

When they do, we must remember His response: "Every kingdom divided against itself is laid waste, and no city or house divided against itself will stand; and if Satan casts out Satan,he is divided against himself. If the work we are doing is detrimental to the strategies of the evil one, then the power upon which we depend is that of God, not Satan. That is the one standard to which we must hold up all our work and conduct.

UNFORGIVABLE

Probably the hardest of all Jesus' sayings follows: "I tell you, every sin and blasphemy will be forgiven men, but the blasphemy against the Spirit will not be forgiven. And whoever says a word against the Son of Man will be forgiven; but whoever speaks against the Holy Spirit will not be forgiven." To attribute God's work to Satan is the worst of blasphemies. Because we are creatures and not the Creator, none of us can be perfectly certain when something is or is not of God. If we could, we wouldn't need God.

But, isn't there some way to help us sort for ourselves? There is: "Either make the tree good, and its fruit good; or make the tree bad, and its fruit bad." That's what Christian discipleship is all about: making the tree good. That means lifting people, instead of putting them down (which is in God's job description, not ours) . That means healing instead of breaking, loving instead of hating, being compassionate instead of judgmental, helping instead of hindering.

How do you "make a tree good"? There is nothing esoteric or obscure about the "how" you make the fruit good. "For the tree is known by it fruits," and so are we. Fruits are what count.

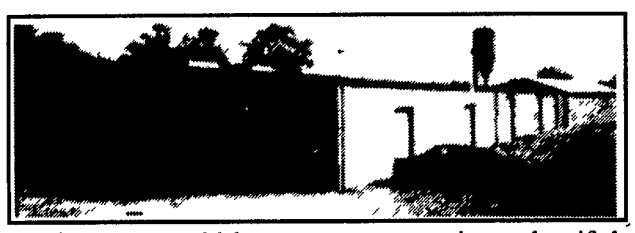
ATTENTION TOBACCO FARMERS

We Couldn't Do It Without You!



The farmers would have more money in pocket if they make all buyers buy at auctions. The buyer would like it better and do the job cheaper. With county buying and auction, one or the other will lose out. "Which one should go?"

We would like to ask farmers who signed contracts for tobacco, why can't we raise the price? "How can we raise the price when tobacco companies tell us 1/3 of tobacco is sold on contract?" This tells us that 1/3 of farmers are satisfied at $1.20 per pound.

The performance leader in this maturity. 3525 is a widely adapted, stable, high-yielding hybrid. Tall plant type, excellent for grain and silage. Late flowering will limit northward movement. Outstanding ear flex and good ear attachment. Strong performer under stress.

Record setting yields. This exciting hybrid provides impressive early growth, strong stalks and roots, exceptional stress tolerance, outstanding drydown and lengthy staygreen. Widely adapted to varying soil types, tillage methods and populations. Well-suited for corn silage. Avoid conditions where gray leaf spot is a higher risk.

NEW 3346
113 CRM

USDA Changes, Glickman To Be Secretary

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The U.S. Department of Agriculture has changed drastically over the past few months in name locally, and in face nationally.

Outgoing Secretary Mike Espy, who announced his resignation earlier this year so as to attend to what he described as "personal" matters, with the help of the former U.S. Congress, had realigned and renamed major segments of the USDA structure.

In Pennsylvania, though the names have changed significantly, no USDA employees within the former Soil Conservation Service branch are to be fired.

In a news release made in October about Congress approving the restructuring of USDA, Espy announced it as a victory for agriculture, and a new beginning.

At the same time, he said it was a new beginning for himself.

"Today, as we stand at this new beginning for USDA, I stand at a new beginning for myself as well. I must personally overcome the challenge to my good name that continues to distract from my work at USDA."

His resignation was effective New Year's Eve.

Dairy MAP Workshops Announced

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — The first two-day Dairy Management and Profitability workshops in Lancaster is scheduled for January 13 and 20. Other Lancaster workshops are scheduled for February 1 and 8, and for March 8 and 15. Attendance at each workshop will be limited to 20 people, and reservations will be accepted on a first-come basis.

For more information on these three workshops contact the Lancaster cooperative extension office, call (717) 394-6851.

For more information about other Dairy MAP workshops being conducted throughout the state, contact your county cooperative extension office.

Dairy MAP is a program that is being conducted jointly by Penn State University, the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, and by numerous agricultural industries in the state in an effort to help improve the state's dairy economy.

Dairy farming is a business. The two-day workshops are designed to help dairy farmers learn how to apply business management principals to help improve farm profits and quality of life for the family. Farming is also a team effort.

Thus, business partners and husband-wife or parent-child business teams should attend the same workshop together. To encourage this, no tuition is being charged for the second person from the same farm attending the same workshop.

SRBC To Meet, Adopt Aquatic Species Policy

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The Susquehanna River Basin Commission (SRBC) is to meet 9 a.m., Jan. 12, at the Radisson-Penn Harris Hotel and Convention Center in Camp Hill, and is expected to adopt a policy for the control of non-indigenous aquatic species into the Susquehanna River and ultimately the Chesapeake Bay.

The two-pronged policy — one set of policy rules for the intentional, first-time introduction; another for the unintentional — is being sought because of problems associated with unwanted aquatic life which can introduce disease, or displace current species.

The policy is really the adoption of a biosecurity measure that is being sought, ultimately, for the entire region and all watersheds feeding into the Chesapeake Bay.

Such problems include the zebra clam which can clog water uptake or discharge valves, such as the ones associated with power plants. However, there are many incidents of undesirable foreign species being introduced into waters a causing environmental and economic problems.

For aquaculturalists, the policy could mean new rules and regulations surrounding the importation, raising, breeding, and disposal of aquatic species.

However, according to the policy, it is for "first-time introductions of non-indigenous, non-naturalized aquatic species. Birds, mammals and other organisms, including marsh-dwellers, that live on land or in the soil are not included in the scope of this policy."

Furthermore, under the actual policy's review process for intentional first-time introductions, "All species currently approved for aquaculture or stocking and the conditions under which each may be cultured or stocked at the present time in each jurisdiction will be considered as approved under the policy for that jurisdiction."

According to Gerald Hollowell, chief of water quality and monitoring division for the SRBC, the impact of the policy may require some changes to how aquaculturalists operate with exotic species, or new breeds, and pet store operators and dealers of live aquatic species may be required to seek additional approvals before being allowed to import an exotic species not currently approved, but he said he didn't really expect the policy to have much of an impact on commercial production aquaculture.

According to a news release from the SRBC, which is a federal-interstate compact headquartered along Front Street in Harrisburg, the adoption of the "Chesapeake Bay Policy for the Introduction of Non-Indigenous Aquatic Species" into the SRBC's comprehensive plan, is among several items on the agency's agenda.

The four-member SRBC consists of the heads of the environmental agencies for New York, Pennsylvania, and Maryland or an appointed alternate, and the U.S. secretary of the interior, or an appointed alternate.

In short, its mission is to assure safe, clean, reliable flows of water throughout the basin of the Susquehanna River through proper management.

The Chesapeake Bay Program is a project of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) and various private and public state agencies to help protect the water and aquatic environment of the bay.

As of December 1993, the policy under consideration was adopted by the Chesapeak Bay Program, and was signed by the governors of Virginia, Maryland, Pennsylvania, the head of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, the representative for the District of Columbia, and by a representative of the Chesapeake Bay Commission.

The Chesapeake Bay Commission is a separate interstate legislative compact of Pennsylvania, Maryland, and Virginia, with the mission to coordinate (and influence) policy and advise different agencies on public policy issues pertaining to the Chesapeake.

It is one of the six signatories to the 1987 Chesapeake Bay Agreement which set up goals of nutrient reduction into the bay.

The policy that the SRBC is to consider for adoption was created by a subcommittee of the Chesapeake Bay Program and is consistent with the urging of the Chesapeake Bay Commission which has stated that such issues should be managed regionally, rather than locally or by species.

The policy statement, which is an overview of specific policy, states:

It shall be the policy of the jurisdictions in the Chesapeake Bay basin to oppose the first-time introduction of any non-indigenous aquatic species into the unconfined waters of the Chesapeake Bay and its tributaries for

Manheim Central Makes Ag Class Mandatory

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

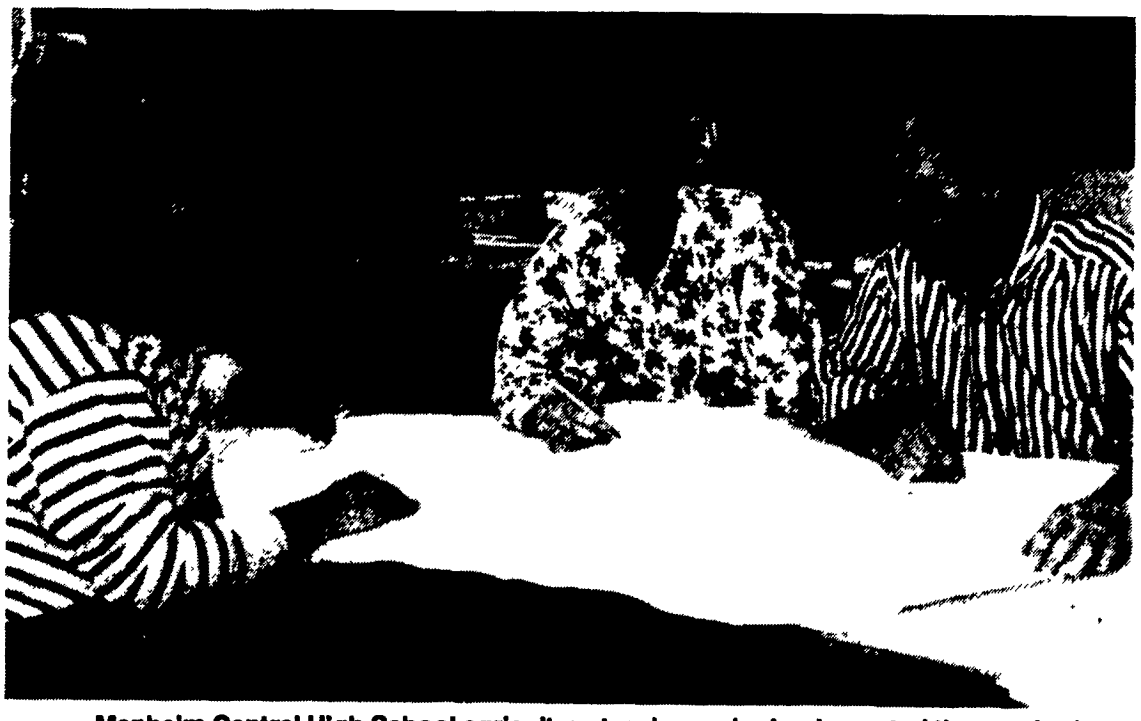
MANHEIM (Lancaster Co.) — In the classroom at Manheim Central High School, students are gaining a new appreciation for farmers.

It's an attitude that is long past due and one that seems to be dwindling nationwide as the population becomes farther and farther removed from the tillers of the soil.

As city limits stretch into suburbs and enroaching farmland, residents are prone to hold their noses at chicken house odors and complain about pesticide and insecticide use.

That's because too many citizens don't know where their food comes from and the purposes behind those smells.

Ninth grade students say that the required agriculture course gives them a new respect for farmers.



Manheim Central High School agriculture teachers who implemented the required classes for all ninth graders, from left, are Heather Peters, Deb Seibert, and Charles Ax III.

But Manheim students are different from the average scholar because the school's administrative personnel and board recognize the importance of agriculture in today's society. The administration wants the students to evaluate the impact of agriculture on society and how the students are connected to agriculture.

Every ninth-grader at the school is required to take a nine week

Brant Siblings Prepare Steers For Farm Show

GAY N. BROWNLEE
Somerset Co. Correspondent

ROCKWOOD (Somerset Co.) — The loud buzz of his electric blower cut through the quiet of a peaceful Saturday afternoon as 13-year old Jesse Brant used the man-made machine to ruffle the wet coat of his black steer, Bubba.

A green water hose lay stretched and twisted on the ground nearby, a seeming indication that Bubba's most recent business had been a good shampoo job.

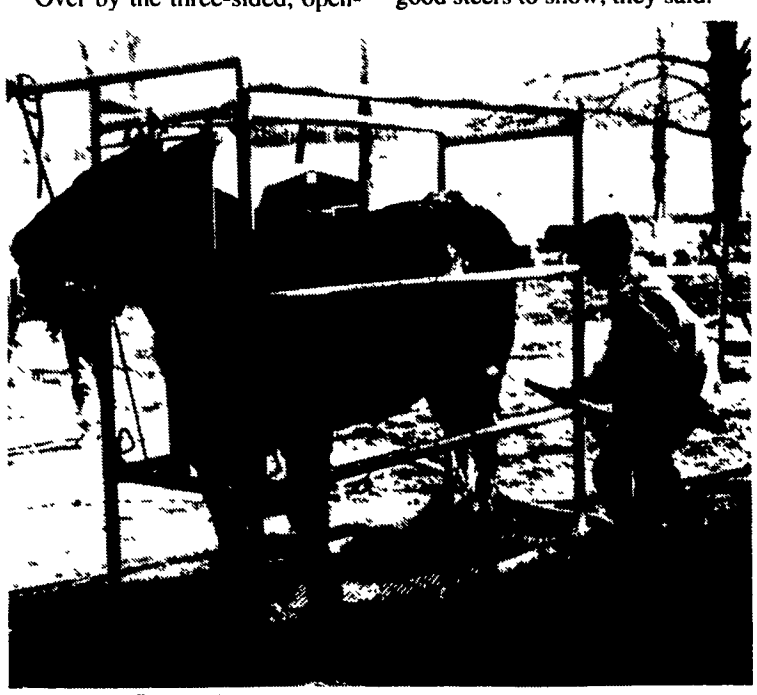
Bubba is a Maine Anjou cross.

Over by the three-sided, open-ended barn, another, larger steer stood tethered. Thick and muscular, the Chi Angus cross, named Twin, bore an underlying impatience, although he stayed quiet.

His owner is 14-year-old Jill Brant, Jesse's sister.

With the Pennsylvania Farm Show in view, the sister-and-brother team have been prepping and priming their steers for the best exhibition possible in the show arena.

Diet, exercise, grooming and tender, loving care, are three very important ingredients in having good steers to show, they said.



Jesse Brant, Rockwood, Somerset County, is rinsing and blowing his steer, Bubba, who will be shown at the Farm Show. The Maine Anjou cross was purchased from Freddie Weaver, Lancaster County.

Jill Brant and her brother, Jesse, said they would love to show their goats, in addition to their steers, at the Farm Show each year, but can't because of scheduling. They have 20 goats in three breeds — Saanen, Nubian, and La Mancha. When the goats are producing milk, they have to milk them before going to school.

The steer's hair is also important, said their father, Dave Brant. "We turn the steers out at night to grow hair," he said, "because cool weather aids hair growth."

Somerset County, being mountainous, is among the cooler areas of Pennsylvania. And, as Brant mentioned, Mount Davis isn't far from their home — at least, not the way the crow flies.

Mount Davis, at 3,213 feet above sea level, is the state's highest point. Knowing that, it seems reasonable to expect prevailing cooler temperatures on most nights, so the hair growing on Twin and Bubba ought to be just dandy by Farm Show week.

The kids said they're quite comfortable showing their steers at the big, annual event. This will be their third year. "It's pretty much like any other show," they said, but added they have made friends who are always fun to see and exchange news with.

"We always stay in a motel with dad, but this year we may stay with some relatives," they said.

To go to the Farm Show is fun, you get out of school, was Jesse's typical, teenaged observation.

"The Farm Show is an opportunity I never had as a kid," said Dave, who was in FFA during his teens.

It's disappointing that their mother, Carol Sue, can't support the kids at the Farm Show in person. Besides taking care of their brother, Andrew, there are too many responsibilities at home for both parents to be absent for several days at the show.

Jill said she showed Twin last summer at the Keystone International Livestock Exposition where he placed second in his class. At the Beef Expo, he was third in his class.

Twin, whose diet was corn, oats and barley, is out of a bull called Zapper, Brant said. He was purchased from Larry High in Lancaster County.

Bubba, on the other hand, got a diet of high moisture corn. He also came from Lancaster County, and was bought from Freddie Weaver.

"We get up every morning and feed them before we go to school," said Jill. "We do it after school, too."

Most of the steers' feed is raised on their Grandad Brant's 130-acre farm, located about eight miles away.

If possible, Jill and Jesse would love to show their goats at the Farm Show, they said. But the Thursday event is inconvenient for the Brant's schedule, they said, and too difficult to arrange.

They've got some 20 goats to show at the Somerset County Fair in August.

Their goat breeds are Saanen (white), the long-eared Nubians and the La Mancha, which have no ears. During the goats' milking season, the kids said they have to get up and milk 12 of them before going to school.

Jill Brant plans to show her steer, Twin, at the Farm Show. The Chi Angus cross, out of a bull called Zapper, was second in its class last summer at Keystone International Livestock Exposition and third in its class at the Beef Expo. He was bought from Larry High, Lancaster County.

One good thing, the goats dry up over the winter, they said.

And Dave said he appreciates the decrease in white thorns since the goats keep them eaten off the place. White thorns growing on their three and a half acres were nearly impossible to control before the arrival of goats, he said.

In 4-H, the siblings have swine finishing projects. They belong to the newly formed Mountain Springs 4-H Club, which recently broke away from the High Ridge Club.

Jill and Jesse attend the Rockwood Area High School where she plays varsity girls' soccer and he plays soccer on the Rockwood guys junior high team.

Besides his job with the state Department of Transportation, Dave hauls cattle and helps on his dad's farm. He belongs to the Somerset County Beef Producers and is a 4-H leader.

As a homemaker, Carol said she finds tasks aplenty to make hers a full-time job.

Eastern Hires Webber

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Eastern Milk Producers Cooperative Association Inc., of Syracuse, N.Y., recently announced the hiring of a new transportation administrator.

According to a news release, Lynn Webber, of Cortland, N.Y., has been hired to the position with responsibility for coordinating milk truck dispatching. His primary objective is to be increasing the efficiency of milk delivery to Eastern's customers.

Webber is a graduate of Alfred State University, and most recently worked as supervisor of milk procurement for Kraft General Foods. He was the field staff manager and also in charge of dairy and cheese procurement for the Northeast region.

Prior to working for Kraft, Webber was general manager of Preble Milk Cooperative, where he was responsible for pool reports, sales, membership, hauling and farm inspections.

He and his wife Barb have five children.

USDA Changes

replacement was former Rep. Dan Glickman, D-Kansas, who lost his re-election bid in November when the Republicans won majorities in many states and nationally.

Glickman, and his wife Rhoda, have two children, Jon and Amy, and his resume lists numerous awards and honors and involvement in agricultural issues, such as helping to urge the restructuring of the USDA.

His agricultural involvement while serving in the U.S. House was as a member of its Subcommittee on General Commodities, and its Subcommittee on (USDA) Department Operations and Nutrition.

The National Grange has endorsed Glickman, as have others, including Republicans.

However, some have warned that Kansas, being a "grain" state, and the fact that Kansas also has Sen. Robert Dole, now majority leader, and the chairman of the House Agriculture Committee, Rep. Pat Roberts, may lead to preferences for grain producers, as opposed to producers of other commodities, such as dairy.

Glickman played a major role in the 1990 Farm Bill, according to published reports, and is to be involved in the writing of a 1995 Farm Bill.

In the meantime, before leaving office, Mike Espy sent a letter to agricultural producers informing them of the reorganization of the USDA.

"We are actively working to reorganize the Department of Agriculture, which will save $3.6 billion over the next five years. But I want to stress that these savings will not mean that you receive less service from USDA. The reorganized USDA will work better, cost less, and improve service to you, our customers."

In the letter, Espy said that a "major part of the reorganization plan is the creation of a new Farm Service Agency (FSA)."

The FSA is to be the umbrella organization which is to take under its wing the commodity price support and production adjustment programs; the Agricultural Conservation Program, and the Conservation Reserve Program which had been administered by the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS); the federal crop insurance program; and the Farmers Home Administration farm credit programs.

The Pennsylvania state office for this new agency is located in Harrisburg within sight of the state Farm Show Complex. It is located in the Pennsylvania State Credit Union Building, located at Cameron Street and Elmerton Avenue, adjacent to the Farm Show parking lot.

That building is also the headquarters for the state office of the USDA's new Natural Resources Conservation Service, which is the new name for the old Soil Conservation Service.

Under the new plan, a number of field offices have been targeted for closing or relocation.

In Pennsylvania, nine counties are to have NRCS field service offices closed or relocated, however no employees are to be terminated.

Those counties affected include Allegheny, Clearfield, Fayette, Greene, Jefferson, Potter, Snyder, Venango, and Warren. A total of 11 employees are to be affected.

Only field services are affected in Pennsylvania, the RC&D, soil survey and watershed project offices are not affected.

Cargill is serious about corn silage. . .

our Pennsylvania customers are, too.

Since 1987, research from Michigan State University and Cargill data have scientifically verified what was long suspected: selecting the right-or wrong-corn hybrids for silage can make a big difference in your bottom line.

The research shows that most dairy producers can increase their earnings by better matching corn hybrid characteristics to their feeding needs. The work shows repeatable differences in important quality characteristics like whole plant digestibility, neutral detergent fiber, fiber digestibility, non-fiber carbohydrates and crude protein.

Here are comments from several Pennsylvania dairy producers and feed consultants about what Cargill's Forage Quality Program means to them.

RON BUTTERMORE
Mt. Pleasant, PA
(50 cows and seed sales)

The dairy producer has traditionally looked for corn that grew the tallest or had the biggest ear for corn silage. But Cargill's work has shown that there are other attributes that are very important to feeding quality. The more the cow can take in and digest as dry matter the more she's going to produce in milk, which means bottom-line profits.

DAVID MARTIN
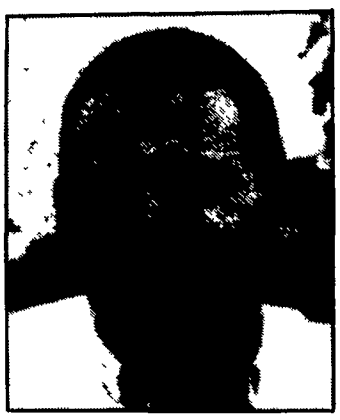
(feed and seed sales)

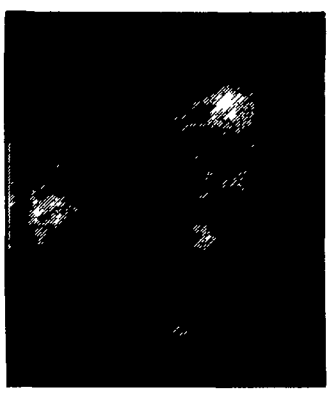
This program has been of great interest to me because dry-matter intake is extremely important. It's also a program that allows dairy producers to utilize their forages in the best possible way. I have seen hybrids that looked great in the field but their quality was very poor. In the herds I work with, poor-quality roughage is one of the biggest limiting factors. Whenever we're having problems improving production, it's inevitably a problem from low-testing roughages and dry-matter intake is lower than it should be. If you're going to make it in the dairy business, you must have good quality roughage.

By planting hybrids selected for their feeding quality you will increase dry-matter intake, reduce your cost of purchased feed and help improve herd health.



WALLY YODER
Belleville, PA
(50 cows)

I feel that it's a very sound program. A lot of research and work has been put into these hybrids and the Forage Quality Program. Whether I'm using the program myself or go out and sell it to someone else, I know it is second to none.



DENNIS REIMAN
Berlin, PA
(150 cows)

Having a Cargill TEP (Tonnage Evaluation Plot) on my farm has proven to me that hybrids that look good in the field may not necessarily be that great for feed quality and good digestibility. I picked one hybrid that I thought looked like the best in the field and it turned out to be one of the poorest in digestibility.

Cargill has taken the lead in this cutting-edge technology. I appreciate the Menu system that they have developed so I can select hybrids that will best suit my operation.

I consider several factors when selecting corn silage, but good digestibility is extremely important. It appears to me that cows consuming highly digestible corn silage will have less stress and they can draw the nutrients they need from silage in a much more efficient way.

I never thought much about silage quality before Cargill developed this program. It has really opened my eyes.

GERALD BURKET

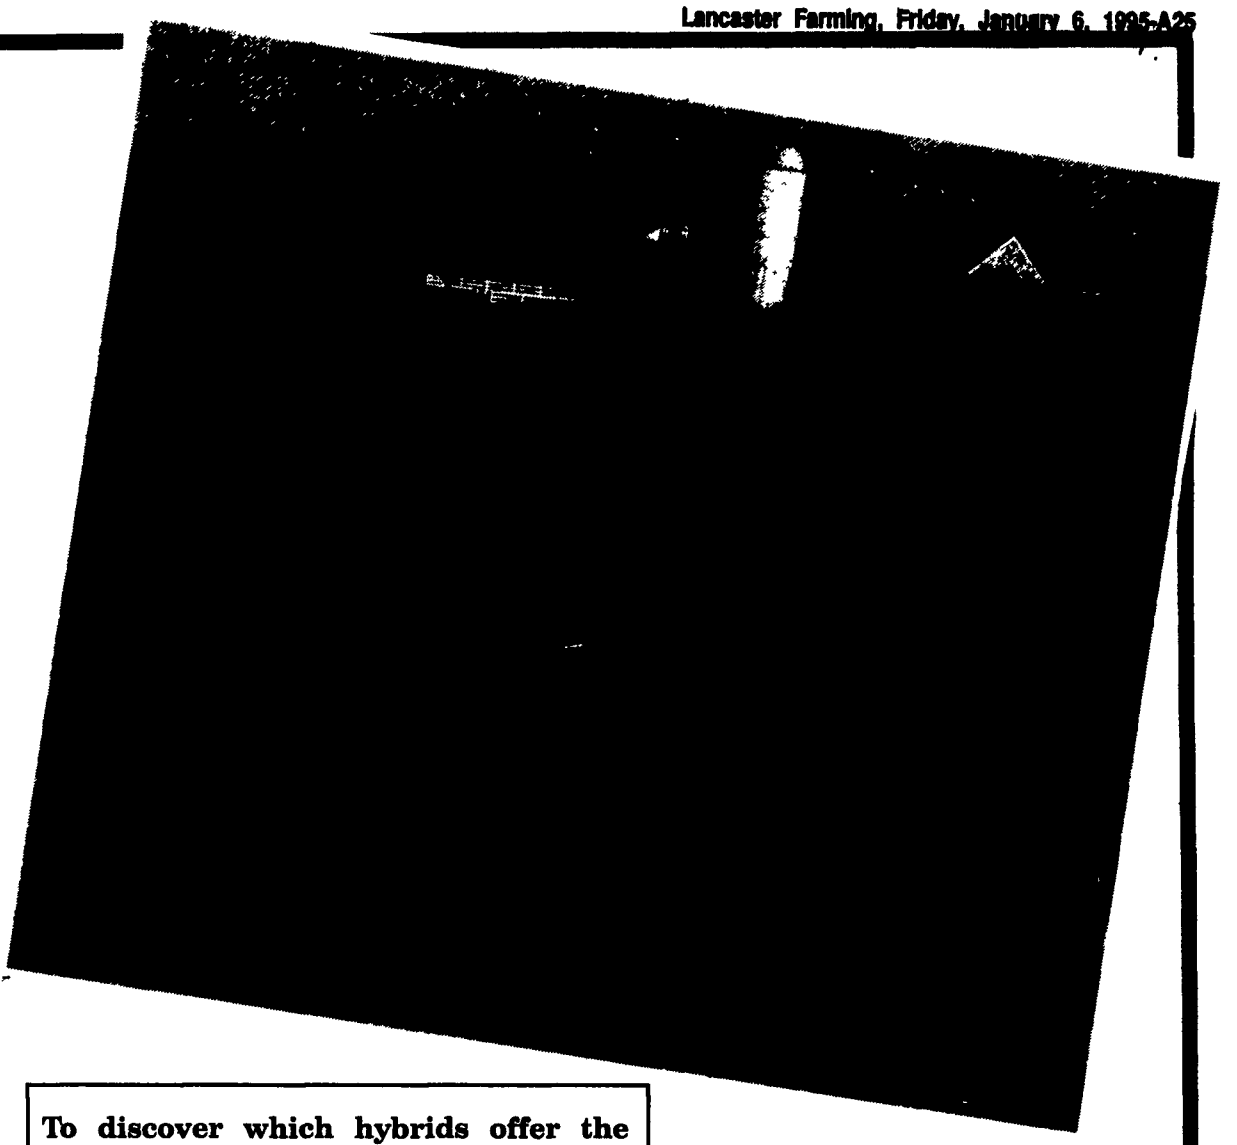
I don't think there's anything today that a farmer can do that will be more productive for his operation than plant a corn hybrid that is highly digestible. The more forage the cow can utilize the less a dairy producer has to purchase off the farm and the more profitable his operation will be.

If we have a corn plant with improved digestibility we can get more fiber into the cow and at the same time keep a healthier cow, maintain production and also put together a less expensive ration.

As a feed consultant, a ration with digestible corn silage makes my job much easier because I know we won't run into some of the problems that we would have with less digestible hybrids. I've also noticed that higher quality forage will have a tremendous impact on the herd health of cows. The Cargill Menu helps provide consistency and stability in rations. Cows simply eat more with good-quality forages and that's why they move up in production.

RICK CRAIG
Everett, PA
(feed and seed sales)

As a business person, you must use all the tools at your disposal. This has to be something that dairy producers look at. I believe you have to start with a quality product to get maximum milk production.



To discover which hybrids offer the highest profit potential for your farm, contact your local Cargill Hybrid Seeds dealer, or call 1-800-248-9414. Cargill suggests that dairy producers consult a nutritionist or feed consultant to determine the most effective feeding program for their particular operation.

NORTHRUP KING

N4242 RM: 98-102

A top yielding hybrid, N4242 flowers early and dries down very fast to offer maximum return and profitability. It performs extremely well in either drought or cool wet growing seasons. Broad adaptability makes this a popular dual-purpose corn for grain or silage in northern Indiana, Ohio and early maturity areas of Pennsylvania. Superior stalk strength and ear retention. Works well with reduced tillage and continuous corn. Adapts to a wide range of soils and plant densities. Due to early maturity, N4242 is not generally recommended for dryland sandy soils of northwestern Indiana.

N5220 RM: 105-109

An exceptional dual-purpose hybrid for grain or silage, N5220 displays good standability for top yields. Early denting and extremely fast drydown help this newer hybrid deliver very heavy test weight, high quality grain throughout northern Indiana and Ohio, plus medium-early maturity areas of Pennsylvania. Attractive, healthy plants are best adapted for moderate to high densities on medium to fine textured soils. Responds well to crop rotations.

NEW S 39-41

(X9339) RM: Late Group III

Achieving a new level of Phytophthora root rot protection, this high yielding variety is resistant to all races found throughout our area (from 1 to 11). New S 39-41 features the Rps1-k gene, which makes it resistant to all prevalent races. With excellent emergence, it is a superior choice for no-till drilling. Very good standability and stress tolerance promote optimum yields. It shows higher protein levels, too. Adapts to all row widths. Similar maturity to S 39-11 and Williams 82. PVP

N6822 RM: 110-114

An outstanding newer hybrid for the Eastern Corn Belt, N6822 displays very good staygreen to maintain high yield potential under continuous corn or standard rotations. Performs well on medium to fine textured soils when planted at moderate to high densities. Semi-flex ears produce good quality, heavy test weight grain. Very good standability and drought tolerance protect yield potential.

Good Curing Conditions Help Create A Champion Tobacco

Entries at the Lancaster show qualify for the state show, which begins today at the Farm Show starting at 9 a.m.

Keith, 16, said he grows about 30 acres of tobacco on his farm in Washington Boro. Half of the acreage is Maryland Type 609. "We had some good growing conditions," he said. The champion came out of the Pennsylvania smoking (middles) class.

Mike Mellott, 26, Quarryville, won grand champion of the open class, with his Pa. Type 41 wrapper tobacco. Mike, who has won grand champion honors at the show in the past, said he had "a good growing season and curing weather."

John Yocum, manager of the Landisville Research Station, said many farmers had experience with "shed rot" because of the curing season's early warm and humid conditions throughout the region. He said that although the growing conditions were good, some tobacco experienced the shed rot, which causes the tobacco to become dark in color, with a rough texture, and with less stretch. In severe cases, the leaf falls apart.

Yocum will be judging the tobacco show at this year's Farm Show.

In all, there were a total of 35 exhibitors and 82 exhibits. Judges for the Lancaster show were Geoffrey Ranck, Domestic Tobacco Company, and Jay Frey, Lancaster Leaf.

Following is a list of show placings.

any reason unless environmental and economic evaluations are conducted and reviewed in order to ensure that risks associated with the first-time introduction are acceptably low.

The signatories to the Adoption Statement (the governors of Virginia, Maryland, Pennsylvania, the head of the EPA, the District of Columbia, and the Chesapeake Bay Commission) are committed to sharing information and to carefully assessing through a joint review process all proposed first-time introductions of non-indigenous aquatic species in the Chesapeake Bay basin.

The signatories ... are also committed to working together to prevent unintentional introductions of non-indigenous aquatic species and to minimize the negative effects of undesired aquatic species within the Chesapeake Bay ecosystem.

Under the definitions of the policy, "Hatchery-produced hybrids and genetically engineered organisms are also defined as non-indigenous species, even if the parent species or source organisms are indigenous or naturalized."

The term naturalized means that an introduced species, such as brown trout, that has survived to create a self-sustaining population for at least 10 years.

It is the history of agriculture and of those who spread a knowledge of agriculture, that the introduction of non-indigenous (not there before man introduced) or non-native (existing and socially acceptable, but introduced by man) species of plants, fish, fowl and mammals into an area has been done in order to provide an alternative or already known source of food and fiber than what is available naturally.

However, with current practices well established, and a high risk of accidentally introducing a new disease or species that could destroy those currently important, efforts have been underway to curtail the practice of introducing species before understanding the potential of economic and environmental damage they may pose.

Manheim Central Makes Ag Class Mandatory

course, five days a week, on agriculture exploration.

"I look at farmers differently now. Before, I thought all farmers did was clean out barns and smell bad, but now I see they use a lot of technology," said a ninth grade student at Manheim Central High School.

Another student said, "I'm more aware of how food is used, where it comes from, and of caring for the earth."

The curriculum at Manheim is one that agricultural-related people envision being intergrated in every school.

Deb Seibert, ag science teacher and FFA advisor, said one of the goals of the course is to teach students how agriculture affects every area of their lives.

In the course, students explore environmental technology, plant science, animal production, food processing, and agribusiness.

In a review of plant science, Seibert asked the students, "How many of you could have a career in plant science?"

Almost every hand in the classroom went up.

For not only does the course examine research in plant mutation and genetics but also occupations that are linked to it. Job titles, educational requirements, technical skills, and benefits are listed for many jobs from menial jobs to those requiring doctor's degrees.

This enables students to see the connection between the real-world and academic learning.

Seibert is pleased with the positive reactions she sees from students taking the required course.

Some critics of the program may complained that the required course is too generalized and not production agriculture. But Seibert and her staff recognize that the basic overview of the course exposes students who would never have had any understanding of agriculture and how it affects almost every area of life.

"The biggest advantage is that every kid has a basic foundation — every kid knows what ag is in general. By getting to talk with each on a one to one basis, every student gets the true picture beyond the 'wives' tales' of what ag really is. The exposure to ag during the first year in high school enables a student to choose ag elective courses during the remaining three years."

For the farming community, the advantage is that students' understanding of farming translates into better communication between farming and non-farming neighbors. This understanding promises to infiltrate into the future, when laws pertaining to environment, zoning, food and fiber production, and processing are decided. These future lawmakers will know that agriculture is the backbone of our world — one that should and needs to be protected.

Ninth-grader Ryan Groff said that he is probably the only student in his class that lives on a farm. Sometimes he becomes a bit bored learning the elementary facts of agriculture since he is so familiar with the subject, but he believes it is good that students are required to complete the course.

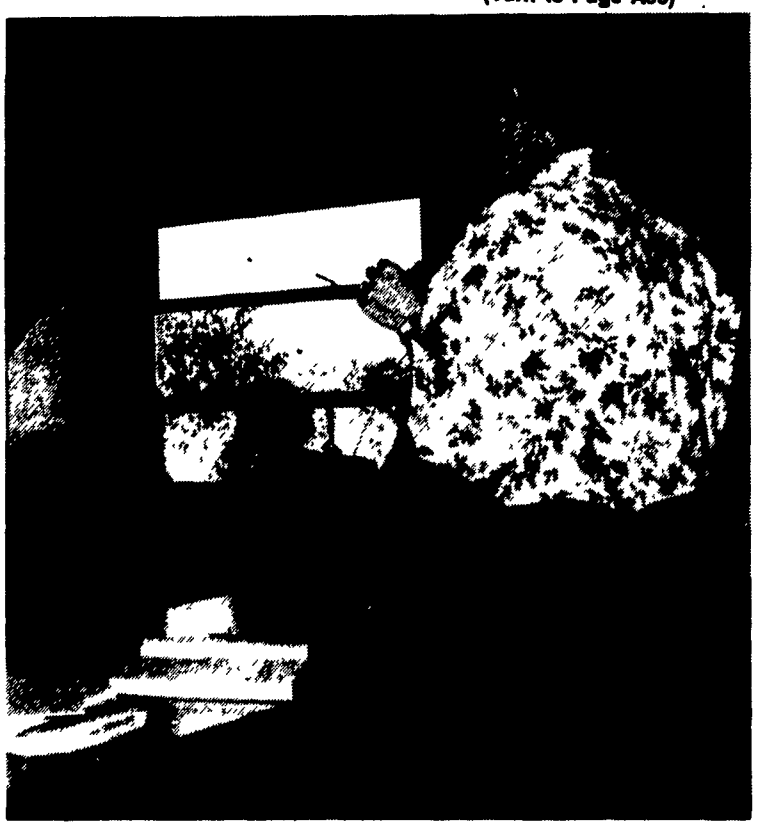
He enjoys the lab work intergrated with the book study. Ryan plans to take more in-depth ag courses and foresees a career in production agriculture. And, Seibert trys to use his expertise by having him share his perspective in the classroom.

The introduction to agriculture is part of the school's district strategic planning .called MC 2000. The emphasis is to empower individuals, through development of academic and social skills, to become responsible citizens in a changing world.

"MC 2000 is a coordinated plan designed to prepare students for the 21st century," Seibert said.

(Turn to Page A38)

Ryan Groff believes he is the only one in his class from a farm, which gives him a different perspective than most of his classmates.



Seibert teaches plant science as part of the agriculture overall.

Practical Information Stressed At Chester Dairy Day

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

GUTHRIESVILLE (Chester Co.) — Chester County held its dairy day program Wednesday at the East Brandywine Firehall with speakers discussing nuts and bolts advise for managing dairy herds.

About 80 people attended the event, with two key speakers from Penn State University and another speaker a private dairy consultant.

While much of what was said has been either published or presented previously or through other forums, each speaker narrowed down several key points about each of their topics that they wanted the dairy producers to consider in their own operations.

Dr. A.J. "Jud" Heinrichs, associate professor of dairy and animal science at Penn State University's College of Agricultural Sciences; Dr. Robert E. Graves, professor of agricultural and biological engineering at Penn State; and Dr. Brian Perkins, a Vermont-based independent dairy consultant who works throughout the New England states, were the speakers.

The program was sponsored by Chester County Cooperative Extension, CoreStates/Hamilton Bank, and Meridian Bank.

In the morning session Heinrichs discussed the care and feeding strategies for raising and breeding young heifers through their first calving.

Some of the key points Heinrichs discussed were keeping the environment clean and healthy, but also looking realistically at raising the heifers to maximize their genetic potential.

Dr. Jud Heinrichs
Dairy, Animal Science

He discussed the fact that the mammary system grows at a pace that outspeeds development of the rest of the young heifer by as much as 3.5:1, when it is from 3- to 9-months-old.

From birth to 2 months, the mammary system develops at a rate of 1.6:1, he said, and at a rate of 1.5:1 from 10 to 12 months.

This means that the most impact a producer can have on developing a strong, healthy mammary system is during the care and feeding while the heifer calf is from 3- to 9-months-old.

It is very important to understand that overfeeding at this age can result in fatty tissue developing in the mammary and thwart proper mammary tissue development.

According to Heinrichs, dairy cattle raisers should not push their young heifers before they are eight months old. He said that after that age, producers can "push" the heifers with extra protein, but not extra energy.

The consideration is that the protein can be used to build growing tissue, while extra, unused energy will be deposited as fatty tissue, and can actually hinder proper development of the heifer, especially reproductively.

He also suggested that breeding heifers to calve at 23 to 24 months of age should be a goal of every producer, because it results in higher lifetime milk production.

Heinrichs also said that there is no correlation between age of first calving and age of culling — which means that those who continue to have heifers calve at ages of 25 months on are merely losing money in feed costs.

If the heifer is going to have problems and be culled before a third lactation, it is going to happen regardless of when she calved the first time.

What will happen with a heifer that calves at 23 to 24 months of age is that over her lifetime she will actually produce more milk, and she will be more profitable, because she won't require as much feed until she starts to generate income in milk sales.

Acccording to an analysis of data taken from Dairy Herd Improvement Records, those cows which had an age of first calving at 22.9 months averaged 25,525 pounds of milk per 305-day lactation, while those calving first at 26.3 months had an average production of 20,280 pounds of milk.

Heinrichs recommended using a weight tape to start breeding cows when they weigh about 750 pounds. He said most people are breeding when the heifers weigh about 900 pounds, which is unecessary.

The goal is to have a post-calving weight on a first-calf heifer of about 1,200 to 1,250 pounds. (For every increase in body weight at calving their is a corresponding increase in milk production).

Heinrichs warned that most weight tapes available need to be reworked, since the calculations upon which they are based are about 20 years old. He said weight tapes generally result in overestimating by 20 pounds on young animals, and 40 pounds on older animals. Those difference have to be taken into consideration.

(Some other speakers at different forums have suggested using height indicators for heifers to determine when the size of the heifer is appropriate for first breeding.)

Heinrichs showed a diagram relating feed costs to average daily gain to calving age and also the simple relationship between those factors and calving weight and ultimately milk production.

According to the diagram feed costs are directly related to average daily gain, which is related to calving age, calving weight and milk production.

In fact, all are interconnected.

Heinrichs also said that for those serious about developing the best heifers and the best milking string, should not be as indifferent to heifer forages as has been fairly widely practiced.

He said he knows that most people feed "heifer hay," which is usually the poorest quality protein forage. He said that is a fine practice, but it isn't fine to feed without knowing what is in the hay.

According ot Heinrichs, 80 percent to 90 percent of the dry matter a heifer takes in is from forages, so it is imperative that a producer know how much protein is in that forage, so that additional dietary needs can be met. "Almost all rations are going to need some grain," he said.

As a recommendation, Heinrichs said that producers should consider forumulating three different heifer rations: one for those from weaning age to 6-months; another for those 7- to 12-months;

IF THIS IS YOUR LENDER'S IDEA OF A BUSH HOG,® IMAGINE WHAT KIND OF FINANCIAL ADVICE HE'LL GIVE YOU.

There's nothing worse than talking about a farm loan with someone who doesn't know farming. ✱ But you won't run into that problem at Farm Credit. A good many of our loan officers come from farming backgrounds. And they're all graduates of the most comprehensive ag lending program in the nation. ✱ So when you get technical, they don't look lost. In fact, they usually have some pretty good advice on farming as well as finance. ✱ Stop by and talk to your Farm Credit loan officer. It's easier when people speak your language.

and another for those 13 months to pre-calving.

The precalving heifers can be, and should be put on a close up ration. Heinrichs said that putting them in with up close dry cows is a perfectly fine practice and that a heifer should never, never be allowed to calve at a heifer facility and then be trucked to the main herd to be put in the milking string.

He suggested a precalving stage to start from four to six weeks prior to calving.

Other speakers discussed using commoditites in a feeding program, cow comfort in a stall barn, managing for profits and caring for dry cows.

Manheim Central

One of the goals is to show students the connection between subject areas.

This year, during the fourth marking period, integrated curriculum will be used to show students the connection between the courses they are studying and relate it to a project. Currently, 22 teachers are working together on one project to teach students hands-on skills in erecting a biosphere on school property where some students will spend several school days inside it.

Students will use math skills to determine geometric measures; science skills to predict weather patterns; English skills to prepare a video journal of the different stages in building the biosphere; social studies to examine how the environment affects history, poverty, and war; and physical education knowledge to determine how to keep in shape within the biosphere. Students will use a computer to produce a newspaper; art knowledge to design furniture; home economics training in choosing fabrics and design; and agriculture to figure out the plants and animals that may exist in the biosphere.

"It's taking a lot of preparation to keep things balanced," Seibert said of this new experience for teachers.

"The purpose is to show connections. In the world, every action is a reaction," she said.

This is Seibert's 10th year teaching. The restructuring has required a lot of time and energy, but one that pleases her.

When she first began teaching in 1985, only four students were enrolled in her freshman agriculture class and only 38 in the ag program.

Compare that to more than 550 students enrolled in at least one of the agriculture education electives.

The increasing enrollment required hiring two additional vocational agricultural staff members, Heather Peters and Charles Ax III.

Classroom expansion is also needed. Two greenhouses, two additional classrooms, and a small engine, welding, and woodworking shop will be built beginning this spring and completed in three years. To finance the expansion, the school received a rural grant from the Department of Agriculture requiring matching funds from local businesses and the community.

Seibert said, "We could not have offered this curriculum and have this expansion without the support of the administration, the school board, the parents, and the community."

Said Jere Murphy, the school's principal, "We have a young, knowledgeable and dedicated staff who have conveyed to our students that agriculture affects and is important to all of us. With the support of strong FFA and Adult Young Farmer Programs, the Manheim Central Agriculture Education Department- prepares leaders in the agriculture industry of the future."

Lebanon 4-H Livestock Holds Winter Roundup

NORTH CORNWALL (Lebanon Co.) — The Lebanon 4-H Livestock Club held its winter roundup last week and raised a total of $13,330 through the sale of project animals.

Although no market steers were shown, the sale of market sheep raised $2,185; while the sale of market hogs raised $11,145.

Twenty-seven buyers and other supporters attended the sale of the market animals and helped the county's youth continue their projects.

The grand champion market lamb was shown by Benj Bow and was purchased by Lebanon Valley National Bank, and Dr. Andrew and Kathy Stewart for $200.

The reserve champion market lamb was shown by Kyle Fleener, and was purchased for $190 by John F. Lengel Inc.

The grand champion market hog was shown by Trisha Berger and was purchased by Hatfield Quality Meats Inc., for $250.

The reserve grand champion market hog was shown by Marc Arnold and was purchased by John F. Lengel Inc. for $290.

The winter roundup is held annually between the Christmas and New Year's holidays and gives the youth a chance to show and sell their market animals. Some members take other project animals to the state Farm Show, while the roundup provides many with the only opportunity for such an event.

Shepherds Of The Field

DAVE SLUSSER
Manager PA DHIA

Over the last few months I have had the opportunity to attend County DHIA Annual meetings of PA DHIA, and to speak with many members and their families. We talked about the changes made to your cooperative, and the reasons those changes were necessary. The responses that I received from you during this fall's annual meetings were so positive and encouraging. It is a real honor to be your hired man.

As I joined my family to celebrate Christmas, I counted my blessings and I thought about you milking, feeding, and cleaning up after dairy cattle on Christmas Day. It may seem strange to you, but after 24 years of doing the same my family missed Christmas Day in the barn. If you don't mind I would like to tell you why. Nearly 2000 years ago in a stable near a little town called Bethlehem a very special child was born. We all know the sounds, the smells, and the chilly air found in a barn in late December. Why was this very important child born under such conditions? Why were the first people who learned of this birth the shepherds watching their sheep? Why are you so respected and loved?

Now I would like to address the issues of today in these changing times. What has changed on your farm over the last 12 years? Almost everything has changed except the price of milk. Your cost has gone up on everything at a rate equal to, or better than the inflation rate. To survive you are doing things differently than you did 12 years ago. You may have expanded, cut down on hired labor, or both. If you have not left the farm business, you definitely have improved your management skills, production per cow and cost analysis of everything that you do daily. The farm business managers will be the survivors and the most important purpose of DHIA is to aid those managers.

As national milk production goes up and cow numbers go down farm cooperatives that operate on a per cow basis must apply the same principles of business as dairy farmers. The cost of operation must be distributed more efficiently and over more cows. In order to provide the management services that dairy farmers need from DHIA, we in DHIA must change to meet the members' needs and do it in a way that members can afford. What we have done and what we have yet to do in PA DHIA is guided by these simple business principles.

Where are we headed in the future, and what are the effects of the past? Why were farm cooperatives started and when? They were started to benefit farmer members and they did their best work during the great depression. Farmers lost markets, services, and financing so they banded together to do what no on else could, or would, do for them. Farms were refinanced, markets were saved or developed, supplies were bought, and services were provided. Farm operations were saved and a way of life was preserved because farmers worked together to help each other survive.

Can history repeat itself? Are farmer cooperatives today working together for the benefit of farmers members? Are DHIA cooperatives in this corner of America working together for their dairy farmer members? You know the answers to these questions. I have been a co-op member farmer for 24 years, nineteen of those as a board member and now one year as a co-op manager. I believe that history can and must repeat itself, however, what I have seen and continue to observe is just the opposite. There are many good reasons why co-ops should get together, and there are reasons why co-ops should not. I have no problems with good reasons. It is the bad reasons that bother me. Some of the bad reasons center around the sinful nature of man. Some of the bad reasons that I have witnessed in my life are greed, pride, envy, distrust, power, etc. If co-op actions or inactions force farmers out of business, then those co-ops involved do not have the right to be farmer cooperatives.

I am not suggesting that we repeat the actions of the great depression. Times have changed. I am suggesting that we repeat the same spirit of cooperation that our grandfathers had. We are our brothers keeper, and until we reestablish that spirit we will continue to self-destruct.

The feelings I share with you are from love, because I love the shepherds of the field.

ORGANIC PLUS®

CAN YOU NAME ALL THE INGREDIENTS IN THE CHEMICAL PESTICIDES YOU USE ??

Statistics show many illnesses and even death are caused each year by chemical pesticides, not to mention the irreversible damage it does to our environment.

ORGANIC PLUS is an all natural insecticide with 3 ingredients:

1. Diatomaceous Earth - composed of miniature fossilized shells of tiny water-dwelling organisms which after milling are like razor-sharp daggers piercing the insect's outer skeleton, dehydrating and killing the insect.
(Chrystalline Silica content is only .36% to 1.12%).

2. Pyrethrin - a botanical insecticide derived from the Chrysanthemum flower. It is used for its knock-down/killing ability, but has a short residual life and is approved for use on organic crops.

3. Piperonyl Butoxide (PBO) - botanical synergist that comes from Sassafras. The addition of PBO to pyrethrin produces the same killing power at lower rates and aides in the resistance that insects can build to pyrethrin.

TESTED AND APPROVED BY:

- ☑ Food and Drug Administration (FDA)
- ☑ Environmental Protection Agency (EPA)
- ☑ University of Florida, Institute of Food and Agricultural Science
- ☑ Ohio State University, Ohio Agricultural Research and Development Center
- ☑ United States Department of Agriculture, Agriculture Research Service

Organic Plus is non-toxic to humans, animals and the environment, and is also very economical. It kills fire ants, fleas, ticks, termites, cockroaches and other roaches, silverfish, grain insects, scorpions, centipedes, and many other insects. Pennsylvania Farm Show Issue: A Comprehensive Introduction

Sunday afternoons, which was done out of consideration for work and religious observances.

This year, the official opening is to occur tomorrow (Saturday, Jan. 7) before noon with the governor's address, followed by the Pennsylvania High School Rodeo Association activities which show off the skills and talents of the state's teenaged youth. The first rodeo event is from noon to 3 p.m., the second performance is from 5 p.m. to 8 p.m. in the Large Arena.

Victoria Ritter, director of the Farm Show Complex, said there are other changes for this year which should make the entire event more enjoyable for everyone.

She said that visitors to the Farm Show should be sure to view the butter sculpture located in the Main Lobby of the complex, facing McClay Street. This year's work of art is dedicated to the people involved in the efforts to win World War II.

The sculptor was James Victor, of Conshokocken (originally from the Harrisburg area), and it was his first butter sculpture for the Farm Show. The theme of his artwork made out of 800 pounds of real butter was "Giving Thanks," and it depicts three soldiers giving thanks for the food they have received.

According to a fact sheet about the butter sculpture, "During the difficult years of the war, ration kits fed our troops overseas. Though changing throughout the years, the ration kits usually contained some variety of dairy products.

"Powdered milk and cheese were often in the kits. At one point, the services removed butter from the kits and replaced it with margarine. After an almost unanimous protest over the butter substitute, butter soon returned to the kits."

The sculpture was sponsored by the Pennsylvania's Dairy Promotion Partners, whose organizations represent 12,000 dairy farms in the state through promotion and advertising programs. The Partners include the American Dairy Association and Dairy Council, Mid East United Dairy Industry Association and the Pennsylvania

Pennsylvania Farm Show Issue: A Comprehensive Introduction

Dairy Promotion Program.

The butter was donated by Holly Milk Plant, in Carlisle, which is a division of the Atlantic Dairy Cooperative. That plant annually produces 35 million pounds of butter.

The butter was kept cooled while he worked on it and it was never touched by hands. After the Farm Show, the butter is to be donated to area charities for use in shelters and soup kitchens.

The theme adopted by the Farm Show Commission — to commemorate the World War II efforts of agriculture — is also behind the displays in the case windows in the Lobby area, including actual airplane engines like the ones worked on during the war years, when the Farm Show Complex was temporarily used for military activities, such as work training and engine repair.

Also, there is a victory garden on the second floor of the second floor of the Northeast Building, and other displays carrying the theme.

Those coming from the large public parking lot and pass through the outside parking lot behind the Northwest Building can also see some World War II items on display by the Pennsylvania Museum Commission.

Those familiar with the area should take note the upgrade and repaving that lot received this past year.

Also new this year are a number of exotic animal displays, including ratites (ostriches, rheas, and emus), llamas, and domestic elk and deer. Visitors can view these exhibits in the Northwest Building of the complex, where beef cattle are displayed.

"We did a lot of different things (this year)," Ritter said. "The family living area is really beautiful, and for the first time we're going to have a fashion show of items made (for entries in home craft competitions)."

The fashion show is to be held Saturday at 5 p.m., Ritter said, and the runway is all set up on the second floor of the Northeast Building.

The Northeast Building is in use for the third year this year, and after two years of organizing the layout, Ritter said "I think we finally got it to where we want it."

In addition to the various family living style displays, there's a Food Market area set up for the second year in a row, but in a different location than last year, and bigger. At the Food Market, various Pennsylvania food processors have their products on display and for sale.

Another thing that's a big draw is a Food Pantry, which also displays various food items.

Overall with the Food Court — which is the large area set aside for the selling and consumption of Pennsylvania's commodity groups products — there are three different areas specifically set for the exhibition of homegrown foods.

The Food Court is where the famous baked potatoes, vegetables soups, fried vegetables, apple cider, various hot and cold meat sandwiches, poultry and fish and mushrooms are sold and consumed in huge quantities.

Ritter said that those also seeking new experiences should consider taking in the draft horse shoeing exhibition set to be held about 4:15 p.m. on Wednesday, Jan. 11.

Pennsylvania Farm Show

Mike Wharton of York County, along with two North Carolinians, Bob Davis and Stephen Keeney, will be making shoes and putting them on one of the huge draft horses. Using a forge, anvil and hand tools, including a 12-pound hammer, two people make the shoe, the other prepares the hoof and nails on the shoe.

The state FFA convention again is to be held in the Large Arena, this year starting at 4 p.m., Monday.

"I'm really pleased to have that herd," Ritter said. "It used to be held down at the Forum. I'm pleased because we have loads of kids here (to participate and observe), as they should be."

There are also Farm Show commemorative trucks and tractors for sale again this year, and the Pennsylvania State Police will have their booth and station located against the north wall of the Main Exhibition Hall, where they've been located for years, to answer questions and help children locate and reunite their wandering parents.

Also, perhaps the most significant change that visitors will notice is the traffic signal that was installed along Cameron Street in front of the Farm Show this past year.

While traffic is always somewhat congested around the area of the complex, the traffic signal should allow a better flow of traffic — both coming to and leaving the complex.

As far as the weather, crews had plenty of practice keeping the lot clean last year and Ritter said they are stocked and prepared to tackle any type of winter weather that may happen.

University Creamery Closes For Repairs

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — The University Creamery at Penn State University Main Campus, has closed its doors for January to make renovations and the first redecoration since 1961.

According to a recent news release, the creamery store is to reopen by February, while work is being finished. According to Thomas Palchak, creamery manager, the project should take about 28 days to complete.

Interior renovation is to include relocating the "dipping operation," according to Palchak. The ice cream service section is to be moved to face the northern entrance of the store (the side nearest Shortlidge and Curtin roads).

Customers are to enter through the north double doors and exit through the door opening onto the creamery courtyard.

To speed service, Palchak is adding an additional cash register.

The store is also to feature an express line, which is to offer only five or six of the most popular ice cream flavors.

"In warmer weather, we're also going to have an outdoor cart that will carry five or six flavors," Palchak said.

Milk, cheese, yogurt, and other products, will be moved to the front and stored in enclosed refrigerated coolers and freezers, similar to those used in grocery stores.

Opposite the ice cream counter is to be self-serve stations for sodas, coffee, tea and slushes, as well as sandwiches, bagels and doughnuts.

The store will also debut a soft-serve frozen desert for diabetics, or those seeking a low-fat ice cream product.

The most notable change will be to the creamery's decor, according to the news release.

The predominant browns of the present salesroom will be replaced by a blue and white decor. Penn State logos will be prominently displayed on the front wall and over both double doors. The store will retain its glass walls.

"White tile with blue accents will give the interior an Art Deco look," Palchak said. "We want to have the look of an old-time ice cream parlor while retaining the image of the creamery. Customers should be able to recall the first time they bought a cone here. The design team was careful not to lose the sense of nostalgia customers feel when they see the store.

"The customers have an almost mythical sense of loyalty to the creamery," Palchak said. "When almuni return or students have friends or parents visit, it seems as though the creamery is one place they are sure to visit. I think the customers have developed a sense of ownership."

Creamery hours are to remain the same after renovations are completed, and the same merchandise is to be sold, including college-produced mushrooms and dairy products.

Farm Management Specialist to Speak

CARLISLE (Cumberland Co.) — Dr. John Holt, an internationally recognized farm management specialist, will be making two presentations at the upcoming Pennsylvania Crop Conference Jan. 16-17 here at the Embers Inn and Convention Center.

Holt is a professor of farm management at the University of Florida and is noted for his entertaining and informative presentations. He is noted for his work in the area of decision-making under risk and uncertainty — particularly in the areas of livestock agriculture and the environment.

Holt has contributed to more than 130 research articles and has a diverse and practical background to draw from, ranging from a farm and construction laborer to a Sunday school teacher. He was also a champion bareback rider in the National Intercollegiate Rodeo Association.

Holt's first presentation, "Getting the Most Out of Management," is scheduled for 3:30 p.m. on Jan. 16 and will focus on techniques farm managers can use to improve their own farm manamgement skills.

Holt's second presentation, on Jan. 17, "Getting the Most Out of Your Employees," will address the factors necessary to manage hired help on farms — an issue many crop and livestock producers find challenging.

These presentations are only a small part of the Pennsylvania Crops Conference. This conference is cosponsored by the Pennsylvania Master Corn Growers Association, the Pennsylvania Forage and Grassland Council, and the Mid Atlantic Soybean Association.

Preregistration for the meeting is highly recommended. Information on the program and registration can be obtained from county extension offices or from the Penn State Department of Agronomy at (814) 865-2543.

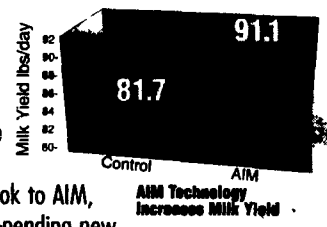
Announcing Amino Acid Impact Management (AIM), technology for better dairy herd performance

If you're constantly searching for ways to increase milk production, look to AIM, the patent-pending new feed technology from Master Mix Feeds.



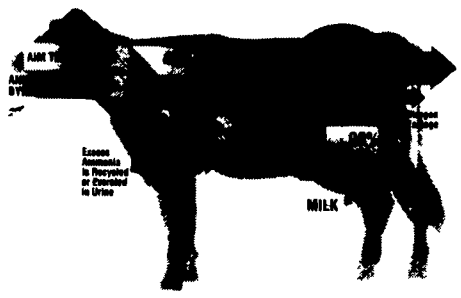
Meeting essential amino acid needs

Researchers from Master Mix Feeds have developed a patent-pending technology that significantly improves the concentrations of rumen undegradeable amino acids of highly digestible proteins. AIM enhances the flow of high quality amino acids directly to the small intestine where they are absorbed and used for milk and milk protein synthesis. AIM technology provides a balanced, and consistent source of essential amino acids that lead to increased milk yields and improved lactational performance.

Optimize protein efficiency

AIM works where other feed systems often come up short. Research has demonstrated that AIM technology optimizes the supply of both feed derived and microbial amino acids to the small intestine. This balanced supply means more efficient amino acid utilization.

Ready Aim Fire



Position your dairy operation for the future

AIM is the perfect complement to sound management practices. It provides a precise feed management system. AIM gives you a solution for improving milk and milk component yields.

Call or write for a free AIM brochure 1-800-292-F[illegible]111.

Consuming Thoughts

Penn State Extension Home Economist For Berks Co.

Contrary to popular belief giving up smoking doesn't always mean that you'll gain weight. Unfortunately, however, many Americans hesitate to give up smoking because they're afraid they'll gain weight.

Although weight gain is common during smoking cessation, it isn't inevitable and need not be permanent. The important thing to remember is that quitting smoking can save your life. Of the approximately 390,000 deaths each year attributed to cigarette smoking, 36 percent can be linked to heart and blood vessel diseases.

When a smoker kicks the habit, regardless of how long or how much he or she has smoked, the risk of heart disease declines rapidly according to the American Health Association. In fact, in as little as 109 years after quitting smoking, the risk of death from heart disease for people who have smoked a pack a day or less is almost the same as it is for the people who have never smoked.

When you stop smoking, don't be discouraged if you do gain a few pounds. Giving up smoking is much healthier than gaining a little weight. While excess weight is a risk factor for heart disease, you'd have to gain more than 75 pounds to offset the health benefits a normal smoker gains by quitting.

Smokers who quit tend to gain weight because they replace smoking with food, but this weight gain can be minimized or avoided by following a few easy tips:

- Plan to start a diet program when you are preparing to quit.
- Weigh yourself daily. If you see the pounds going on, pay close attention to your eating habits and identify the times, places and situations that are influencing you to eat more.
- Plan meals carefully and count calories.
- During meals try not to eat a second helping. Put your fork down between bites and sip ice water frequently.
- If you're eating with others, set a goal to be the last one to finish. Don't linger around the table. Get up immediately when you are through.
- Brush your teeth or eat artificially sweetened mint immediately after dinner. Brushing your teeth between meals can help curb your desire for unnecessary snacks.
- Substitute sugarless gum or artificially sweetened mints at times that you would normally have smoked.
- Control your environment—keep stored food out of sight. Remove food from living areas. Keep a variety of raw vegetables and fruits ready for snacking. They are low in calories and offer the same crunchy satisfaction as many "junk foods."
- Delay snacking. When you crave a snack, wait a predetermined time (a few minutes at first) before snacking. Progressively increase the length of time before each snack.
- Portion your snacks. Never take more than one serving at a time.
- To minimize temptations, avoid situations like coffee breaks at vending machines and happy hours that serve food. Take a walk, exercise, or read until you can control your cravings. Choose a spot or activity you can take part in instead of watching.

Give up smoking isn't easy. But it could be the smartest thing you'll ever do.

'Goat-To-Shawl' Display At Farm Show

Goat-Hair Fibers Produce Top-Quality Yarns

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

GLEN ROCK (York Co.) — Sheep-to-shawl demonstrations and contests, highlighting all the processes through which wool is converted from a raw commodity into a stylish, warm fashion accessory, have become popular Farm Show events.

But how about a goat-to-shawl display? Members of the Pennsylvania Mohair and Cashmere Growers Association (PMCGA) plan such a demonstration, utilizing goat fleece fibers as part of the Farm Show's annual Sheep-To-Shawl festivities.

The warp threads of the shawl will be half mohair and half cashmere, so the finished shawl will actually be one-fourth mohair, one fourth cashmere, and one half wool," said Binnie Roig, Dalmatia, president of the PMCGA.

The mohair and cashmere producers group was founded four years ago by three producers of goat fleece fibers. Through attending the Farm Show's dairy goat show, they made initial contact with other potential members. The PMGCA numbers more than 20.

"Our purpose is to promote the fiber goats," said Binnie Roig.

Through participation in the sheep-to-shawl event, along with their display and demonstrations in the Family Living area of the Farm Show on Monday and Tuesday, PMGCA members look forward to further educating visitors about mohair and cashmere. They also hope to stimulate increased interest in the use of these strong, soft, and warm natural fibers.

While mohair and cashmere are both products of goats, the fibers are handled in very different ways Mohair is the fleece of Angora goats, a natural fiber that is long and wavy with a rich, lustrous shine. It is obtained by regular shearing of the Angora goat's fleece, just as sheep are sheared to harvest their wool.

Cashmere, in contrast, is the soft, downy undercoating of a goat's fleece. It can be produced by many different breeds of goats. Certain breeds or strains of goats are more likely to produce the longer, crimped undercoat, with at least three-fourths-inch long hairs that qualifies as cashmere. Cashmere goat fiber production on can be enhanced by crossing bloodlines with a good quality, long and undercoat growth.

Goats grow the cashmere through the summer and fall months as an insulating layer against the cold of winter. Cashmere fiber is "harvested". by combing it from the goat in early spring, when the natural shedding process loosens it from the skin. It can also be obtained by shearing the fleece. Shorn fleeces, however, are usually less valuable, since they tend to be contaminated with the longer, coarse outer hair, known in the trade as "guard hair." Guard hair can be used for more coarse wool purposes, such as rug making, but does not command the higher price of the finer, soft undercoat.

What is known as Angora wool does got come from goats at all, but from Angora rabbits. So, while Angora rabbits produce angora wool, Angora goats produce mohair. Sources of these natural fibers is thus often confusing for the average consumer.

Greta Dise gets an affectionate nuzzle from Splash, a favorite pet from the family's fiber-producing goat herd.

"At the Farm Show, we will be presenting talks and spinning demonstrations, displaying completed garments and plan to have both raw and ready-to-spin fibers available for sale," said Greta Dime, vice president of the PMGCA. "There will also be both Angora and Cashmere goats on display."

Greta, her husband Bob, and their family raise about 20 Angora and cashmere goats at their Glen Rock farm. An avid wool enthusiast, Greta has raised sheep for may years, with a special emphasis on the natural-colored breeds. She became interested in the goats as an alternative fiber to use in her spinning and knitting projects.

"I was buying mohair to blend with sheep wool and decided to look into buying a few Angora goats," Greta said. "I came home with six does and a couple of bucks."

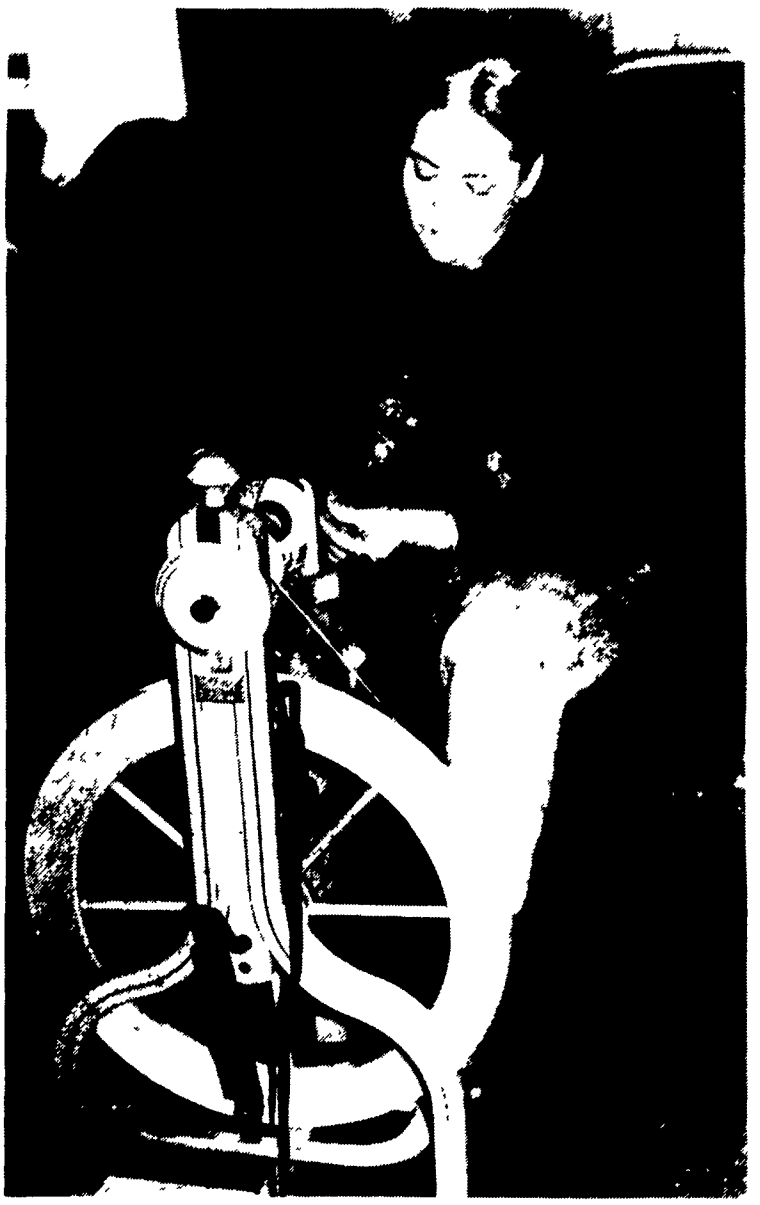
"It probably would have been cheaper to just buy the fleeces," she adds with a grin, relating how the goat herd has expanded.

This year, she introduced dark-colored genetics into her Angora herd by crossing selected does to a black buck. Dark-colored kids resulting from the crosses cannot be registered, however. Only all-white Angora goats meet pedigree requirements.

Whether registered or not, Angora goats have a gentle temperament, according to those who tend and breed these four-footed alternative fiber sources.

"They're sort of between a sheep and a dairy goat in personality, but are more personable than sheep," said Leslie Orndorff, Brodbecks, who shares Greta Dise's goals of generating public interest and demand for mohair and cashmere. "Angora goats don't have as offensive an odor as do some of the breeds and they aren't 'escape artists' like dairy goats."

Leslie's job on a farm where Angora goats were included in the livestock variety raised there led her to "fall in love" with the gentle breed. She and her husband Ron already kept a few sheep on their 13-acre farm near Glenville, so adding her first Angora goats five years ago was an easy venture to try. The couple now has a flock of 25 registered breeding animals, along with a small flock of wethers she keeps for their fiber production.



Mohair fiber from her Angora goats is spun into yarn by Greta Dise.

"Goat's are browsers and sheep are grazers, so they work well together," says Leslie.

Because Angora goats do like to browse on what might often be considered weeds or pest plants, their appetites make them useful for clearing old pastures or brushy undergrowth. That same tendency, however, causes their long fleeces to pick up and retain bits of leaves, twigs, weeds and grasses that contaminate the fleece.

"With mohair, you have to wash it and wash it and wash it more to get the fleece clean," said Leslie.

Marketing their mohair production is a challenge Greta, Leslie and other members of the fledgling fiber producers association are tackling, both as a group and in their own individual pursuits. Since most of the members' flocks are small, amounts of fiber generated at a shearing are not enough to justify the time and costs of hauling it to a wool pool.

Thus, their involvement in creative marketing on their own is of necessity.

Several PMCGA members have found that sheep and wool festivals in the region are useful for helping to generate increased interest and demand for their production. Hand spinners, knitters, and weavers often attend such festivals in search of special fleeces or yarns not readily available through mass retail marketing

Have your corn planted yet? We do. Well, at least a little bit of it.

It's not planted in very orderly rows. Planting depth is probably not ideal for optimum emergence. And the location site is awfully grassy.

In fact, the corn's planted in grass. Back yard grass. All over the backyard grass. Under piles of leaves. Scattered around various spots in the flower beds. Probably some under the woodpile, too.

Credit for these purposeful, but random, acts of corn planting goes to Squanto.

Remember Squanto of the history books? He was the native American credited with teaching the Pilgrims how to plant corn, thus enabling them to survive through the harsh, sparse, New England winters. Our Squanto is a native, but of the four-legged variety. It's a squirrel with a penchant for corn tillage. And we suspect it's a "she," rather than a "he," probable mother of the five baby squirrels that rampaged through the maple trees last summer.

For years, no squirrel dared venture near the yard, due to our vigilant cat patrol. During last winter's enduring cold and deep snow cover, a pack of the local, hungry bushy-tails figured the sunflower-filled birdfeeders and ears of corn were easier pickings than prying acorns from under packed snow and ice. And the cats were finding the barn to be far warmer than squirrel chasing in two-feet-deep drifts.

One female took a liking to the place and never left, raising her family in the maple farthest from the house. Several of the babies also remain. On occasion, we'll have up to four fat, furry, gray bodies playing tag around the trees, investigating the patio furniture, rooting in the flower beds and hanging upside-down on a tree trunk deftly nibbling the centers out of kernels of corn from a cob impaled on a spike there. . .

So, in preparation for a repeat of last winter's critter visits, I picked up a couple of bags of corn in nearby fields where the forage harvester had run down stalks while maneuvering for turns. As fast as we spike a cob on the tree, the squirrels clean it off.

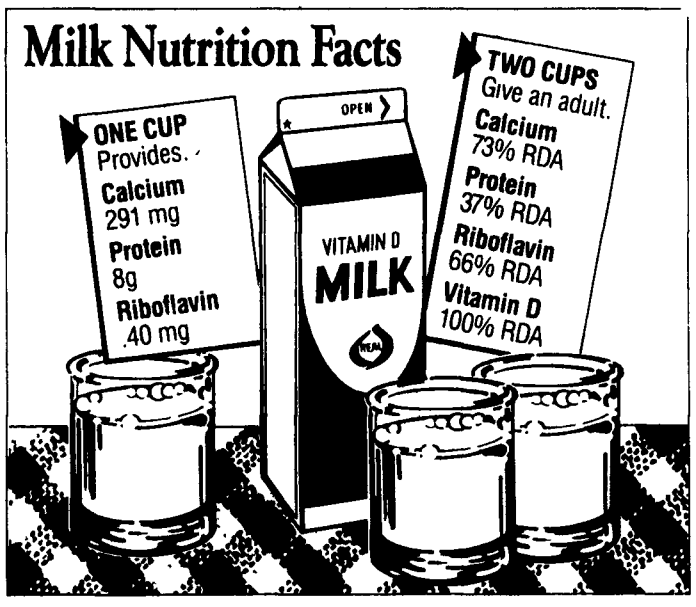
But, I haven't been so quick to replace those bare cobs with full ones since corn planting got underway. One morning last week, I watched from the kitchen window as Squanto stuffed two kernels of corn into her cheeks, scampered down the tree, dug a hole under the washline, planted one kernel, neatly covered it with ground, moved a few yards away and repeated the procedure. She continued that process for the five minutes or so I observed this performance. Squanto and her kids are also efficient homebuilders.

Almost daily, you can spy at least one of them working its way across the yard, stuffing dry leaf after dry leaf into its mouth, until leaves protrude in all directions and it would seem impossible to stuff another one in. Then, the leaf gatherer will sprint up a tree trunk and disappear, returning shortly after for another mouthful.

Now, three of the big maples each has a large, round nest high in the branches, thickly packed clumps of maple leaves held together apparently with sure-stick Squirrelly-Nest Super Glue. Or maybe woven together with baling string. How a "dumb animal" can make a collection of dried up leaves stay together 60 feet up in a tree with the winds that blow down over the hills is an awesome mystery of Mother Nature.

A half-hour after first spying Squanto the Squirrel Cornplanter, I glanced back out the window. She was still digging holes and planting kernels of corn, two at each trip. And the corn cob was nearly bare.

We really enjoy feeding and watching the squirrels and the birds that share this place. But I'm not really looking forward to mowing a cornfield all next summer.



Goat-Hair Fibers

Her first two Spanish-bred goats were a Christmas present to Binnie Roig. With Angora rabbits and longhaired sheep already on the Dalmatia R1 farm owned by her and and her husband, Keith, the goats were a natural addition to round out the variety of natural fibers she intended to blend for crafting use.

Binnie Roig now scours and dyes the fibers from her goats and sends it away to have it commercially carded and blended. She then sells the various blends of wool, mohair, cashmere and angora fibers to spinners.

Leslie does some niche marketing of the curley, lustrous mohair from her flock as beards for handcrafted Santas and as natural-looking hair for dolls. Mohair also readily takes to dyeing, turning rich, deep colors that blend well and enhance the shades of other natural fibers.

One customer she remembers was specifically looking for fibers produced in York County because she wanted to give holiday presents that originated from her home locale

"There's a lot more interest in natural fibers in recent years," said Leslie. "Lots more women seem to want to learn to spin."

"You can't justify it, cost wise," she said. "But, there's the satisfaction of making something yourself, of knowing where it originated."

If you are looking for a recipe but can't find it, send your recipe request to Lou Ann Good, Cook's Question Corner, in care of Lancaster Farming, P.O. Box 609, Ephrata, PA 17522. There's no need to send a SASE. If we receive an answer to your question, we will publish it as soon as possible.

Answers to recipe requests should be sent to the same address.

QUESTION — Joanne Swords, Manheim, would like recipes for hasty pudding and for Cottleston pie. She thinks these are British recipes.

QUESTION — Robin O'Brien, Reading, would like a recipe for a hard candy with nuts called Mooshie. Robin also thanks Sarah Clark from Breezewood for sharing many of her wonderful recipes.

QUESTION — R.W. of Dayton, Va., would like a recipe for Pizza Hut's bread sticks and deep dish pizza dough.

QUESTION — Karen Kinnane, Shartlesville, would like the following recipes: One for a bright red two-layer cake with a creamy white icing like that sold at a snack stand in Renninger's Antiques Market, Adamstown. One for homemade root beer or non-alcoholic ginger beer. One for a cold light as air lemon-flavored dessert served in tiny parfait glasses, which is called Lemon Melting Moments (not a pudding, but with the texture and weight of whipped cream, served in a fancy New York Restaurant in the 1970s).

QUESTION — Karen Kinnane, Shartlesville, would like a recipe for garlic ring bolonga; for clear cranberry jelly that can be molded in shapes; for a yeast bread shaped like a dragon, which is sold every year at an antique shop on Church Lane, N.J. Karen writes that she has never been able to even taste one because the baker only makes two and the "help" buy them before the sale opens. The dragon appears to have an egg wash which gives a shiny golden brown color and a raisin in the eye.

QUESTION — Mrs. Wayne L. Miller, Bruceton Miles, W. Va., would like recipes using cabbage, for oranges, and for coconuts. She also wants a recipe for pumpkin butter and a very rich cookie dough that is crisp but not hard, which may be icing between layers and served at weddings or on other special occasions. Also, she wants a recipe for frosting used on wedding or birthday cakes that is not greasy. She also wants more salad dressings made from scratch.

QUESTION — Mrs. Lewis Kofron, Claymont, Del., wants a recipe for Philadelphia sticky buns.

QUESTION — Louise Graybeal, Renick, W.Va., would like a recipe for pancake syrup that is light in calories.

QUESTION — I.M. Filler, Brookfield, Mass., would like a recipe for stuffed pumpkin or as one friend called it, Poor Man's Turkey. She thinks it is an old New England recipe.

QUESTION — A reader would like a recipe for raise cakes that her grandmother made years ago. She knows the cakes contained yeast, mashed potatoes, and had a sugar glaze on top. The cakes were always made in a single layer in cake pans.

QUESTION — Jean Nestler, Halifax, would like a recipe for lime gelatin and cottage cheese salad that was served at the Harvest House Restaurant in Colonial Park during the early 1970s.

QUESTION — Anne Wiegle, Pottstown, would like a recipe for pickled herring. She wrote that years ago, her family made it by cleaning, splitting, and deheading the herring. The fish was salted and packed in barrels. The fish juice leaked out and formed the brine. She needs to know the ratio of salt to pounds of fish.

QUESTION — Velma Winters, Manheim, would like a recipe for baked potato soup.

QUESTION — Anna Lehman, Hershey, would like a recipe for black walnut chipper cake.

QUESTION — Ruth Best, Newburg, wants recipes for diabetic jams and jellies of several different fruit flavors.

QUESTION — Ruth Ann Burke, York, would like a recipe for Firehouse Potato Soup. She had clipped it from this paper several years ago and her family really liked it. Recently, her daughter requested it, but the recipe has been mislaid. Did anyone else clip the recipe?

Dairy Derby Coming To Farm Show

TOWSON, Md. — Knowledge about milk products and the dairy industry could win you cash and U.S. Savings Bonds at this year's Pennsylvania Farm Show, as the Middle Atlantic Milk Marketing Association (MAMMA) presents the "Dairy Derby." At booth 338 in the main exhibition hall, showgoers can watch, and possibly participate in a Hollywood-style gameshow.

The purpose of the exhibit is to educate consumers. Contestants will be asked questions on a variety of dairy-related topics from cows to cottage cheese. Contestants won't have to be agricultural experts, but knowledge about the dairy industry could be profitable.

The "Dairy Derby" will have two parts. First, four contestants will appear on stage and compete against each other as they answer dairy-related questions. Each question will be worth 10 points. The first person to win 50 points will be declared the winner, and will move onto the exciting cash cube.

"The cube is basically an oversized phone booth with a big blower in it," says "Dairy Derby" game show host, Bill Snitcher, MAMMA's Marketing Director.

"Inside the cube will be several hundred dollars in cash, plus certificates for well over $1,000 per day in U.S. Savings Bonds. Once the blower is turned on, the contestant will have one minute to catch what they can, and slip it out of the cube through a small slot. What they are able to get out of the cube is theirs to keep. The trick is to catch the cash or bonds, because inside the cube, it's like standing in the middle of a tornado."

Snitcher adds, "Area dairies and milk processors have been extremely supportive of the "Dairy Derby." The U.S. Savings Bonds are being sponsored by: Clover Farms, Graybill's Dairy, Harrisburg Dairy, Kemps Foods, Lehigh Valley Farms, Lenkerbrook Farms, Rosenberger's Dairy, Turkey Hill Dairy, and Wengert's Dairy."

The "Dairy Derby" will be played for approximately 45 minutes out of each hour, starting at 10 a.m., (except Sunday) and ending at 6 p.m.

Dairy Derby contestant attempts to catch free money to keep. Several hundred dollars and more than $1,000 in U.S. Savings Bonds are released during the one-minute each contestant has to catch what they can. The trick is to catch the cash or bonds, because inside the cube, it's like standing in the middle of a tornado.

Kids Korner

Matt with his parents Melvin and Corena share their love for farming with the Samsels' grandchildren, twins Kayla and Bradley, 4, and Alexis, 18 months. The Samsels make Farm Show a family affair, and spend several nights in Harrisburg during the shows.

There's More To Farm Show Than Winning

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

OLEY (Berks Co.) — Eleven-year-old Matt Samsel has been looking forward to this week all year. It's Farm Show Time!

Samsel is entering two heifer Herefords, Zina and Rosa, and an Angus steer named Bubba in competition.

"Sure, it would be nice to win, but I really don't do it to win," Matt said.

What Matt likes best about the Farm Show is talking with all the other folks who love steers and farming as much as he does.

"You can learn so much by talking with others. It's so neat to meet so many people," Matt said. "I really enjoy the experience."

Now a 7th grader at Oley Junior High School, Matt has a reputation among his school mates and teachers. One teacher summed it up by saying, "Ask him anything about chickens, farms, and tractors, and he can tell you everything."

Farming is Matt's life — nothing seems to come close in capturing his interest.

"I was part of the wrestling team and some other things, but I gave it up for 4-H because I like it a lot better," Matt said.

The family have about 20 head of cattle on their 13-acre Windy Valley Farm. Matt purchased five goats to help keep the weeds down.

"Ever since I can remember I'd follow dad around the place and help out," Matt said.

"He's a real hustler," Matt's dad Melvin said. "He's always hustling to make a buck so he can buy more stock."

After his dad purchased his first steer for him several years ago, Matt has thought up projects to earn more money so that he can go to livestock auctions. Recently, he's been chopping and selling firewood for extra bucks.

Matt and his dad attend a lot of auctions. Matt said that bidding at an auction happens so fast that you must be prepared ahead of time to know exactly how high you want to bid and then stop if the bidding goes above that.

"Unless you go to a sale, you can't imagine seeing all those great animals at Dunwalke Farms," Matt said of the New Jersey sale where he purchased his steer. Peterson and Shaner Farms in Amityville is where Matt purchased a heifer this year.

He's really pleased with Bubba, which he purchased. As soon as he gave the final bid, another bidder offered him an additional $500 on the spot for the steer, but Matt refused.

"I was pleased with what I got and I didn't want to sell," Matt said. "Dad thought I should take the money, but he left it up to me."

Matt's dream is to go West on a combine crew and later buy a farm.

He likes all aspects of farming. Each year he also raises vegetables to enter in competition and local fairs.

His mother, Corena, said that Matt is mechanically inclined and likes to fix his dad's junk. Both collect antique tractors (full-sized) and antique toys.

Although Matt is the only one in the Samsel family eligible to be a 4-H member, the whole family is involved.

"It's a great club," is echoed again and again by Matt and his parents. Not only do club members help one another but also parents help not only their own children but also other members.

"They aren't in it for money and fame. It's just everyone working together," Samsel said.

In addition to the state Farm Show, Matt shows at Oley, Kutztown, and Reading Fairs and at 4-H Round-up.

At the Pennsylvania Farm Show, the Samsels meet people from across the state.

"There're just wonderful people at the Farm Show. We enjoy meeting old friends," Corene said of the families they see each year at the annual event.

"It's a way to learn about different feeding programs and help in showing animals," Matt said.

Like many showmen, Matt spends several evenings sleeping in the barns with his animals.

"We have a lot of fun, and it isn't very quiet," Matt said.

One year, Matt was sound asleep in the hay, when a man started carrying him to a truck because he thought Matt was his son.

After raising animals for showing, the time eventually comes to part with it. This can be traumatic.

Matt said, "When I sold my first steer, he looked at me with his big sad eyes as if to say, 'Are you leaving me here?'"

Matt said, "I'd rather he'd kick me so I wouldn't feel guilty."

All prize money goes into a special fund for college. Matt already decided he's going to Delaware Valley College to major in some type of agriculture.

Matt has two sisters and one brother who are married. His twin niece and nephew, Kayla and Bradley, 4, live with the Samsels. Another niece, Alexis, 18 months, lives nearby and often come to visit. Already the nieces and nephew show an interest in the animals and Grandpa promises to get them started with their own animal as soon as they can join 4-H.

"I can't say enough good about 4-H. Kids learn responsibility, caring, and they meet so many wonderful people in the program."

According to Matt, Farm Show would not be complete without roast beef sandwiches, baked potatoes, and potato doughnuts.

"I also have to eat at least five of each of those things," Matt said.

When Matt enters the show ring, he said, he feels excited and nervous all at the same time. "But it's not important to win first place, I just love to enjoy the experience," he said.

Love Of Maple Keeps This Family Sticking To 100-Year Tradition

CAROLYN N. MOYER
Bradford Co. Correspondent

SYLVANIA (Bradford Co.) — The sweet aroma of maple syrup often fills the air at the farm of Lawrence and Genevieve Roloson, whether it's early spring, when the sap is collected and boiled down to the thick, amber syrup, or throughout the year when the family is busy turning extra syrup into candy, cream, brittle or crumb.

Their maple products and syrup will again be part of the displays at the Farm Show to promote the products and educate people about Pennsylvania maple syrup. They also enter their products in the competition.

"Over the years, no matter where we are, someone will come along and say, 'Where out of Vermont did you get this Pennsylvania maple syrup? I didn't know Pennsylvania made maple syrup,'" said Lawrence, with a chuckle.

Pennsylvania is, in fact, one of the top producers of maple syrup in the United States.

The Rolosons have been exhibiting at the Farm Show since the early 1960s and have won numerous awards for their products.

"As far as our exhibiting of maple products in the farm show," said Lawrence, "we started by sending a little down in the association exhibit. And then if there was some (product) they didn't need for the exhibit, someone from the extension service would take that gallon or half gallon and enter it in the competition. That's how we started. After a year or two, we thought we might as well plan when we're making syrup, to make sure we save a sample of our good grade to enter in the competition."

In the 30 years since, the Rolosons have entered products in almost all the categories from syrup to sugar to baked goods made with maple products.

Besides entering products in the competition, the Rolosons also help with the Pennsylvania Maple Council's stands in the food court and around the large arena where show goers can buy maple cotton candy, maple syrup sundaes, and soft maple yogurt.

The sweet maple products start when sugar maple trees are tapped in late February. Sap is collected until early April.

All the sap from the family's 3,500-4,000 taps is boiled down to syrup immediately and stored in 30-gallon drums. The family also buys sap from another 3,000 taps to boil into syrup.

As orders come in throughout the year, the syrup is bottled or turned into products.

In recent years they've been only able to gather about ½ pint of sap per tap. In better years they have been able to gather over one quart per tap. The sap flows from the trees through rubber tubes, where it is collected in tanks. Then the Rolosons collect the sap and take it to their sugarhouse where it is boiled. Plain sap is about 2.5 percent sugar and it takes about 40 gallons of sap to make one gallon of syrup.

"The fresher the sap, the fresher the syrup," said Lawrence. "We have three evaporators and we may make two or three different grades of syrup at one time."

Roloson blames the smaller harvest on a combination of factors.

"The weather hasn't been right, said Lawrence. "Some of it is, of course, from the stress on the maple trees. They don't have the sugar content that they should have. There's been a lot of pest damage from the gypsy moth and the pear thrip and the Elm Spanworm. All these work on leaves, and if the tree isn't healthy, it won't produce like it did in the past."

To protect the trees, the Rolosons have cut down on the number of taps per tree.

"Some areas are shifting their load from one sugarbush to another. They might tap one sugarbush this year and another next year, giving the trees a chance to grow back," said Roloson. "We go along with what nature provides us."

Generally a tree should be 10-12 inches in diameter before it can be tapped once. That takes about 40 years of growth in a woodlot.

Like many maple producers in the Endless Mountains Maple Syrup Producers Association, the Rolosons are upholding a tradition started many, many years ago.

"The operation's been in the family for over 100 years," said Lawrence. "My great grandfather moved into the area in the 1880s and from there it's been a family affair for a good many years."

At first the family made only enough syrup for their own use and for neighbors. But when his father took over, he started making a little more to sell or barter for products they needed.

"They'd make up some maple sugar and sell it down at the local store for other kinds of things like other kinds of sugar or butter or flour or whatever they'd need," said Lawrence.

They didn't start selling the maple syrup itself until the 1930s.

"At that time, we'd buy tin cans at the local hardware for $.15 each. Now they're up to $1.75 each. And the syrup sold for $.75 to $1 per gallon. Now the price for a gallon in $30 and up," he said.

Genevieve, Lawrence's wife of 50 years, admits that she had never had experience making maple syrup until she married him, but now is a skilled maple product maker.

"It takes about a gallon and a half of syrup to make eight pounds of candy," explained Genevieve. "There's a knack to (candy making). No matter how long you've done it, you still don't do it right sometimes. I have made it anytime, rain or snow or whatever, and when it's a nice, clear day, it does make better candy."

Today the Rolosons sell their products to friends and neighbors and pedal their products at local flea markets and shows. They also sell to brokers at a wholesale price who resell the product at retail.

The syrup business was at one time a second career for the Rolosons who ran a 500-acre dairy farm. About three years ago they sold their cows and gave up all but 120 acres.

In their lifetime of making syrup, the Rolosons have seen many changes.

"We've gone from buckets to pipeline and from the horses to the tractor to the tanks," he said.

They have also passed the tradition on to their children and grandchildren who all turn out to help at "sugarin' time."

"That's the only way the operation can carry on is to have the help turn out when it's needed," said Lawrence.

Genevieve and Lawrence Roloson enjoy bites of their homemade maple candy.

Genevieve Roloson prepares to pour the maple candy into molds. To make the candy, she heats the syrup to 30 degrees above the boiling point of water and then allows it to cool to about 185 degrees. Here the syrup flows from the stainless steel "pig" into a stainless steel bin, where it is stirred with an auger. When the syrup starts to lose its gloss, it is ready to pour into the rubber molds where it hardens.

Scooper Bowl To Benefit Children With Cancer

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The third annual Farm Show "Scooper Bowl" will be held Sunday, January 8, from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m., on the second level of the northeast building of the Pennsylvania Farm Show Complex.

The ice cream "Scooper Bowl" features an all-you-can-eat ice cream festival with entertainment by the Penn State Nittany Lion and a media ice cream making contest.

Proceeds from the event will benefit children with cancer and their families through the Four Diamonds Fund of the Hershey Medical Center. The cost to enter the "Scooper Bowl" will be $3 for adults and $2 for children. Advance tickets will be sold on Saturday of the show for $2. Tickets are available by contacting the Four Diamonds Fund at (717) 531-6086.

"Scooper Bowl" will feature a variety of frozen dairy products including ice cream and novelties such as ice cream sandwiches. The one-time donation to enter the "Scooper Bowl" area allows visitors to enjoy all of the ice cream they can eat.

The Four Diamonds Fund raises approximately 99 percent of their funds from community organizations and events. Annually, the Fund supports over 350 children with cancer.

Through these donations and other funding, the Fund provides one hundred percent coverage of hospital bills not covered by family insurance. Additional monies from the Fund are used to support programs at the Medical Center including children's cancer research.

The Fund was created to provide families with support for the tremendous financial burden during a child's hospitalization.

A special media ice cream making contest will be held at noon during the "Scooper Bowl." Participants will create their own recipes and then hand-crank their recipe.

Flavors for this year's contest include "Millersburg Malted Munchie," "WINK's Kitchen Sink Surprise" and "Big Scoop." In addition, media personalities' flavors will be made by a professional ice cream manufacturer so that "Scooper Bowl" visitors can choose their own favorites.

Pennsylvania ice cream companies will be donating their product and personnel for the event. Each company will have its own booth for product sampling. Participants include Coleman's Ice Cream, of Lancaster; Fike's Dairy, of Uniontown; Hershey Creamery Company, of Harrisburg; Jack & Jill Ice Cream Company, of Bensalem; and Turkey Hill Dairy Inc., of Conestoga.

Pennsylvania's ice cream industry is the second largest in the country. The abundant supply of fresh cream and milk makes Pennsylvania an excellent location for ice cream manufacturing.

Pennsylvania's Dairy Promotion Partners - the American Dairy Association and Dairy Council, Mid East UDIA, and Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program - have been collectively promoting dairy products on behalf of the state's dairy farmers since 1989.

For further information about the ice cream "Scooper Bowl" or the media ice cream making contest, call (717) 787-6903.

Thirty-Pound Cheese Football Unveiled At Game

Unveiling the 30-pound cheese football to local Ithaca media were New York State Dairy Princess Jennifer Emerling and Ag Radio Network President Ed Slusarczyk, who donated the cheese. Also assisting were left to right: Cortland County Dairy Princess Jonelle Smith, Tioga County Dairy Princess Holly Howland, Chemung County Dairy Princess Anita Lant (behind Ed), Tompkins County Dairy Princess Carrie Gunning and Schyler County Dairy Maid Valerie Hoffman.

ITHACA, N.Y. — As part of a national campaign, ADADC promoted cheese during football season with tailgating festivities. In addition to television advertising, supermarket demonstrations and radio promotions, New York dairy princesses promoted cheese at a variety of special events.

New York State Dairy Princess, Jennifer Emerling, a freshman at Cornell University, organized a cheese promotion at the Cornell vs. Brown game on October 29. Attracting the students to the display was a 30-pound cheese football, sculpted by a Cornell art student. The cheese was part of the 150-pound block of NYS Cheddar cheese donated by Ed Slusarczyk, president of Ag Radio Network. He bought the cheese for a record $1,200, on Dairy Day at the NYS Fair, at the annual Big Cheese Auction.

After the unveiling for local Ithaca media, the delicious and nutritious NYS Cheddar cheese was sampled by fans entering the stadium.

Price Choppers went the extra mile for ADADC this fall. Outside this store in Colonie, New York, an actual tailgate party was created promoting cheese with tailgating festivities. Shoppers were given cheese samples and recipes at 1,000 supermarket demonstrations in ADADC's marketing area.

After the rush and bustle of Christmas activities which included making two big meals for visiting family members, I finally get a chance to sit down and reminisce.

Recently, I read a travel article on Watkins Glen in New York. It reminded me of the first time that I saw this geological wonder. In 1928 my Shreiner grandparents took a several day trip and took me along with them.

My grandfather had a new Buick and as it was summer, we rode in the open car. If it rained, I lay on the floor in the back and covered myself with a blanket. We took along a supply of food and only stopped at the grocery store for more provisions. It was a leisurely drive through New York's vineyards.

When we arrived my grandmother did not think that she could make the 832 steps to the top of the gorge and so a taxi took her to the top while I and my grandfather and aunt walked. The 1 1/2 miles long trail goes through three short tunnels and behind three waterfalls. The largest waterfall is 60 foot Central Cascade. The narrow creek drops 545 feet through cliffs of shale.

One night we stayed in a hotel on the main street of a small town and it was so noisy that we had a hard time falling asleep. And, the one bed was unstable with a headboard and a footboard that both leaned toward each other. We feared it would collapse.

This trip is one of my first memories of sleeping away from home. But it is a pleasant memory and surpasses more recent visits to the same 800-acre park that opened to the public in 1863. It is a trip worth taking.

Dairy Fun At Farm Show

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Pennsylvania's Dairy Promotion Partners will implement a variety of activities featuring milk and dairy products at the upcoming Pennsylvania Farm Show, Jan. 7-12, 1995 in Harrisburg. Together, these organizations will sponsor a butter sculpture, the third annual ice cream "Scooperbowl" fundraiser, "Dairy Fun Night," and a dairy promotion exhibit at the Farm Show Comoplex. Pennsylvania's Dairy Promotion Partners include American Dairy Association and Dairy Council, Mid East United Dairy Industry Association, and the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program.

Butter Sculpture

For the fifth consecutive year, an 800-pound sculpture will be on display in the McClay Street lobby at the Farm Show complex. The 1995 sculpture will commemorate the 50th anniversary of World War II. Additionally, a video depicting the role of the dairy industry during W.W. II will be on display above the sculpture.

Scooperbowl

The third annual ice cream "Scooperbowl" is a fundraiser which benefits the Four Diamonds Fund for children with cancer. The event will be Jan. 8 from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Farm Show visitors can participate in an "all-you-can-eat" ice cream event when a donation is made to the Four Diamonds Fund. Ice cream products are donated by area dairy processors.

A celebrity ice cream making contest will also take place with media personalities from eight Harrisburg-area radio and TV stations. Participants will develop and churn their favorite homemade ice cream flavors.

Dairy Fun Night

The Dairy Promotion Partners will hold "Dairy Fun Night" Tuesday, Jan. 10, beginning at 6:30 p.m. Local media and agricultural dignitaries will compete in a series of events including Dairy Olympics, a cow milking contest and a cow-pie tug-of-war.

Joint Exhibit

The Dairy Promotion Partners' joint exhibit, located in the North Building of the Farm Show Complex, will feature two 27-inch "cow robots." The cows will entertain Farm Show visitors as they share messages about the goodness of dairy foods.

Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Partners conduct advertising, marketing, promotion and nutrition education programs on behalf of dairy farmers throughout Pennsylvania.

Talking Cows Debut At Farm Show

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The 1995 Pennsylvania Farm Show, to be held January 7-12, 1995 at the Farm Show Complex in Harrisburg, will be the setting for the "Rosie and Ellie" Show featuring animated talking cows.

The robotic characters, located at the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Partners' booth in the north building, will entertain children and adults with their programmable messages and animation.

"Rosie" and "Ellie" will host talk shows about topics such as nutrition, the Pennsylvania dairy industry, ice cream trivia, and other topics related to Pennsylvania's leading agricultural industry. The cows also have the ability to talk "live" to visitors at the booth. Throughout the day they will take breaks to chat with interested show-goers.

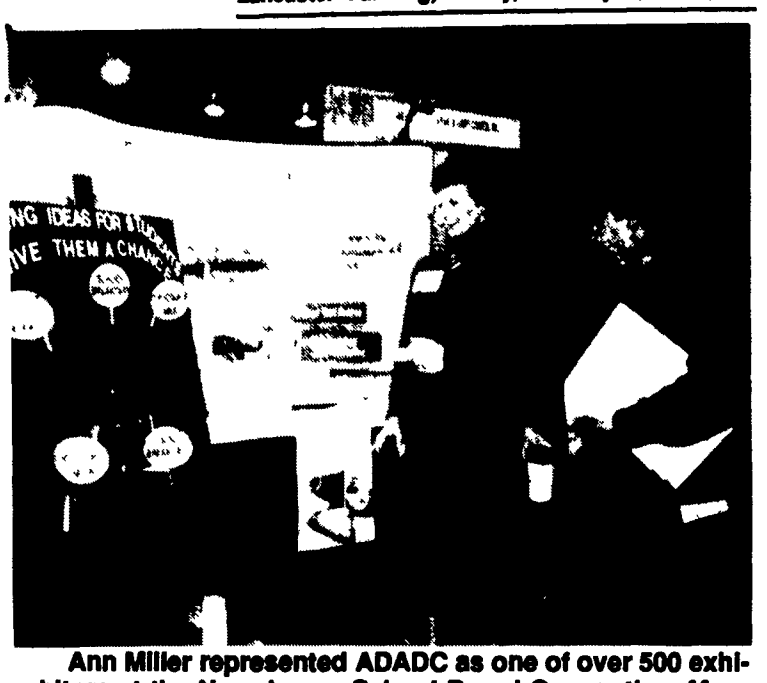
The Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Partners — the American Dairy Association and Dairy Council, Mid East UDIA, and Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program — will also offer T-shirts and sweatshirts for sale at the booth. The items will feature a variety of cow slogans and colors.

The Partners' booth will be open from 8 a.m. until 8 p.m. each day of the show except Sunday when the booth will be open from 11 a.m. until 5 p.m.

On behalf of Pennsylvania dairy farmers, the Partners also sponsor the Farm Show butter sculpture. Crafted with 800 pounds of real butter, the sculpture will be located in the main lobby of the Farm Show Complex.

This year's piece will be a tribute to dairy farmers and soldiers during World War II. An informative video accompanies the sculpture and explains the history of the dairy farmer and the contributions made by both dairy farmers and soldiers from Pennsylvania during the war.

Further information about the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Partners' booth is available by calling (717) 787-6903.



Ann Miller represented ADADC as one of over 500 exhibitors at the New Jersey School Board Convention. More than 10,000 school board administrators, board members and business officials attended the meeting, many of which stopped by to learn the benefits of chocolate milk as an excellent option to include in school feeding programs.

ADADC Gives Chocolate Milk A Boost

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Nutrition education specialists are promoting chocolate milk to school districts across ADADC's marketing area. Based on research that shows kids eat more food when they drink chocolate milk and the fact that chocolate milk does not increase hyperactivity, the promotion efforts are successful in changing chocolate milk perception.

The promotion efforts include a new 10-minute video focusing on the benefits of offering chocolate milk to students in school feeding programs. Three health professionals are interviewed in the video including a well-known pediatrician, a director of a WIC clinic and a researcher at New York University. The video encourages school districts to offer chocolate milk by making the following points:

- Kids like chocolate milk
- Kids eat more of their meal when they have chocolate milk;
- Chocolate milk does not cause hyperactivity.

In addition to the video, brochures were developed targeting school administrators, food service directors and parents covering the same points. They were included in a mailing to every food service director in New York and northeastern Pennsylvania.

ADADC's consumer promotions staff are also working with milk processors to create more appealing packaging for chocolate milk.

State Farm Show Features 5,500 Animals

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — More than 5,500 animals have been entered for competition at the 79th Pennsylvania State Farm Show, January 7-12 in Harrisburg. Their owners will try to capture their share of the record $228,981 available in premiums.

The Farm Show is a showcase of Pennsylvania's leading industry, agriculture, and a tribute to the 51,000 farm families who provide essential food and fiber products to our neighbors in Pennsylvania and others around the world.

Poultry judging leads off the agenda on Friday morning, prior to the public opening of the Farm Show, as 1,928 caged chickens ducks, geese and bantams vie for the attention of the judges. About 400 champions will then be placed on display throughout the show along the lower concourse of the Large Arena.

Open swine competition gets started at 9 a.m. in the Small Arena on Friday, with 195 gilts entered in eight breeds. The supreme champion will be named at 9:30 a.m. the following day. Many of these gilts will then be sold, starting on Saturday morning at 10 a.m. in the Small Arena, through the Pennsylvania Cooperative Swine Breeders Association.

Saturday is the day for judging of rabbits, which have become very popular with hobbyists and those looking for alternate food choices. Clearly 700 rabbits have been entered in this year's show, sanctioned by the American Rabbit Breeders Association. The best of breed, show, and variety rabbits will then be placed on exhibit for the remainder of the show, and some rabbits will be sold at auction at 5 p.m. in the Small Arena.

Horses take the eye of the judges on Sunday at 8 a.m. in the Large Arena with Clydesdales, Percherons and Belgians, followed by the naming of the Supreme Champion at 11:30. Draft horse hitched competition dominates the afternoon program in the Large Arena with cart and team classes. Horse pulling fans should plan to attend the Farm Show on Tuesday evening, with the popular team competition getting under way at 4:30 p.m. Pony pulling is scheduled for Wednesday evening at 6:30, bringing the week's total number of horse entries to 171.

Because of the enormous interest, the sheep show is now split by meat breeds and wool breeds. The judging of meat breeds will start on Sunday at 9 a.m. in the Small Arena and resume on Monday at 8 a.m. A supreme champion will then be selected from the seven breeds before they depart and allow the wool breeds to take over the west barn. Wool breeds will be judged on Wednesday in the Small Arena, beginning at 5 p.m., and concluding after 8 p.m. with their supreme champion. Nearly 500 head entered for the open sheep shows.

More than 300 head of beef cattle take to the show ring on Monday, starting at 8 a.m. in the Large Arena. The selection of the beef supreme champion from among the five breeds is slated for 2:30 p.m.

Dairy Day is Tuesday and 330 cows are entered for open competition among six breeds which gets under way at 8 a.m. the Large Arena. The selection of the supreme champion dairy cow is scheduled for 2:30 p.m. Junior dairy exhibitors follow with their 178 entries at 3 p.m.

The Farm Show turns its attention on 4-H and FFA exhibitors on Tuesday and Wednesday, Youth Day, as hundreds of club members take to the showrings with their breeding stock and market animals. More than 400 entries will compete in junior market swine classes, starting at 8:30 a.m. on Tuesday in the Small Arena and wrapping up with the champion about 2:45 p.m. that afternoon.

Junior market lamb classes, with 209 entries, start at 8 a.m. on Wednesday in the Small Arena and conclude with the naming of a junior champion market lamb at 11 a.m. Junior beef breeding takes place in the Large Arena, as 83 cows start before the judges at 8:30 a.m. Junior steer classes, with 65 entries starts at noon in the Large Arena, with the naming of the grand champion steer scheduled for 3:15 p.m.

The annual Junior Livestock Sale on Thursday salutes all the young exhibitors and recognizes their achievements in livestock competition. Proceeds from the auction go to the youngsters, with a small percentage going to run the Farm Show Scholarship Fund .

Can Ethical Behavior Compete With Prize Money?

NEWARK, Del. — An incident that occurred during state fair season has put the spotlight on the kind of behavior that gives competition a bad name. At a junior livestock show in the midwest, the grand champion was tampered with to make it show better. The deception was uncovered by the meat inspector at the processing plant. It didn't happen in Delaware, but according to Jay Sparks, state 4-H coordinator at the university of Delaware, the potential for this kind of abuse exists no matter where you live.

"Anyone who works with children — 4-H leaders, teachers, coaches and parents — has to be vigilant to make sure these unethical practices don't occur," says Sparks. "It's up to us to instill in youngsters the importance of playing by the rules, and of being good losers as well as good winners. Kids should be reminded to offer the winner a friendly handshake to acknowledge the achievement."

Adults have a responsibility to encourage fair play among children, Sparks adds: "Too often deceptive practices at competitions require the involvement and expertise of misguided adults. Make clear that a winning-at-all-cost attitude hurts everyone and obscures the real reason for the competition — fun and a great learning experience."

Her advice to leaders is to express directly that you expect ethical behavior and that recognition comes in ways other than first place.

"Recognition, not winning, is the key to giving a child the best experience," Sparks maintains. "Whatever the outcome, youngsters who try to the best of their ability and who complete the projects they start have achieved as much as the first-prize recipient."

Rewards come in many forms, not just the blue ribbon and prize money that too many people have come to believe are the reasons for a project, Sparks notes. A warm smile, a pat on the back, a kind word of encouragement or a written note expressing pride in the child's accomplishments are the true rewards of competition.

In Delaware, 4-H'ers are encouraged in positive competition both on an individual basis and as teams. For example, in New Castle County horse clubs, the individual is challenged to reach structured levels of performance for which youngsters set their own goals. In regional and state team bowl contests, teens are encouraged to use their collective knowledge and skills to compete.

"Following the rules has its own rewards. We have to teach children by defining what's expected in competition and by being good role models ourselves," Sparks says. "The best thing adults can do for youngsters is to encourage them to set goals, to complete projects, to aim for higher levels of competence and to strive for a personal best."

N.Y. Cheese Promoted At New Jersey Show

EDISON, N.J. — Pounds and pounds of New York state cheese revealed to buyers, the secret that experts have know all along: New York state cheeses rival the best of Wisconsin, Vermont and Europe.

In cooperation with New York State Cheese Manufacturer's Association, ADADC displayed a variety of cheese delicacies in a tailgating atmosphere to the attendees of the Eastern Dairy Deli Association trade show in Edison, New Jersey.

The theme, "From Tailgating to Elegant Entertaining with Cheese" was emphasized through special recipes prepared by a culinary arts school professor. From fresh mozzarella, to miniature calzones, to cheese and raspberry blintzes and an ethnic delight, tiramisu, there was no mistaking the quality of New York State cheese.

Out of 1,000 exhibitors at the Eastern Dairy Deli Association trade show, ADADC was one of three finalists in "Best Booth Presentation" and "Best Packaging" categories.

Cholesterol Research Makes Case For Individualized Diets

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Until recently, health scientists assumed that low-fat diets would help reduce everyone's risk of coronary heart disease (CHD). Based on new findings, however, some scientists now question the benefits of global dietary recommendations, and are considering individualized guidelines for heart disease prevention.

Research by Ronald Krauss, head of the department of molecular medicine at the University of California's Lawrence Berkeley Laboratory, indicates that only a small percentage of the population needs to be overly cautious about its consumption of fat to reduce CHD risk. Krauss's laboratory program is supported in part through a grant from the National Dairy Promotion and Research Board and is administered by National Dairy Council.

The research indicates that "pattern B" — an increase in small, dense low-density lipoproteins (LDLs), or "bad" cholesterol particles — combined with high levels of triglycerides marks those with the greatest risk for CHD. The individuals involved represent about 15% of the population.

In a seven-and-a-half year study of nearly 15,000 male doctors, Krauss and associates matched 312 subjects who had heart attacks with 312 healthy "control" subjects. The 20% of subjects with the smallest and most dense LDL particles, combined with the highest triglyceride levels, had more than three times the risk of heart attacks as the 20% with the largest LDL particles. This remained true even after adjusting for other risk factors — such as the ratio of total cholesterol to high-density lipoproteins (HDLs), obesity, diabetes, high blood pressure and level of physical activity.

Other research studies have shown that, while the presence of pattern B is more common in men, it is an important risk factor for women as well, especially after menopause, Krauss added.

Commenting on the dietary implications of this study, Krauss said that "For CHD prevention, most healthy people simply don't require intensive intervention by dietary means. For the majority of the population, severe restriction of fat, including dairy fat, does not appear to add value."

In fact, restrictive diets can aggravate the underlying risk of heart disease in some individuals, Krauss argued. In a study of 250 men on low-fat, high-carbohydrate diets, Krauss and his associates identified some of the potential dangers of global dietary interventions. They found that the restrictive diets changed the metabolisms of 20%-35% of the study group from a normal lipid profile to that of pattern B. The results of a related study involving women are still being analyzed.

Future efforts by Krauss and his team will involve screening families for genetically based risk profiles in order to build a base for the future ability to identify genes that determine dietary response. This and related research will help further the concept that dietary guidelines should become more individualized, based in large part on differences in genetic makeup.

"The Dairy and Nutrition Council Mid East is very excited about the results of Dr. Krauss's research," said Ann Marie Stazenski RD, LD, director of medical programs. His findings have provided the basis for our efforts to educate health professionals on the need to individualize dietary recommendations."

Dairy and Nutrition Council Mid East is the nutrition education arm of Mid East United Dairy Industry Association.

Farm Show Conducts First Annual Food Drive

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — A statewide food drive is being conducted for the first time at the 1995 Pennsylvania Farm Show, according to State Secretary of Agriculture Boyd E. Wolff. Visitors are encouraged to contribute a few non-perishable food products at the free agricultural exposition, which runs January 7-12 in Harrisburg.

"This worthwhile effort is being conducted on behalf of the Pennsylvania Association of Regional Food Banks," Wolff said. "Easy-to-identify collection barrels will be placed at five strategic entrances to the Farm Show Complex throughout the week."

According to Tim Whelen, executive director of the Southcentral Pennsylvania Food Bank, "Food drives provide us with some of the most valuable foods that are donated to us, because most of them come in retail size and we get such a great variety."

He is very excited about this first-time collection at the Farm Show and indicated the greatest needs are for non-perishable items, especially canned fruits and vegetables, canned meats and fish, and entrees such as stews and pasta meals.

"Ultimately, the goal of our Food Bank is to eliminate hunger. We do this through the collection, storing, and redistribution of food stuffs to a network of charitable feeding programs around southcentral Pennsylvania. We're a supply-driven organization, which means we can only give away what people donate to us. As a result, these food drives are very important toward our abilities of meeting the needs of the hungry," Whelen said.

He estimates that more than 170,000 people, roughly six percent of the population, were served by the 260 feeding programs in the 16-county area of southcentral Pennsylvania during 1994. But there is further cause for concern. Roughly 12 percent of the state's population is at or below the poverty level, and therefore at risk of hunger, according to Whelen.

The Food Bank distributes its foods through various channels, including soup kitchens on-site feeding sights for the elderly or disabled, residential programs such as halfway houses and supplemental feeding programs designed to help prevent emergencies by providing needy people with food on a regular basis.

This is the first time a food drive is actually being held at the State Farm Show, but food donations are often made to charitable organizations at the end of Farm Show Week. The fresh vegetable displays and processed foods from the Food Pantry are delivered to local missions. The butter sculptures have always been created and displayed under extremely sanitary conditions to be donated to local charities afterward.

Things On The Grow

LOIS SZYMANSKI
Maryland Correspondent

There's a new video out for kids that is going to turn some heads. The video, "Tractors, Combines and Things On The Grow" was produced by Cockeysville resident Patti Schindler. The first video in a series she plans to produce with her new company, "Just Our Size Videos", Mrs. Schindler's video shows how farms work, from seed to feed.

"Tractors, Combines and Things On The Grow" takes the viewer on an amazing journey, from the grocery store, into the field, to show just how our food is grown and produced. Kids will be amazed by the fast-growing corn scene that was provided by Media Resources Center at Iowa State University. Shot with time lapse photography, it shows how corn evolves over the course of its growing season. Large portions were filmed on a Lippy Brothers Farm, showing how a combine works, with views from the field, inside the cab of the combine and with incredible footage of the inside workings of a combine showing the machine stripping corn from the cob. The video tape also shows kids how soy beans and green beans are picked and shipped. Crop transportation footage was provided by Archer-Daniels-Midland with shots of trucks dumping their wares at feed mills, grain elevators, trains and the ships that carry farm produced foods to other parts of the world. One scoop dumping grain into a ship is as big as a small house!

Patti Schindler and her son, Blake discover corn!

From the farm, to the factory, this video also makes a stop at a large factory bakery where close up shots show how wheat is ground into flour, then made into large rolls of dough, then into loaves of bread. The journey, which follows a farmer's produce through to the end product, is not just fascinating to kids. Patti Schindler says "A lot of adults who watch the film say, 'I didn't know that!' about parts of it!"

Mrs. Schindler lives on eight acres just outside of Baltimore. She says they own a few horses and lease a pony for her four-year-old son, Blake.

"Blake was the inspiration for the video," says this stay-at-home mom. "Having a child at home, I see how often kids sit down to watch a video. Blake loves tractors

Horse Shoeing Demonstration Set

HARRISBURG (DAUPHIN CO.) — A three-man team is scheduled to present a 90-minute demonstration on draft horse shoeing at the Pennsylvania Farm Show on Wednesday, January 11.

Mike Wharton of York County, along with Bob Davis and Stephen Keeney from North Carolina, make up the team. The trio will set up a forge, anvil and hand tools about 4:15 in the Large Arena.

"Hand-made draft shoeing is just making a come back," according to Wharton, "and that's what we're trying to promote. We are also interested in promoting good shoeing technique, and possibly putting together a program for competition in the future.

His team includes a fireman, striker, and floorman. The shoes are actually made by the fireman, who turns the shoe and the striker who uses a 12-pound hammer. The floorman prepares the horse's hoof and nails the shoe on. A draft horse shoe is substantially larger than that of an average horse, according to Wharton. It measures about 18 inches in length, from 3/8 to 1/2 inch thick and 1-1/4 inches wide.

The team has received training from six-time world champion Grant Moon from the Isle of Man, British Isles in the Irish Sea. They placed third out of 15 teams at their first competition in Boston recently, which was based on time and quality of work.

The Grow

and big equipment," she says, "and there was just nothing out there. As farm areas are getting smaller over the years I feel it is important to show children where food really comes from," she adds. "But, the tractors and large equipment make the subject more interesting for kids!"

With support from her accountant husband, Bruce, Mrs. Schindler began making contacts. She found child narrators, Adam and Rachel Sincell through a consultant, Glenn Tolbert. She found cooperation from John Deere (who helped her with the technical terms and supplied footage), Giant Foods Bakery (where footage was shot) and especially Donald Lippy and his family on the Lippy Brothers Farms in Carroll and Baltimore counties, Maryland, where the farm scenes were recorded. Mrs. Schindler hired free-lance photographers and the filming began in early April 1994.

By November of 1994 the filming was complete. Mrs. Schindler says she worked under the supervision of The American Farm Bureau and The National Corn Growers Association. She consulted with Farm Safety 4 Just Kids throughout the filming to make sure the tape conformed to safety standards.

"I think we made all the right contacts," said Mrs. Schindler who says she did not allow children to be filmed on farm equipment or to do anything that might be construed as dangerous. "I wanted it to be done very professionally." When Maryland Ag in the Classrooms viewed the tape they promptly ordered 100 copies for use in the classrooms.

A Vermont fulfillment company is handling wholesale, retail, and packaging and is distributing her video with the help of a 1-800 number.

Mrs. Schindler says they have already sold "hundreds" of copies of the video and she is pleased with how it is doing. "When I looked at a statement from Vermont with the recent sales figures, I was surprised," she says. "My whole goal was to educate city kids about farming," she says, "But more orders are from rural areas than metropolitan areas!"

"Our video is done entirely from a child's point of view," Mrs. Schindler says. But it is obvious to the viewer that the film, "Tractors, Combines and Things On The Grow" is not just for kids! To order the video, which is approximately 30 minutes in length, and retails at $19.95, interested persons or businesses may call 1-800-808-FARM.

Food Court, Food Pantry, Or Food Market?

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — It is the hard work and dedication of Pennsylvania's 51,000 farm families and 2,300 food processing companies that keeps agriculture the number one industry of the commonwealth.

The Pennsylvania State Farm Show salutes the industry and all the organizations, companies and individuals who keep the industry growing.

Statewide commodity associations and food processors will have exhibits at the 79th annual Pennsylvania State Farm Show January 7-12.

The Pennsylvania Food Market will resemble a mini trade show when 16 companies come together to promote their food products. Some of Pennsylvania's finest snack foods, candy, spices, processed meats, condiments and beverages will be available for sales and sampling this year in this exhibit in the Family Corner on the upper level of the Northeast Building.

The following companies are scheduled to participate:

• Alderfer Bologna Co., Harleysville - Lebanon and sweet bologna snacks, hams.

LITITZ (Lancaster Co.) — Raymond Rutt, right, is acknowledged by Amos Hurst Jr. of Binkley & Hurst Bros. Inc. for his 20 years of service excellence to the dealership.

Rutt was one of 20 persons recognized for five or more years of service to Binkley & Hurst at the company's recent Christmas banquet.

Binkley & Hurst Bros. Inc. was established by Walter Binkley as a Huber tractor dealership and feed and fertilizer store in 1939. Auger Header For Ford Bidirectional Tractors

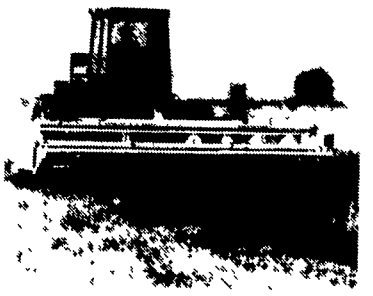
NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — The new Model 2300 BF adaptor frame allows operators to match 2200 Series New Holland auger headers to Ford Bidirectional™ tractors.

The heavy-duty auger header is available in 12-foot, 14-foot, 16-foot and 18-foot cutting widths. The conditioner features 102-inch-wide chevron intermeshing rubber rolls to form windrows or swaths from 38 to 84 inches wide.

"The Model 2300 BF gives Bidirectional tractor owners the cutting and conditioning capability of a self-propelled Model 2550 windrower," said Product Manager Bob Hatz. "Actually, the headers are exactly the same. The Model 2300 BF adaptor mounts on the cab end of the Bidirectional using the tractor's drive-in quick-attach loader mounting system. A separate PTO pump provides ample hydraulic power for the header. The header hydraulic tilt option makes it easy to change guard angle from the cab and there is ample lift capacity and clearance for crossing ditches and rough ground. The four-wheel-drive Bidirectional easily goes through softer ground, too."



The New Holland Model 2300 BF adaptor mounts an auger header onto Ford Bidirectional tractors using the tractor's loader drive-in quick-attach mounting system. A separate PTO hydraulic pump provides ample hydraulic power for the header. A pull-type windrower can be used in conjunction with the "2300 BF" to double cutting capacity.

The New Holland auger headers feature dual counter-stroking sickles for smoother cutting and reduced vibration. The auger flighting is five inches deep to handle heavy crops. In addition, the auger floats up to 1¼ inches to avoid plugging. Roll pressure is controlled by a crank-adjusted torsion bar linkage.

Bidirectional tractor owners can double cutting capacity by towing a pull-type Model 116 windrower while pushing the mounted auger header. "That combination is hard to match in large acreage alfalfa production," Hatz said.

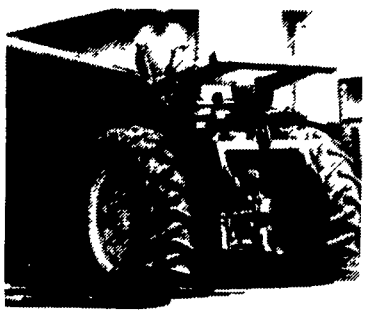
Deere Expands ROPS Offerings For Older Tractors

MOLINE, Ill. — John Deere has introduced a new foldable ROPS (Rollover Protective Structure) for row-crop tractors and priced it without markup as part of a program to encourage the use of ROPS and seat belts on older tractors.

The new model enables John Deere to offer owners a choice of either rigid or foldable ROPS kits for older Deere row-crop tractors.

Like the foldable ROPS for utility tractors announced in 1992, the new row-crop version is designed to be folded easily in height limiting situations, such as low doorways to barns and sheds, and locked upright as soon as overhead clearance permits.

In addition to promoting the benefits of ROPS and seat belts, and providing a foldable ROPS for low-clearance situations, the company's ROPS program features attractive pricing to help encourage customers to equip their older tractors with a rollover protective structure and seat belt.



A new foldable ROPS (Rollover Protective Structure) for older John Deere row-crop tractors is priced without markup as part of a program to encourage farmers to have their tractors equipped with a ROPS and seat belt.

"We believe reducing the selling price of rollover protective structures can be an element in convincing a customer to install ROPS on an older tractor," said Bud Porter, vice president of marketing for the U.S. and Canada at Deere & Company. "That's why we adopted what we call 'pass-through pricing' for ROPS kits. Very simply, that means we sell them to John Deere dealers at or below our average manufacturing cost and ask the dealers to sell the kits without margin to reduce the effect cost may have on a farmer's decision to have ROPS and a seat belt installed on an older tractor."

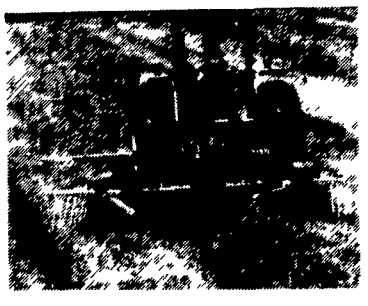
Porter said ROPS kits range from $250 to $500 in the U.S. He said that farmers who want more information about the ROPS program and what's available for their tractors should contact their local John Deere dealer.

Rake Tedder Rakes Over 13-Ft. Wide

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — The New Holland Model 255 rake tedder rakes more than 13 feet wide and teds 10-foot 6-inch swaths. The new center-delivery unit is designed for additional durability and reduced maintenance. Tine bars are carried on sealed bearings. Heavy-duty self-centering wheels turn on heat-treated spindles and roller bearings.

"The new Model 255 is an efficient hay-making machine," said Product Manager Bob Hatz. "It converts from a tedder to a rake without tools. The '255' will ted crops for fast curing, rake a pair of wide swaths into a fluffy, uniform windrow, turn windrows, or rake a pair of windrows into a single large windrow, This gives hay growers' management flexibility make fullest use of limited periods of good drying weather. It helps them make fuller use of harvesting machine capacity, too."

The "255" has two tedding modes, a fixed-tine and cam-operated position to let operators match crop and ground conditions.



The Model 255 New Holland rake tedder rakes 13 feet wide. It teds swaths for faster curing, turns windrows, and can rake two windrows into one large fluffy, uniform windrow to make fuller use of high capacity balers and forage harvesters.

Parts Expo Looks Beyond 2000

LAS VEGAS, Nev. — More than 2,400 U.S. and Canadian dealers and employees recently attended New Holland's Parts Expo '94 here at Bally's Hotel and Resort.

The event was established to give dealerships the opportunity to share ideas, learn about future sales and marketing techniques, and purchase parts for their dealerships at special discount prices, according to Peter Bond, New Holland parts business unit manager.

"This Expo is just one of many approaches New Holland is undertaking to help its dealers keep pace in this rapidly evolving equipment industry," Bond said. "It's imperative we give our dealerships the information and the tools to remain competitive in the next decade and beyond."

Bond said that approach was evident through the Expo, where workshops and presentations were given on display merchandising, challenges for the 90s and beyond, parts managers of the future, and New Holland retailing programs for 1995.

Reinforcing New Holland's commitment to the future was the company's chief operating officer in North America, W.T. "Tom" Kennedy. He offered Expo attendees a glimpse at New Holland's research and development objectives, new products, improved parts availability and New Holland's goal to be the "best-in-class" in the coming year.

Kennedy also gave us update on the company's new name and trademark, noting that it marks the successful integration between two large global companies - Ford New Holland and Fiatagri. "It's a new name that carries with it a great history and tradition," he said, noting that 1995 will mark the hundredth anniversary of when the name New Holland first appeared in the equipment business.

During the event, dealers and employees had the opportunity to visit New Holland's "Idea" parts store located inside the Parts Expo.

Angus Journal Names Land Stewardship Winner

CROOKSVILLE, Ohio— Don, Tom and Bob Pletcher of Pletcher Brothers farm, located here, were named the eastern regional winner of the 1994 Land Stewardship Award presented by the Angus Journal, official publication of the American Angus Association.

Pletcher Brothers work side by side to carry on their father's farm and dream. He taught them the importance of conserving soil, water, and other natural resources to benefit the environment as well as their farming business.

Don, Tom, and Bob began their full-time farming partnership in 1970. They manage 675 deeded acres and 393 leased acres. The beef operation consists of 160 brood cows, including 60 registered Angus, and 260 head of market cattle which are fed out each year. They crop corn, alfalfa-grass hay, small grains and pasture.

The farms are characterized as moderately rolling with Westgate silt loam soil. The deep, moderately well-drained soil was formed by wind blown silts.

They were among the first in this Ohio region to use conservation tillage. This innovative approach to solve a resource management problem was a bold move at the time. By 1979, the Pletchers were planting all of their corn using the no-till planting method.

The three brothers have also addressed other soil erosion challenges on their farms by planning out and adopting a variety of common-sense conservation practices. Their steepest ground is maintained in permanent hayland. This allows them to more intensively manage the land for a single crop. They have also established new forage seedings by using no-till establishment methods.

Soil testing is done on a yearly basis for each field. This helps them identify fields where lime and fertilizer may be needed. It saves not only time and money, but also conserves energy resources by not over- or under-applying lime and fertilizer to their fields. It also reduces the possibility of ground water pollution from excess nitrates.

Special attention is given to their crop fields where corn silage has been harvested. A cover crop of rye is established on these fields to prevent soil erosion through the winter and early spring. Tritacale is another innovative plant material they have experimented with for cover crop protection.

This cover crop practice also controls wind erosion. Their soils were formed out of windblown silts and the cover crop keeps these lighter soil particles in place. In the spring, corn is then no-tilled directly into the winter cover crop.

Several seep areas in Pletchers' pastures have been developed into livestock watering facilities. This prevents erosion problems and increases livestock productivity. By providing fresh, clean water in different pastures, they are able to more effectively manage the cattle. This flexibility allows them the option of rotating the cow herds to different pastures based on forage conditions and seasons.

Pletchers will be honored Nov. 14 at the American Angus Association's annual meeting in Louisville, Ky.

Dairy Farmers Cooperative Pays Dividend

JACKS REEF, N.Y. — Syracuse Dairy Farmers Cooperative declared a patronage dividend for 1994 for their members.

Syracuse Dairy Farmers Co-op has consistently paid a patronage dividend to their producer members for several years. Dairy farmer members received their dividend checks at their annual meeting held recently in Jacks Reef.

Stephen Crego of Baldwinsville, N .Y., president at the Co-op, said he was pleased with the performance at the cooperative for the past year and their ability to consistently pay a patronage dividend. Furthermore, their quality market rewards their members with premiums that provide a farm gate price above the minimum established by the Federal Order 2 Market Administrator.

He also stated that the co-op's association with Byrne Dairy of Syracuse, N.Y. has been a very gratifying arrangement. Bill Byrne, of Byrne Dairy, was a guest at the meeting. He echoed Stevens feelings about their association with Syracuse Dairy Farmers.

James Patsos of United Ag Services presented Tamara Crego at Baldwinsville with the outstanding quality award for 1994. This is the second year in a row that Crego received this award.

Officers elected for the coming year were Stephen Crego, Baldwinsville, president; Duane Eibert, Marcellus, vice president; and Mary Crego, Baldwinsville; secretary/treasurer. William Lukins of Marcellus was elected director to replace Lewis Wellington of Skaneateles who retired from dairy farming.

BARN CLEANERS

Built to clean faster... built to last longer!

JAMESWAY

All-forged Hook-Link® chain... available on Super 300 and Super 500 barn cleaners

Extra thick steel at all wear points

IMPORTANT: Look for the "parting line" on any barn cleaner chain you buy. It shows where excess metal has been trimmed off. It is your assurance that the link was totally forged, not just punched out of a flat steel bar with grain flow in one direction only.
You want a totally-forged link because forging changes the grain on the steel, causing it to curve in unbroken flow lines around the contours of the link, giving the link greater strength to serve you longer.

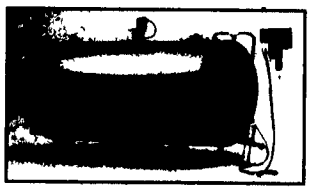
Scroll-Compressor Technology

New in 1994



You may pay less for some dairy farm equipment... but it can cost you more!

Equipment costs are not the only cost of cooling milk

In the long run, total operating costs of a Mueller* milk-cooling system are generally substantially less than those of "bargain-brand" milk-cooling equipment.

Example	Mueller	Competition
Cost of equipment	$31 000	$28 000
Cost of electricity @ 08 kW for 12 000 lbs milk/day for 10 years	$17 550	$22 850
Total operating cost for ten years	$48 550	$50 850
Savings	$ 2 300

BEEFMASTERS GIVE YOU THIS — AND MORE!

Easy calving and remarkable mothering ability are the trademarks of Beefmaster cattle. This reflects the philosophy of Beefmaster breeders who believe that putting a live, healthy calf on the ground and raising that calf to a heavy weaning weight are the two most important requirements in any successful beef cattle program.

But there's much more to the Beefmaster story. This hardy, adaptable breed, which originated some 60 years ago in South Texas, now produces successfully throughout the United States. Many top herds are now located in Eastern and Midwestern states, including Pennsylvania and Virginia.

There's one crucial thing you should know about Beefmasters: This is a "complete" breed, bred and developed to put a balance of important traits in your herd. This is not a single trait breed; it is not a terminal breed.

Beefmasters give you heavy weaning calves that are worth more money. They give you absolutely spectacular replacement heifers. And with these heifers, you get more marketing flexibility. Your Beefmaster or Beefmaster cross heifers can be kept for replacements, sold at weaning or sold for premiums as replacements. There's a growing market for Beefmaster-bred replacement heifers and many cattlemen get considerably more money for their heifers than for their steers.

For a close-up look at how Beefmasters perform in your area, you're welcome to visit our places at any time. Or check out the Beefmaster bull we have enrolled in the Pennsylvania performance testing program at State College. The feeding efficiency and carcass traits of this top young polled bull are being compared to the performance of 74 bulls representing other breeds.

For more information on Beefmaster cattle and BBU programs, write or call the breeders listed below. Or contact Beefmaster Breeders Universal, 6800 Park Ten Blvd., Suite 290 West, San Antonio, TX, 78213, 210-732-3132.

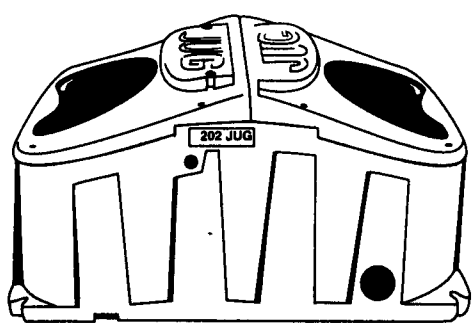
The JUG passes the "winter of '93-'94" test



Remember the c-c-c-c-c-cold winter of '93-'94? Wondering what the next one will bring and how your herd will fair?

Install the energy-efficient JUG to reduce concerns about freezing cattle fountains. Even in the coldest weather, the JUG performed, while the competition's waterers did not.

While the JUG's thick urethane insulation keeps the winter cold out, its patented drawtube recirculates water. Cooler bowl water exchanges with warmer reservoir water to keep bowl water open. The JUG will do its job.

A cold weather test conducted by an Iowa college during the winter of '94 demonstrated its energy efficiency. The JUG used only 108 kilowatts of electricity over four months for a cost of $8.64. A competitor's waterer used 816 kilowatts, costing $65.28, almost eight times as much. The test confirmed the JUG's energy efficiency.

No other waterer equals the Jug for clean, palatable water. Low maintenance, the JUG also meets the requirements for dairy approval.

LLAMAS LLAMAS LLAMAS

If you've been considering starting in llamas, or having a llama for a pet, why not stop in to see our herd.

Our young males start at $500, our weanling females at $2,500, our pregnant females at $3,500. A deposit will hold any of our crias (baby llamas) for you.

We prefer selling off the farm, rather than subjecting our animals to the stress of auctions.

All of our llamas are registered with the International Llama Registry. Some of the finest wool and blood lines can be found in our herd, including Otter Creek Harold.

All llamas can be halter led, and are gently trained by teenagers.

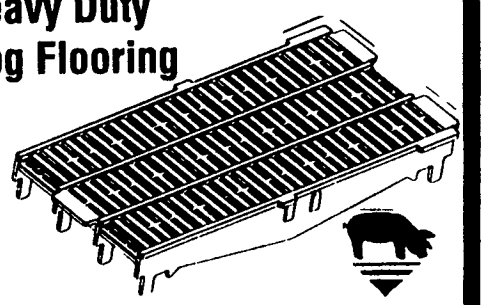
REPLACING HOG FLOORING? CONSIDERING NEW CONSTRUCTION? CHECK OUT Polygrate™
Heavy Duty Hog Flooring



Time Tested and Proven
This style of POLYGRATE was first introduced in 1981. Over the years Farocx has continued to refine this product. POLYGRATE is one of only a few "World Class" floors that has stood this test of time.
Outstanding Traction
POLYGRATE'S unique "high-low" finger design provides outstanding traction for pigs of all sizes, while enhancing safety and comfort.
- POLYGRATE'S rounded corners minimize injuries. The edges are beveled providing a smoother, safer surface that promotes comfort, too.

What Does This All Add Up To?
- More piglets survive until weaning
- Less splay/spraddle leg problems
- Heavier piglets at weaning
- Better conditioned sows at weaning

The benefits of a Westfalia Omega Stall System will deliver increased dairying efficiency for years to come.

Rugged, tough, strong. That's why Westfalia Omega Stall Systems are so easy to maintain. You'll also like how easy it will be to keep your parlor clean. Check out these features and benefits:

- Suspended Stalls — for easier clean-up after each milking.
- Gravity Close Sequence Gates — cover 100% of the stall . . . prevents short loading to assure parlor is filled for each cycle.
- Built-In Power Indexing — assures access to udder for easy milker attachment.
- Hot-Dipped Galvanized Front Structure — with stainless steel butt shield and gutter, ensures longer stall life.
- Built-In Kick Resistor — for better safety and greater strength to break in those first-calf heifers.
- All Exit — release all cows at once for faster cow thru-put.
- Parlor Appeal — streamlined appearance enhances the overall operating environment.
- Stainless Cantilevered Curb — allows for installation of milk and wash lines under the curb for easier clean-up and operator movement.
- Optional Stainless Steel Shroud — to enclose pulsator, clean air and wiring lines. Makes cleaning of parlor easier.

FRONT-END OPTIONS

- Individual Manual Gate Opener — for emergency cow release. Allows for individual treatment of cows (Swing out and swing up and out styles only).
- Gang Exit — 4, 5 or 6 cow exit to release cows as they are milked out (Swing up and out style only).

AGCO HESSTON THE PRIME LINE

The harder you have to work inside the tractor the less work you're going to get done outside. That's why we designed more operator comfort and convenience than ever into the cabs of our new AGCO Allis 9600 Series powershift tractors. Start with the premium Grammer air ride seat that adjusts to your weight and swivels to let you move freely. Easy to read gauges are where you need them. And our exclusive seat mounted console turns with you to keep transmission and engine controls right at your fingertips. Check out the most comfortable cab in the field. In our four new models from 133 to 191 PTO hp at your AGCO Allis dealer today.

AGCO ALLIS
For the way you farm today.

IF YOU'RE LOOKING FOR A NEW DISC MOWER CONDITIONER, THIS ONE'S GUARANTEED TO MAKE THE FINAL CUT.

With its highly maneuverable 9'2" cutting width, our all-new Hesston 1320 Rotary Disc Mower Conditioner cuts the toughest fields down to size.

It's got a 75" fully-engaged conditioner for high quality hay in the toughest conditions. And its heavy, durable construction uses six discs with two knives each. So it whisks through obstacles like anthills or gopher mounds without plugging. Plus, a modular-designed cutterbed with oversized bearings means easy maintenance and greater reliability.

So to cut through mowing problems, the 1320 is all you need.

See it at your AGCO Hesston dealer today, along with a wide selection of equipment for all your hay and forage needs And ask about flexible AGCO financing.

Celebrating Production Of Over 50,000 Case IH Magnum Tractors Built!

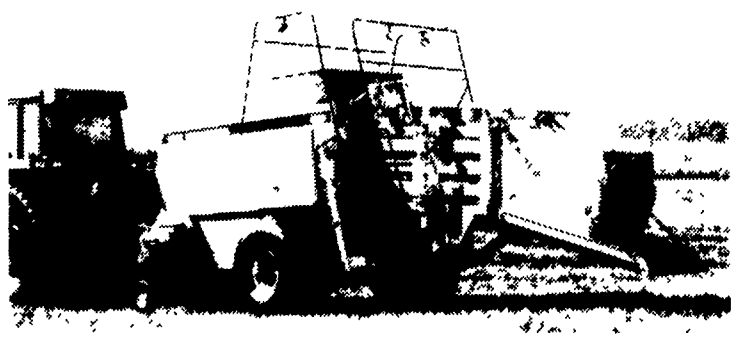
Centerline Square Baler Approx. 1000 lb.



That's what you can expect to save with a Case International 8570 rectangular baler.

The 8570 makes bales that save space by compressing the same amount of hay as approximately 20 conventional bales into a 1,000 pound, mid-size package. With fewer bales to handle, you save time and money, too. And the bale size is also ideal for storing, handling and feeding.

The center-line feeding system keeps nutritious leaves in the bale. Other features include automatic hydraulic bale density control, double tie knotters and electronic monitoring system.

All together, the Case International 8570 really does save space, time and money.

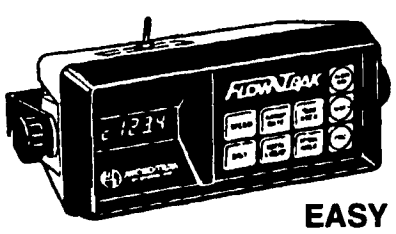
FLOW-TRAK™ SPRAYER MONITOR

INCREASE THE ACCURACY OF YOUR SPRAYER.
SAVE TIME, MONEY AND CHEMICALS.
HELP PROTECT THE ENVIRONMENT.



EASY TO INSTALL!

Call For Price And Availability

The economical, easy-to-use system that thousands of farmers and custom applicators have chosen to reduce waste and achieve better, more consistent results.

With the price of chemicals, impact on yields, and growing concern for the environment, no farmer or custom applicator can afford to rely on guesswork. Even with a properly calibrated sprayer and years of experience, costly application errors can occur due to inaccurate ground speed measurement and undetected variations in sprayer output.

The Flow-Trak sprayer monitor gives a clear picture of performance. Key spraying functions are monitored with the same precision provided by our top of the line control systems. With the touch of a button, the operator can view ground speed in miles per hour, gallons applied per acre, total gallons sprayed, acres worked and distance traveled.

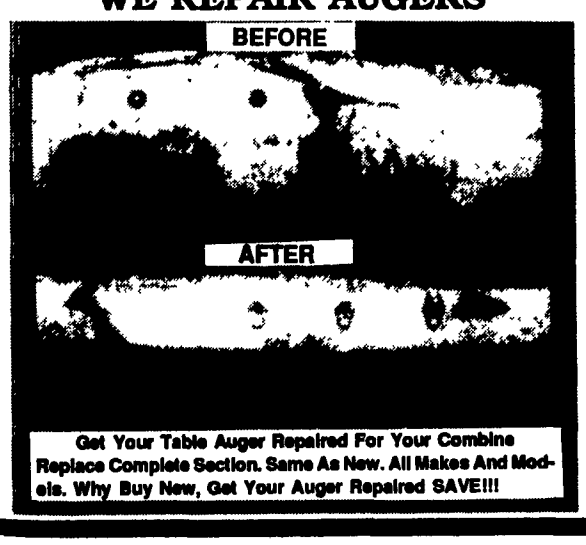
WE REPAIR AUGERS

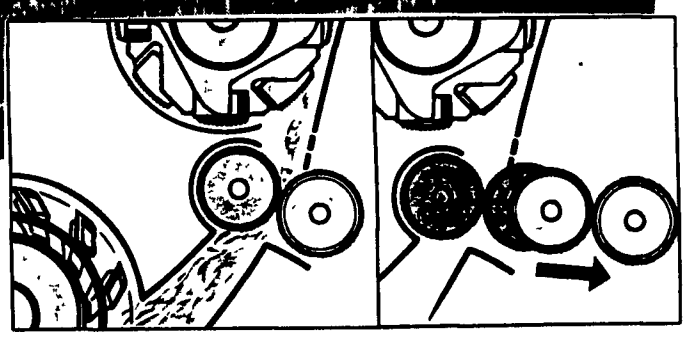


Get Your Table Auger Repaired For Your Combine Replace Complete Section. Same As New. All Makes And Models. Why Buy New, Get Your Auger Repaired SAVE!!!

Every grain opened up

The high quality of corn forage produced by the JAGUAR is derived from the CLAAS corn cracker. Two saw toothed rollers run at different speeds with 20% difference open up virtually every kernel and this means good quality silage which is easily digested. This makes for highest energy transfer for higher milk and meat yields.

The rollers are subject to wear and tear, so the CLAAS corn cracker features removeable outer sleeves. The shafts, drive pulley and bearings are all reused, thus reducing maintenance costs. Foreign bodies pass through thanks to a spring loaded mechanism.



CLAAS

Leveling your hills.

The optional Hillside Cleaning System automatically swings the top sieve sideways, against the slope of the hill. This keeps grain spread out evenly for cleaner grain samples.

You get full performance on slopes up to 20%, without the big expense of a hillside combine.

WITH NEW

Auger Adaptor Shield

All Danuser Diggers now come equipped with a two-piece auger adaptor shield constructed of heavy steel. Although this serves as protection against misuse, it in no way nullifies the clearly stated warning in the Operator's Manual that other than the operator on the tractor, everyone else is advised to stay at least 25' away from a digger in operation.

Retrofit shields recommended
These are available for the thousands of Danuser Diggers now in use. We urge all owners of any model Danuser Digger regardless of its age, to install an auger adaptor shield, available for field installation from your Danuser dealer.

MECHANICAL TRANSPLANTER MODEL 1000

For The Grower That Demands The "VERY FINEST"

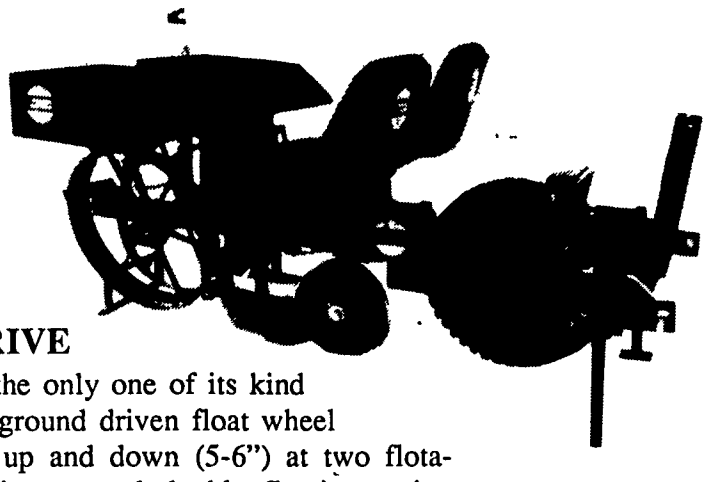
The High Performance Model 1000 has increased planting speeds 20 to 30%.



OUR PATENTED FLOAT WHEEL DIRECT DRIVE SYSTEM is the only one of its kind available. This ground driven float wheel moves straight up and down (5-6") at two flotation points. This patented double floating action maintains correct ground contact at all times for both the drive wheel and rear packing wheels letting the units float independently no matter how many rows. No weight of any hitch, toolbar, or water tank is resting on the drive wheel to compact the soil. Boop Receives American FFA Degree

A long list of achievements in agriculture has earned national recognition for a 9 l-year-old Millmont resident.

Douglas Boop. a sales representative for the Mifflinburg Farmers Exchange, is among a select group nationwide to receive the prestigious American FFA Degree.

Degree recipients must earn the FFA state degree, participate in chapter and state FFA activities, complete at least three years in an agricultural education program, and have an outstanding supervised agricultural experience program.

Their earnings and investments, hours worked in agriculture in addition to class time, leadership ability, community involvement and scholastic record also are considered.

A 1991 Mifflinburg Area High School graduate, Boop has been working on the dairy and crop farm operated by his parents, Gerald and Kathy Boop, "since he was old enough to go to the barn."

"I always wanted to be involved in farming," he said.

Dairy has been his major interest, and he has had champion animals at several dairy shows. He now has about 15 Holstein and Jersey animals, as well as crops—wheat, oats, corn and hay. His family's farm has more than 60 dairy animals and 300 acres of crops.

Boop has been active in the Mifflinburg FFA for seven years, earning its Star Greenhand award as a freshman and serving as its vice president and treasurer. He served as president of the SUN Area FFA as a senior, was named the SUN Area Star Farmer, and received the Mifflinburg Kiwanis Club Award for scholarship, leadership and supervised practice projects.

He also earned a state proficiency award in cereal grain production, a bronze medal in the state farm management contest, and a medal in the state agronomy contest. He was active in dairy judging competitions and received chapter proficiency awards in forage production and public speaking as well as project record book awards.

"Doug has an intense interest in agriculture and challenged himself to use that interest in his career," Mifflinburg agriculture education teacher David Woodling said. "He also showed tremendous leadership ability."

As a sales representative for the Mifflinburg Farmers Exchange, Boop helps other farmers develop dairy feed programs meeting nutrient requirements for body maintenance and milk production. He has seen how technology has changed feeding practices, and uses a computer program in his feed calculations.

"We help farmers use the forages and grains they have, and add a nutrient concentrate customized to their needs," he said.

He visits farms in Center, Clinton and Lycoming counties, and likes the opportunity to see others' farming practices, he said. He also has developed a feed program for his family's farm.

"Doug does a fine job with the feed programs," said Roger Shuck, Farmers Exchange President. "He has a good work ethic. He's responsible and well-liked."

Cloister FFA At National Convention

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — Five members of the Cloister FFA and their adviser, Mr. Kessler, attended the National FFA Convention held in Kansas City, Mo. recently.

The group left Ephrata early Sunday morning Nov. 6. The first stop was in Ohio, where they visited The United States Air Force Museum.

Then they traveled to Indianapolis Museum and Speedway in Indiana.

Two interesting highlights in Illinois were Mark Twain's home and cave and Lincoln's home and tomb.

Touring through the Harry S. Truman Museum, Arabia Steamboat, Daniel Boone home, Mississippi Locks, and the American Royal Rodeo gave them insight to Missouri's history, industry, and entertainment.

The National FFA Convention Sessions started on Wednesday, Nov. 9. Sessions included sponsor recognition, presenting awards, Laser Light Show, guest speakers, and installment of the 1994-1995 National FFA officers. The group returned to Ephrata on Monday, Nov. 14.

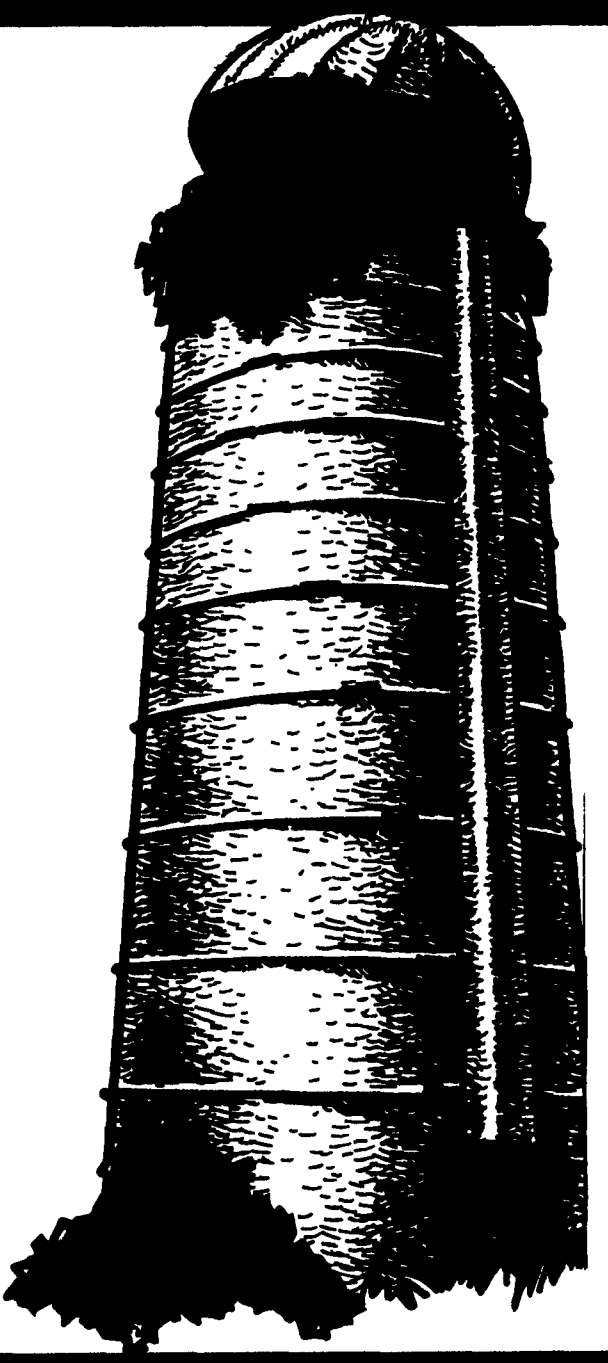
Extra tonnage isn't everything in a silage hybrid, but it's a good place to start!

See For Yourself, Plant A TMF Variety On Your Farm!

Up till now, the problem with most silage hybrids is that they weren't developed for livestock feed. That's why seed companies talked about "dual purpose" hybrids or recommended that you plant a grain corn for silage.

Now, Mycogen Plant Sciences introduces it's TMF series of corn hybrids bred specifically and exclusively for silage production. And when you see them in the field, you'll know it!

For example, in 17 trials across 5 states in 1993, TMF 106 averaged 30% bigger yields of energy-rich silage than the average of all hybrids grown for silage in the counties where it was tested.



NEW TMF 94

- 95 Day Relative Maturity
- Excellent Nutrient Content
- High Grain To Stover Ratio
- Tall Plant For Maturity

NEW TMF 105

- 105 Day Relative Maturity
- Produces 11-12 Long Extra Wide Leaves Above The Ear
- Companion To TMF 106

TMF 106

- Outstanding Silage Yields With High Nutrient Values, Especially TDN
- Produces 10-11 Wide Leaves Above The Ear
- Large Girthy Ears Placed Low On The Stalk
- Healthy Plants Retain Nutrients Through Harvest

National FFA Week Feb. 18-25

ALEXANDRIA, Va.—More than 428,000 FFA members will promote FFA, agricultural education, and the food and fiber industry during National FFA Week, on Feb. 18–25.

FFA members in 7,238 chapters across the U.S. as well as Guam, Puerto Rico, and the Virgin Islands will be organizing events and activities to foster awareness of agricultural education and support for FFA.

This year's theme, "FFA—The Leadership Advantage," will be seen through communities nationwide through promotional efforts of local members. FFA activities and agriculture classes emphasize leadership skills, analytical thinking and the application of both to the industry of agriculture.

Larry Case, national FFA adviser said today's young people are aware of their responsibilities as agricultural leaders for tomorrow. "Our members realize the world in which we live is growing larger and more interdependent," he said. "These young people will be leading the effort to provide food and fiber for a growing population, as well as to keep America competitive in the global marketplace."

National FFA Week is held each year during the week of George Washington's birthday to recognize his leadership and commitment to American agriculture.

Premium Book Outlines Beef Expo Activities

MADISON, Wis., — More beef cattle classes, expanded youth activities, and show premiums will be new highlights at the 1995 World Beef Expo, April 7-9.

These changes are outlined in the new World Beef Expo Premium nook, available free of charge through the World Beef Expo office.

According to Livestock Manager Diane Nichols, the 1995 World Beef Expo will include two additional shows: the Highlands and the Texas Longhorns. The latter will include both haltered and non-haltered (or loose) shows.

The "Spirit" Youth Sweepstakes has also been expanded for 1995 and is open to any boy or girl who is 9-19 years of age as of January 1. Youth exhibitors are not limited to the number of animals he or she may exhibit. The "Spirit" Sweepstakes rewards overall knowledge, achievement and excellence in youth involved with beef cattle. Events for competition in the Sweepstakes include the steer show, heifer show, showmanship contest, beef evaluation, individual quiz contest, public speaking, and practical herdsmanship.

"The exciting new element for youth exhibitors in 1995 is that boys and girls will have the opportunity for more premiums because the show is paying for more placings," said Nichols. "We hope this will raise the interest level and encourage more youths to get involved and compete and perhaps earn a little bonus for their hard work."

To order your copy of the 1995 World Beef Expo Premium Book, contact the World Beef Expo office, 122 East Olin Avenue, Suite 270, Madison, WI. 53713, (608) 251-2606.

TOP 10 REASONS

TANCO BALE WRAPPER

TANCO	COMPETITION
1. Five (5) points of support on turntable: Four heavy duty rollers add stability and support to the perimeter of the turntable in addition to the main central shaft. This allows Tanco wrappers to safely wrap the heaviest silage bales on rough or uneven ground.	Competition uses one central shaft to support the entire turntable mechanism
2. Single solid belt on turntable: The single belt enables Tanco wrappers to effectively wrap misshapen or soggy bales providing a positive surface for bale rotation.	Competition uses either no belts between rollers, or multiple belts which can allow bales to sag and slip
3. Adjustable extendable axle: On trailed models the extendable axle provides a wide, stable wheel base when loading bales. Eliminates the need for counter weights.	Competition must add counterweights or tandem axles as options to effectively handle silage bales

TANCO	COMPETITION
4. Top rollers on turntable: Extra rollers provide security to keep bales in place when wrapping at high RPM's (25) or on uneven terrain.	Competition - None
5. Unloading ramp on trailed models: The ramp allows bales to be unloaded gently. When a wrapped bale falls hard it can "burp." Once it "burps" the bale does not re-seal. The ramp gives a smooth transition between the ground and turntable.	Competition - optional drop mats or ramps available.
6. Optional "High Rise" axle kit for soft ground conditions.	Compare!
7. Models available to fit every individual need, including machines to wrap big square bales. Tanco was first to build a large square bale wrapper, and continues to produce advancements in bale wrapping technology.	Limited product lines.
8. Positive bale positioning: While being wrapped, bales are rotated the exact distance required to obtain optimum coverage.	Competition uses continuous hydraulic advance. Bales can slip or over-rotate giving an uneven wrap.
9. Durability: Tanco's subframe is one of the heaviest of any machines available in North America. The low profile design keeps silage bales closer to the ground with a low center of gravity for stability. Tanco's features are the result of years of experience and input from hundreds of individual, and commercial users.	Competition - Compare!
10. Price: From a basic 3 point Model AW200, to the trailed Model AW400 with automatic cut & start, bale and batch counter, and tractor seat controls, Tanco prices are very competitive. Pay less for more features and durability than any other bale wrapper on the market.	Competition - Compare!

8th Grader Now Sheep Show Veteran

BETH MILLER
Cumberland Co.
Correspondent

MECHANICSBURG (Cumberland Co.) — William "Bill" George Leib doesn't even remember his first trip to the Pennsylvania Farm Show.

But that is not surprising, since he was only a few weeks old at the time and his mother, Susie, had to carry him around in her arms.

It wasn't long beofer he was going to the Farm Show on his own two feet, however, and taking home some major prizes in the sheep competitions.

Leib, who lives with his mother and his father, Robert, on a sheep farm near Mechanicsburg, has been competing at the Farm Show since 1985, when he was only five years old.

He is 13 years old now and has seen his biggest successes at the show come in the last five years. At the top of his list of honors are the supreme champion in the wood breeds awards he has captured.

Leib, who is a 4-H member and an eighth grader at the Eagle View Middle School in the Cumberland Valley School District, has been consistent in winning those prestigious honors. He has taken them home during four of the last five Farm Shows.

His talent in breeding sheep shows in the supreme champion awards because he has won each of the awards with a different animal that he has bred and raised himself.

Even though he is only a teenager, Leib has a great deal of experience with sheep and goats. He now owns 36 Rambouillet ewes. His flock of animals also includes 11 goats, 10 of which are Nubians and one that is a La Mancha.

This year he plans to take 10 to 12 sheep to the Farm Show to take a shot at adding more awards to his lengthy list, Leib said.

His activities beyond the Farm Show and various other sheep competitions include selling the wool his animals produce to some hand spinners. The wool that the spinners don't buy goes to the local wool pool, he said.

Leib's success at the Farm Show and his expertise with sheep is to be expected, since agriculture is in his family's blood.

Like his son, Bob Leib also was a Cumberland County 4-H member, although he spent his 12 years in 4-H involved in the beef program. Bob Leib also showed at several Farm Shows.

Susie Leib cut her teeth in agriculture as a 4-H member in Maryland. She also has shown on and off at the Farm Show.

For Bill, the Farm Show is just the start each year of many busy months of work that take him to shows, and regular awards, at sheep competitions all over the country.

The list of shows he regularly participates in is quite large.

The roster includes such well-known events as the Allentown Fair, the Keystone Invitational Livestock Expo, the North American Sheep Show in Louisville, Ky., and the National Rambouillet Show in Dubuque, Iowa.

Bill Leib stands with Dixie, one of the ewes that he will exhibit at the 1995 Farm Show competition. Dixie was the reserve champion ewe of the junior show at the North American Show held in Louisville, Ky. recently.

Farm Show A Means To Compare Beef Breeds

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

MOUNT JOY (Lancaster Co.) — If you want to promote your breed of choice, try the state Farm Show.

Farm Show is more than a tradition for Salunga Acres, which maintains 125 registered Polled Hereford brood cows. The annual event, at the Farm Show Complex, is one of the best ways "to compare our cattle to other people's cattle," said C.J. Furlong, farm manager.

George and Dorothy Metzler and family, owners of Salunga Acres, have been raising Polled Hereford cattle since 1983. At that time, they started with seven animals — four cows, two bred heifers, and a calf. In 1986, the first year they exhibited their stock at the Farm Show, they garnered premier breeder and premier exhibitor awards.

And that's a tradition they'd like to continue. For this year's Open Breed Beef Show, the Metzlers are taking up nearly a dozen animals to the Farm Show, including a late spring bull calf, one early spring bull calf, one junior bull calf, and one late junior yearling bull. They're also taking several females, including two late spring heifer calves, two early spring heifer calves, two junior heifer calves, one senior heifer calf, one early summer yearling, and one late junior yearling.

Already the stock they're taking up has shown great promise. Two of the exhibits placed high at regional shows this year. One was named champion at the New York State Fair and the other was named champion at this year's Eastern National Show. The Metzlers received champion cow/calf at this year's Keystone International Livestock Exposition in Harrisburg.

Also, some of Metzler grandchildren will be showing animals at the junior shows, including John Hess, 13 and Nicole Hess, 9. Chris Hess, 7, will show at the 1996 Farm Show.

Salunga Acres won champion cow/calf and overall grand champion female of the Polled Hereford Show during this year's Keystone International Livestock Expo.

John Hess helps walk one of the Salunga Acres steers. John will be showing his Angus steer, Comet, a September steer, at the Farm Show.

Each year, according to farm manager C.J. Furlong, Salunga Acres keeps about 10 yearling bulls for breeding stock. The remaining bulls are sent to consignment sales. They sell the bulk of the animals in cow/calf pairs to different feeders.

During the past several Farm Show years, the Metzlers have garnered a wide variety of champion and reserve champion honors at the Farm Show. Most notably, for George, it was garnering premier breeder awards in 1989, 1991, and 1993 that are most significant.

They hope to rebuild for another championship drive.

"We've increased the quality of the animals the last few years," said George Metzler. "I think we have very good quality to show and to breed."

In all, over three farms, the Metzlers maintain about 300 acres. "We're self-sustaining on everything but minerals, and we purchase our oats," said Metzler. "We specialize in breeding for seedstock. Everything is registered."

In the late 1980s, the National Polled Hereford Association started making use of expected progeny difference (EPD) information on registered sires. EPDs are used to select for improved traits against the average of the herd. Breeders can use EPDs to improve select traits in the herd, such as birth weight, weaning weight, yearling weight, milking, etc.

Chris Hess will be showing steers at the 1996 Farm Show.

"Our goal is to try to use genetics from different sires — AI-bred or from females — which we feel will provide the best progeny," said Metzler.

The Metzlers have been using EPD information to select farm stock since 1989, going for a "balance" in their herd genetic line, according to C.J. Furlong, farm manager.

"We're at a stage now where we're not selecting for one major trait," said Furlong. "We're looking for a balance in EPDs."

According to Dorothy Metzler, Salunga Acres chose the Polled Hereford breed for its calmness and "docility."

"They're docile and I felt they would adapt to our operation better than any other breed," said George.

BUTTER SCULPTURE - The Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Partners will present a lifesize butter sculpture depicting the relationship between Pennsylvania's dairy farmers and the success of U.S. military personnel during World War II. This is in recognition of the 50th anniversary of the allied invasion of Europe and the role our dairy farmers played in the development of a strong nation. This is the fifth year a hand-carved butter sculpture has been created in a refrigerated case in the front lobby.

COLLECTIBLES - The farm toy collectibles that became so popular during the last few Farm Shows have been commissioned again for sale in 1995 under the advance reservation system. This year's items are a Winross truck honoring the commodity associations that participate in the Pennsylvania Food Court; an Ertle bank in the form of a 1931 Hawkeye stake truck loaded with sacks; and a limited edition 1/16th scale Oliver diesel tractor.

COMMERCIAL EXHIBITORS - More than 325 commercial exhibitors feature the newest innovations in farm equipment, services and products. Allow yourself plenty of time to see this year's products and learn more about them from company representatives in the Main Exhibit Building, Northeast Building, North Building, Northwest Building and lower level of the Large Arena.

From hobbyist to full-time farm families, exhibitors always enter their best samples of corn and hay, maple syrup and honey, fruits and vegetables, nuts and grains, evergreen trees and tobacco, dressed poultry and wool. You'll also enjoy the creative talents Pennsylvanians exhibit in the family living department.

Show A Means

Furlong believes that the Polled Hereford Association has come a long way in promoting the breed and using the latest technology to help producers.

"Polled Herefords, as a breed, have made some tremendous changes in the last several years, as far as data that we're receiving from feedlot tests and so forth," said Furlong. Other breeds just can't compete with Polled Herefords in terms of feed efficiency and cutability, according to Furlong.

But it's the animals' ability to "turn grass and forages into meat" that impresses George Metzler. And the breed seems natural to the Salunga Acres operation.

"Polled Herefords just adapt to our whole operation better," he said.

"The breed as a whole is striving for a little better milking ability," said Furlong. He indicated it will be interesting when EPD information will be available, in the future, for all breeds. Making the comparison at not only the show level, but at the genetic level, will prove challenging and perhaps beneficial to producers.

Metzler was recently named the 1994 Outstanding Polled Hereford Breeder by the Pennsylvania Polled Hereford Association. He was honored at the 72nd National Polled Herford Convention in November in Kansas City, Mo.

Metzler is also a shipper, dealer, and broker of potatoes.

We hope you are impressed with the diversity of Pennsylvania agribusinesses.

HORSE SHOWS - Horse shows and contests are always popular with Farm Show visitors and dominate the entertainment programs in the Large Arena. Competition takes place in Belgian, Percheron and Clydesdale classes, draft horse hitched classes, and horse and pony pulling contests. About 200 horses compete for Farm Show premiums throughout the week.

HORSE AND PONY PULLING - Sixty teams are likely to compete in the popular horse and pony pulling contests on Tuesday and Wednesday. These contests find several classes of horses and ponies pulling a weighted sled across the floor of the Large Arena, attempting to outdistance their competitors.

HORTICULTURE CENTER - You are sure to find inspiration for your own landscaping projects when you see what the professionals have done in the horticulture exhibits on the second floor of the Northeast Building. Along with some of the nursery dealers, you will see exhibits by Penn State University and Delaware Valley College.

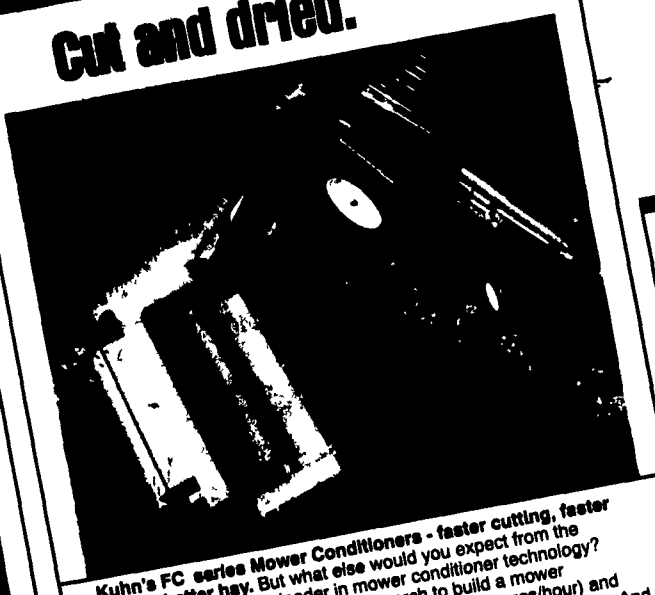
Kuhn GMD "100 Series" Disc Mowers

Cutting Edge Technology

In 1968 Kuhn started a revolution in the way grass is cut with its GMC 4 Disc Mower. Now history repeats itself with the introduction of the GMD "100 Series" lineup. It's simply the best mower in the world!

- EXPERIENCE IS THE BEST TEACHER - Over 25 years of research and planning produces the best disc mower available.
- REDESIGNED CUTTERBAR - For better overall performance and a more uniform cut.
- EASIER MAINTENANCE - hardened steel components. Simple to remove for quick servicing.
- WORKING WIDTHS - GMD 500 6'7", GMD 600 7'10"; GMD 700 9'2"

Cut and dried.



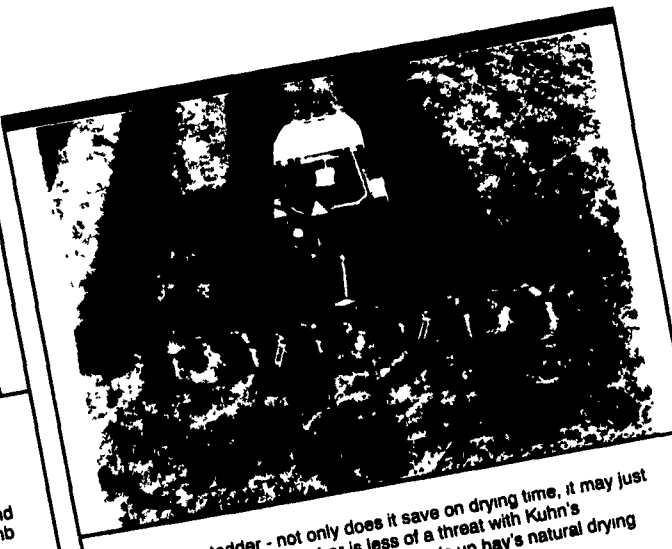
Kuhn's FC series Mower Conditioners - faster cutting, faster drying, better hay. But what else would you expect from the recognized worldwide leader in mower conditioner technology? Kuhn applied over 160 years of research to build a mower conditioner that cuts quicker (7-9 m.p.h., 6-7 1/2 acres/hour) and requires less dry down than many other systems on the market. And Kuhn's FC series is easy on your crop. With a choice of finger comb or roller conditioning, you can match your crop type for even and gentle conditioning with less nutrient loss.

- Easy to operate and easy to maintain, Kuhn is the only manufacturer to design a cutter bar exclusively for mower/conditioners to ensure longer life.

Three hitch types available to fit your pocketbook. The GT and Gyrodine® Hitches allow tight 90° turns while providing longer driveline life.

Kuhn's got just the right conditioner for you. Available in the following sizes:
- 6'7" 3-point model
- 8'2", 9'10" and 11'6" pull-type models

Kuhn's FC series of Mower/Conditioners are the answer to producing a superior crop. Check them out at your Kuhn Dealer today!



Kuhn's Gyrotedder - not only does it save on drying time, it may just save your crop. Wet weather is less of a threat with Kuhn's Gyrotedder since its fluffing action speeds up hay's natural drying time.

The Gyrotedder's articulated frame offers maximum maneuverability. Wheel heights adjust without the use of tools, adapting rotor angle to crop density. And 3-point folding models are equipped with a Digidrive® multipe finger coupling that helps prevent machine damage.

Check out Kuhn's Gyrotedder today! Eight models available in 10' to 28' widths.

Kuhn's high-speed, twin disc spreaders feature even spreading patterns, quick cleaning hoppers and stainless steel bottoms. Availab le with optional easy-to-operate hydraulic shutter controls

COMET ZSA SERIES
- Hopper Capacities - 1,400 to 2,400 lbs
- Working Widths - 32' to 49'
- Banding Attachments - Optional 2, 4 or 6 row

A turn for the better.

Kuhn's Gyrorake turns haymaking upside down with the 3-In-1 rake, windrow inverter and tedder. Windrow inversion is an essential process that not only allows hay to dry faster, but also decreases leaf loss as it increases nutrient levels. Get the job done fast with a Kuhn Gyrorake It lets you match rotor and ground speeds to your crop conditions for gentle, efficient inverting

But when it comes to Kuhn Gyrorakes, windrow inversion is just part of the story. The GA series offers gentle, high speed raking without roping. Side delivery enagles you to double windrow. And if needed, the Gyrorake also is an effective tedder for fluffing and drying hay.

Kuhn Gyrorake is also avaialble with special features to make the job go easier and faster. Wide flotation balloon tires (standard equipment) reduce ground pressure for more gentle treatment of crop stubble. Optional bogie axle tames the roughest ground.

The Kuhn GA series of single rotor rakes is available in working widths of 10'6" ti 13'. And for really big operations, there's the GA 7301 Twin Gyrorake with adjustable working widths from 21'4" to 24' for raking up to 17 acres per hour

Kuhn Gyrorakes – taking a turn for the better so you'll turn out better hay.

Earnings from the annual auction go to these young exhibitors, often enabling them to pursue careers in agriculture. The Pennsylvania Farm Show Scholarship Foundation now provides annual scholarships to outstanding junior exhibitors. The funds are derived from donations, membership fees and a small percentage from the Junior Livestock Sale. We encourage you to attend the sale and support our young people.

MILKING PARLOR - Hundreds of cows are milked twice a day in a modern milking parlor in the North Building - a miniature version of the milk houses found on commercial dairy farms. This facility is unique among dairy shows because it is approved by State Milk Sanitarians for the production and sale of fluid milk.

NOVELTIES - T-shirts, sweatshirts, hats and toys with the Farm Show logo will be sold from several locations throughout the Complex. A few Bruce Johnson prints and posters are still available from last year. Your trip won't be complete without a Farm Show souvenir.

The book includes daily schedules, maps, exhibitors lists, highlights from last year's extravaganza and information on Pennsylvania's commodity representatives. The program also serves as a valuable reference tool, featuring other information on Pennsylvania agriculture and the vital associations that make it our number one industry.

OLDER PENNSYLVANIANS RECEPTION CENTER - A reception center will be open on Monday, Agricultural Heritage Day, from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. in the Main Lobby along the south side of the complex for older visitors to relax and acquire pertinent information. OPENING CEREMONY - Get your seat early for Saturday's opening ceremony in the Large Arena. Pre-rodeo activities are scheduled to begin at 11 a.m., followed by the Governor's Address at 11:30. The first of two performances by the Pennsylvania High School Rodeo Association begins at noon. All of the festivities are free and open to the public.

SWINE - Competition among swine breeders at events such as the Farm Show helps them produce a leaner animal than those of years gone by. Nearly 500 head of breeding gilts and junior market swine were judged for a share of last year's prize money.

TOUR THE LABS OF THE DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE - Public tours of the food and plant laboratories at the Ag Building across from the Farm Show will be offered Monday through Thursday at 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. When walking from the Farm Show Complex to the Department of Agriculture, please use the pedestrian tunnel to go under Cameron Street. Tours will begin in the Front Lobby of the Ag Building. Pre-arranged tours are also available for agricultural groups at other times during the week.

VICTORY GARDEN - The Huntingdon County Vo-Ag Department will recreate a WWII Victory Garden in the Family Corner, just as people all across America turned their yards and vacant lots into "Victory Gardens" to supplement the vegetables they could get at the grocery store. In 1943 these gardens provided more than a third of all the vegetables grown in the country. Farmers dedicated "an acre for a soldier" and donated the profits from the sale of crops to canteens for servicemen.

VOCATIONAL AGRICULTURE DEMONSTRATIONS - Throughout the week, vo-ag students will present demonstrations on a wide array of agricultural activities. Through these presentations, students have an opportunity to improve their organization and public presentation skills. These educational demonstrations on are open to the public in the Pennsylvania Room on the Upper Concourse of the Large Arena. Some of the best presentations will be repeated in the Family Corner.

WINDOW DISPLAYS - The window display in the Main Lobby will commemorate the involvement of the Farm Show Complex during World War II. The federal government leased the facility in 1942 to train airplane mechanics. By October, the Main Exhibition Building was filled with classrooms, offices, a welding shop and a machine shop. The usual Farm Show was not held in 1943, 1944, 1945 or 1946, although farm organizations still held their annual meetings.

WORLD WAR II: THE PENNSYLVANIA HOME FRONT – Come and explore what the Home Front was like during the Second World War II in this mobile museum parked in the Northwest Lot all week. "Use it up, wear it out, make it do or do without." Farm Show visitors can compare their experiences with those of other Pennsylvanians whose lives were transformed to support the war effort.

SHEEP TO SHAWL CONTEST - The 14th annual Sheep to Shawl Contest, sponsored this year by the Pennsylvania Sheep and Wool Growers Association, gets underway at 5 p.m. on Monday in the Small Arena. This popular event finds teams sheering sheep, spinning the wool into yarn, and creating beautiful shawls in just two hours. We invite you to stay until the judging is complete and bid on your favorite shawl during the 8 p.m. auction. All proceeds from the shawls go directly to the teams.

RECORD PREMIUMS OFFERED - The Pennsylvania State Farm Show is committed to exhibiting the best that Pennsylvania agriculture has to offer. This commitment to attracting top quality agricultural products and livestock is evidenced by another increase in premiums, which now brings the total purse offered to 1995 exhibitors to a record $228,981.

RODEO - Members of the Pennsylvania High School Rodeo Association will perform for Saturday's afternoon and evening audiences in the Large Arena. The student riders will compete for separate points in each sanctioned show, with classes in team roping, saddle and bareback riding, bull riding, steer wrestling, calf roping, breakaway roping, goat tying, pole bending and barrel racing.

WPS Decontamination & Emergency Assistance Requirements
ALSO PDA's WPS Compliance Strategy For Pennsylvania

January 1995

Decontamination Site Requirements

Handler employers must make sure that a decontamination site for washing off pesticides and pesticide residues is provided to handlers while they are doing handling tasks. Worker employers must make sure that a decontamination site for washing off pesticide residues is provided to workers who are in a pesticide treated area and are doing tasks that involve contact with anything that has been treated with pesticide, including soil, water, or plant surfaces.

The WPS requires that decontamination sites be provided regardless of the number of employees. There is no exemption for employers with only a few employees. Decontamination and emergency eyeflush water must, at all times when available to the workers or handlers, be of a quality and temperature that will not cause illness or injury when it contacts the skin or eyes or if it is swallowed.

Worker Decontamination Sites

Sites must be located within 1/4 mile of the work area if a WPS labeled pesticide has been used within 30 days. Sites must be located in an area free of spray residues. Existing facilities such as restrooms will qualify if items 1-3 below are included. Sites must have:

1. Water - a minimum of 1 gallon of water per worker or a source of potable tap water.
2. Soap - for use in washing prior to eating, smoking, chewing, or using bathroom facilities.
3. Disposable towels - for drying hands (multiple use towels are not acceptable)

Handler Decontamination Sites

Sites must be provided at the mixing site and within 1/4 mile of the application area. Sites may be in the application area if protected from drift and spray residues. Sites must have:

1. Water - a minimum of three gallons per handler or a potable tap water source.
2. Soap and single use towels.
3. Whole body wash - a means of rinsing the handler if a spill occurs.
4. Clean clothes or coveralls and towel for use after whole body wash.
5. Emergency eyewash if the pesticides used require protective eyewear as stated on the label. Potable water may be used as eyewash.

Emergency Assistance Requirements

Employers of workers and/or handlers must provide emergency assistance to anyone who is or has been employed as a worker/handler on their agricultural establishment if there is reason to believe that the person has been injured or poisoned through contact with pesticides or pesticide residues.

Employers have a responsibility to make available emergency transportation to take a worker/handler from the agricultural establishment or a farm labor camp located on the establishment to an emergency medical facility able to provide treatment. Employers can "make transportation available" by taking the employee to the emergency medical facility, or by calling an emergency vehicle such as an ambulance, or by making sure the employee has a ride to the medical facility with someone else.

Employers also have a responsibility to provide emergency information concerning pesticides to a worker, handler, or treating medical personnel, promptly upon request, any information on:

A MILESTONE FOR BIOTECHNOLOGY AND THE POULTRY INDUSTRY

Dr. R. Vasilatos-Younken
Associate Professor
Poultry Science

The U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) recently approved a new vaccine for use by the poultry industry that is a "first" in many ways.

It is a single live vaccine that protects birds against two common diseases: Newcastle disease, a highly contagious respiratory illness that is often fatal, and fowlpox, a relatively slow-spreading viral disease that can reduce growth and productivity.

The vaccine is unique in that it was produced through recombinant DNA technology by a process in which a foreign gene from one virus is added to the genome of another to construct a single vaccine that can confer immunity against two diseases. This process of foreign gene addition produces a Category III type of virus, and the new poultry vaccine is the first such type to be commercialized in the U.S.

Syntro, of Kansas City, Kan., in a joint development venture with the Japanese chemical company Nippon Zeon, is the first company licensed to produce a USDA Category III vaccine. The live vaccine, to be marketed under the name "VectorVax FP-N," is expected to capture a large portion of the U.S. and worldwide markets for vaccines against these diseases.

Development of the vaccine involved first deleting the disease-causing gene of the fowlpox virus, while leaving intact other genes that control the expression of proteins that elicit a protective immune response in the host.

This modified genome of the fowlpox virus was then further customized by adding two genes from the Newcastle disease virus that control the expression of proteins that trigger an immune response to Newcastle disease. The final, specially engineered live virus, a product of recombining genetic material (DNA) from two separate viral sources, is predicted to be free of adverse side effects that are often associated with live vaccines, while providing immunity to these two diseases for up to six weeks. This will reduce the number of vaccinations required for a flock, and is predicted to save producers significantly in costs associated with multiple vaccination programs.

FFA Leadership for a growing planet

Ag Program Grants

CHARLOTTE HALL, Md. — A demonstration program has been established to help Southern Maryland farmers learn more about alternative agriculture enterprises that may be feasible in this region. The program's goal is to assist farmers by providing "seed money" for on-farm demonstrations and applied research projects and to determine the feasibility and profitmaking potential of new agricultural enterprises.

Any farmer or cooperative extension service agent/specialist within the southern Maryland region is eligible to submit a proposal for consideration. Alternative agriculture project areas include aquaculture, field crops, floriculture, forestry, horticulture, livestock, turf production, seminars, networking groups, and marketing or feasibility studies.

Grant requests may be made to help fund any alternative agriculture project including research trials, demonstration plots, farm field days, informational workshops or meetings, surveys, etc. Grant funds may be used to pay for any supplies and/or hired labor needed to perform and complete the proposed project. Grant funds may not be used for reimbursement of the project leader's own labor, land and/or equipment or for making capital improvements.

Grant requests should be between $500 and $1000. Requests for more than $1,000 will be considered based on the merits of the proposal and the availability of funds. The application deadline for the first round of proposals is January 13. The deadline for the second round is April 3.

Preliminary interest has been strong, therefore, it is recommended that proposals be submitted as early as possible. To receive a copy of the grant application or for additional information about this program, contact Candy Walter, agricultural specialist, at (301) 884-2144 or 870-2520.

Co-Op Pays Dividend

TOWANDA (Bradford Co.) — Scenic Mountain Milk Producers Cooperative has declared a patronage dividend for 1994. Dairy farmer members received their dividend checks at a recent meeting of the cooperative in Towanda.

R. LaVerne McCarty of Forksville, business manager of the cooperative, said the patronage dividend was in addition to the premiums their members have enjoyed this past year. They have a quality market that consistently pays above the Federal order 2 price. He also stated that the cooperative is seeking additional quality producers to supply their market. Any quality producer in northern Sullivan or Bradford counties that may be interested in Scenic Mountain Co-op's program should contact McCarty at R.R. #1, Box 1012, Forksville, PA 18616, 717-924-3963.

Outstanding quality awards were presented to two Farms. Robert Stoll at Rome, received first place. Duane & Betty Reibson at Forksville received the second place award James Patsos at United Ag Services, who provided the awards, commended the members of the cooperative for their production of quality milk.

3 Description of the way the pesticide was being used; and
4. Circumstances of the worker's/handler's exposure to the pesticide.

Pesticide Compliance Strategy for WPS

The EPA WPS was developed to provide protection to agricultural workers and pesticide handlers from exposure to pesticides. In Pennsylvania, the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture (PDA) is the enforcement agency. To aid growers in their efforts to comply with the WPS, PDA has provided outreach materials to all county extension offices free for distribution to growers. To insure compliance with WPS, PDA will use the following guideline to evaluate agricultural operations for WPS compliance.

A. Central Location/Pesticide Record Keeping Review

1. Application information - assure that all WPS requirements are present in pesticide records as follows:
   a. Pesticide Brand or Product name.
   b. Location and description of treated area.
   c. Active ingredient.
   d. Date of application and time completed.
   e. Length of the re-entry interval.
2. Display of the central location color safety poster.
   a. Color EPA WPS poster must be displayed.
   b. Emergency information must be listed on the poster.
   c. Telephone number of the regional office of PDA must be listed on the poster.
3. Accessibility of labels or MSDS sheets.
   a. Keep labels available to meet worker and handler emergency medical needs.

B. Decontamination Inspection

1. For workers - inspect field or greenhouse areas where workers are present within 30 days of a treatment to insure:
   a. Soap, water (1 gallon/worker) and single use towels are available for decontamination.
   b. Decontamination site(s) is not in an area subject to spray drift or residues.
   c. Decontamination site is within 1/4 mile of the workers?

2. For handlers - inspect mixing, loading and application areas and equipment to insure handler decontamination requirements are met, including:
a. Soap, towels, water (3 gallons per handler),clean coveralls and whole body wash are available.
b. Proper storage, cleanliness, completeness, and condition of PPE. Decontamination sites and PPE storage area should be located in an area free from drift and pesticide residues.

C. Field Inspection

Observe workers and handlers in field to insure compliance with the following WPS requirements:

1. Posting - WPS signs are in place where posting is required by the pesticide label. Insure that no signs are up longer than 72 hours after the REI expires.
2. Oral notification - were workers notified orally of all pesticide applications if required by WPS?
3. Field work
   a. Assure no early entry work is done within the REI except as allowed by WPS.
   b. Insure all PPE is being used by mixing and loading or application handlers.
   c. Evaluate heat stress potential to determine the possibility of problems.
   d. For toxicity CAT. I & II products insure that contact is made with applicator every two hours during application as required by WPS.

D. Training Records

1. Review worker training records to insure all workers were properly trained under WPS.
2. Inquire of grower as to which WPS materials were used for training.
3. Ask to see these training materials.
4. Inspect items 1-3 (above) for handler records also
5. Record the name of the WPS trainer for subsequent verification.

E. Post Inspection Conference

1. Explain the strengths and shortcomings within the operation related to WPS.
2. When warranted offer suggestions orally on how the establishment can reach full compliance.
3. Provide available outreach materials to the grower.
4. Explain any follow-up action related to the inspection.
   a. Indicate a need for re-inspection if violations are determined.
   b. Present a written report of the findings to the grower.
5. Ask the grower if he has any concerns or questions on WPS for his establishment

"Countdown To Compliance" is a cooperative educational effort of the PA Department of Agriculture, Penn State Office of Pesticide Education, Penn State Cooperative Extension Service, PA Farm Bureau, PA Farmers Union, PA State Grange, PA Vegetable Growers Assoc., PA Christmas Tree Growers Assoc., Adams County Fruit Growers Assoc., PA Nurserymen's Assoc., PA Farmer Magazine, and Lancaster Farming Newspaper. Soybean Checkoff Funds To Purchase Equipment

NEWARK, Del. — The Delaware Soybean Board recently awarded the College of Agricultural Sciences Research and Education Center at the University of Delaware a check for $43,500.

These funds, part of the 1994 National Soybean Checkoff program, will be used to purchase equipment for soybean research at the center. A small portion of the funds will be reserved to publish the Soy Newsletter, which is distributed to growers.

"The purchase of this equipment is an excellent example of how the checkoff program will benefit soybean growers," said Jay Windsor, acting director of the center. "The new equipment will enhance our research capability and data collection, thereby helping solve production problems faced by growers today."

The following equipment will be purchased and ready for use in spring of 1995:

- Airblast sprayer for applying insecticides to research plots
- Broadcast herbicide sprayer
- Grain drill seed monitor to monitor seed populations
- Combine weigh-bucket system to accurately collect soybean research plot samples during harvest and
- Lateral irrigation system that will replace hand-move irrigation system.

Farm Show Values Reap Many Rewards

GAIL STROCK
Mifflin Co. Correspondent

PAINTERSVILLE (Mifflin Co.) — We all know the values associated with FFA and 4-H. Youth learn responsibility, hard work, teamwork, and clean fun and fair competition.

The three Blystone children from Paintersville, have learned all of these things through six years of 4-H for both Tim (who also shows market lambs for FFA), 15, and Kristy, 14, and two years of 4-H for Ashley, 11.

But with their mother busy taking classes for her GED, the Blystone's Youth Fair and Farm Show market lamb projects serve another important purpose — a way to earn two timely "paychecks" through the year.

With the Mifflin County Youth Fair Livestock Sale just two weeks before the start of school, the Blystones cash in their lamb sale check for something very important — clothes for school. From the sale of their Farm Show animals comes a check for purchasing next year's lamb projects.

"They use the money they get for school clothes and put money away for more sheep," said Karen Blystone, who enjoys helping with the sheep as much as her children do.

This year's Farm Show will be a first for showing lambs for Ashley. She's looking forward to competing for dollar merit prizes for placings — $27 for first place, $24 for second, $21 for third, $18 for fourth, $15 for fifth, and $12 for all others — in addition to the sale of her lamb. Three years ago, Tim Fisher, their 4-H Lamb Club leader, encouraged Tim and Kristy to show at the Farm Show. Tim and Kristy have participated each year since and will again this coming year.

The Blystones have typical teenage and kid reasons for going to the Farm Show, including getting out of school, people-watching, and eating They normally stay Monday through Thursday in the barns with their lambs but can move out to a camper with friends if the dust bothers them too much.

Karen admits there is little profit left by the time the lambs are sold, after purchasing feed. Costs for new halters and brushes are minimal because these are part of the Youth Fair prizes donated by area businesses. And because Tim and Ashley received grand champion status at this year's Youth Fair, they'll receive a discount towards the purchase of their next lamb at the Centre Hall livestock sale barn.

Tim and Ashley both earned grand champion fitter and reserve champion showman during this past Youth Fair. Tim also won grand champion overall for his market lamb and sold it for $3.85 per pound. Ashley won reserve grand champion overall and sold hers for $3.30 per pound. Kristy won reserve champion fitter her first year in 4-H and had the grand champion breeding sheep at the Youth Fair in 1991. Her market lambs have earned her the Reserve Champion place in her class for the past two years at the Farm Show.

When asked what they have learned through their lamb-showing experience, Tim said, "I learned how to take care of things."

Ashley said, "How to face the judge and not look away."

Karen Blystone never thought her children's involvement in lamb-showing would last this long, but she gives it her full support as does her mother, Marian Laub, who takes one week of her vacation time during fair week to help out.

With Ashley only 11, the Blystones will be showing lambs for quite a few years yet. The values, lessons, and skills waiting to be learned through 4-H, FFA, and the Farm Show are there for those willing to work for them. But they come with one word of wisdom from Kristy, unmasked and straightforward as teenagers can be — "Don't start up if you're lazy."

Put your whole self into it, and the rewards will last a lifetime.

Ribbons and trophies shown here by Tim, Kristy, and Ashley Blystone are only some of the rewards of participating in FFA, 4-H, and the Farm Show. The rewards of good workmanship and responsibility will outlive the other prizes.

Bedford County Sends Loads Of Hogs To Farm Show

LINDA WILLIAMS
Bedford Co. Correspondent

EVERETT (Bedford Co.) — Among the more than 30 Bedford County hog owners going to the Pennsylvania State Farm Show in January will be Doug and Randy Koontz, age 15 and 13.

The sons of John and Debra Koontz of Everett are excited about this first-time event for their Champman's Run 4-H project.

Both will be competing in the market hog, crossbred section with their York, Hamp, and Duroc hogs.

Doug has nine hogs of his own, although only one will be making the trip. He won reserve champion at the Bedford Fair during the summer of 1994 and participated in Keystone, placing 8th and 10th. Both he and Randy have done well in showmanship competition and will be vying for a trophy at the state event.

Randy has four hogs but will show one.

Testifying to the boys' dedication to their projects, Debra confirms they spend a lot of time working with their animals.

The Koontz family farms more than 300 acres and milks 75 to 80 registered Holsteins. They raise all of their own animal feed.

The family also includes Allen in 12th grade and Ashley, age 3.

Other Bedford County hog owners going to the Farm Show will be Michelle Diehl, Amber Eshelman, Loui Martin, Willie Martin, Bill, Mike and Trisha Miller, Nicole Over, Mike Smith, and Nicky Smith.

Doug Koontz gives a handful of food to one of his prize market hogs. Doug will be showing at the State Farm Show for the first time this year.

Doug's brother, Randy, is also ready for the Farm Show competition.

Childers Elected Chairman

NORCROSS, Ga. — Charles E. Childers, chairman, president and CEO of the Potash Corporation of Saskatchewan Inc. (PCS), was elected chairman of the Potash & Phosphate Institute (PPI) board of directors at a recent meeting.

"We are happy that Chuck Childers has accepted this key responsibility with the PPI Board," said Dr. David W. Dibb, president of PPI. "He has a thorough understanding of the industry and the importance of agronomic science in market development efforts."

To Get Healthier Cows, There's A Lot To Prepare.™

To help dry cows prepare for freshening and the onset of lactation, you need new Purina® Prepare™ Dry Cow Supplement.

Most problems in early lactation begin in the dry period, but properly fed, managed, and conditioned dry cows have less calving trouble, healthier calves, and fewer breeding failures. They can also produce 1000 to 2000 lb more milk. Prepare effectively helps dry cows reach their ideal calving weight and body condition.

There is a lot to Prepare. Ask us about it.
